was content to settle in this country. Harsh economic forces drove him back to the United States as his job folded and he was unable to find employment. Any pitcher's worth is usually assessed on his won and lost record over the season. During the past year in New England he won 30 games while losing 10. That's an impressive record in any type of ball! His team went on to win the New England regional championship but lost out in the World's Softball Tournament at Stratford, Connecticut. And that's when he was sold on moving to Canada and to Richmond Hill in particular.

For at least two years Russ Cripps has literally drooled whenever anyone mentioned the name Judd. He was the epitome of everything a good pitcher should be as far as "Casey" was concerned. He'd have given a lot to have a name like that on the roster.

Through Russ Cripps, sponsor Vern Dynes was filled in on the talented thrower and Mr. Dynes too, began to yearn to see Judd wearing a Jeweller uniform. Through the grapevine they heard that Ray was interested in coming back to Canada. Right then and there a new mission was born. Get Ray Judd into Richmond Hill.

Correspondence flew thick and fast. Angus Philip, an ardent softball booster did all he could to aid and encourage Mr. Dynes and Mr. Cripps. The three gentlemen did a real selling job. A motor trip to the World's Tournament at Stratford, and sponsor and coach were able to report "sighted Judd and signed same." Local softball may never be the same again.

Like most American pitchers, Ray pitches the windmill style of ball. Just how strong and how effective he is can be judged by two games he pitched in this country. He pitched an 11-inning game against Kitchener-Waterloo and struck out 39 as his team went on to a 1-0 win. Going against the NHL All-Stars in 1956 he had 26 strikeouts in an 11-inning game. Won that one as well!

He started playing softball as a 12-year-old Boy Scout. Troop leaders wanted a game for the boys to play and picked on softball. Like most kid teams this one had at least 15 pitchers. Most of them ended by doing anything else but pitching — Judd definitely did make the grade as a pitcher.

His dad was a baseball fan and had played a lot of sandlot ball. He respected his son's new interest and encouraged him in every way possible even catching for the boy as he practiced at every opportunity. During the softball season, Ray likes to practice at least two hours a day, every day, and then wants to pitch at night for real.

Besides turning him into a very fine softball pitcher all this practice has given him a strong right arm that is at least three inches bigger around than his left.

While they were living in Providence, Mrs. Judd got into the act. Ray needed a catcher for his daily workouts. There was a park very close to where they were living and Mrs. Judd volunteered to act as a backstop. She got herself outfitted with a glove and, with some misgivings, her husband began to pitch to her. For a while he took it easy but as he saw her skill and confidence increase stepped up the pace. Today, a very confident Mrs. Judd will hang in there and catch any type or speed of pitch that Ray is capable of throwing. As you can readily see softball is a family affair with the Judds.

Both Ray and his wife love children and there's nothing that he enjoys better than working with young ball players. (Unless it's pitching and winning games.) He's an accomplished and competent after-dinner speaker and a truly clean living athlete in that he neither drinks or smokes.

Vern Dynes, Russ Cripps and Angus Philip are to be congratulated on the fine selling job they did for softball and for Richmond Hill. Not only have they brought home a real piece of baseball ivory but a man who will be a really solid citizen in the fullest sense of the term.

So like we said before, next year is going to be different and a real treat for area softball fans. Roll on spring! We can hardly wait.

HIGH SCHOOL SPORTS NEWS

(Continued From Page 9) Doug Nicholls quarterbacked the offense most of the way and did a creditable job. Touchdowns were scored by Bob Suzuki who looks like a real comer and Bruce Matson. Both touchdowns went unconverted. The team held a football party at the home of Paul Craine last Friday evening. Highlight of the party was a colour and sound movie of the 1961 Grey Cup game and Grey Cup Parade. The movie and projector were obtained by Pat Smith, father of David Smith, the very capable team manager. Coach Russ Snider would like to thank both David Smith and Ron Ley for the fine job they did as team managers during the past season.

Richmond Hill High — The biggest event last week at Richmond Hill were the girls' Georgian Bay Volleyball championships with Richmond Hill as the host school.
