DEPT. OF HEALTH TWP. OF NORTH YORK Headache

A persistent headache is often a symptom of some trouble other than just tiredness or too much close work. Also a persistent pain or ache or other discomfort should be investigated. Take a tip and discuss it with your doctor immediately. On his advice you may be able to prevent an illness before it happens. And remember too that although you may have the same symptoms as a friend who is suffering from some particular malady, what cures him won't necessarily make you feel better. If you have been feeling ill lately see your doctor, do what he recommends and use only the medicines he prescribes.
