With a merry laugh and the cooperation of a lot of varlets (whatever they were!) dressed in Lincoln green, he was able to make a complete umpchay out of the sheriff of Nottingham. So much of an umpchay in fact that this sheriff must have been the inspiration for all the dumb cops on TV programs. You know the kind. While the gay, debonair, private eye solves the whole case the palsied limb of the law is still trying to find his car keys.

Well — to get back on the track. All young Robin's men were real wheelers and dealers with a piece of bent yew and a quiver full of arrows. According to all the stories some of the shooting done by these legendary varlets was downright amazing. In actual fact, downright impossible. But it inspired almost every healthy young male who aspired to be a varlet to get a length of twine, a long branch and some straight twigs in order to perform feats of derring-do with a bow and arrow. With this type of equipment you couldn't even hit the rear end of a cow with a snow shovel but it was fun at that.

All this sort of equipment is now passe. Bows are of seasoned laminated woods or fibreglass while arrows feature precision balanced shafts, special flight feathers and metal tips. A lot of kids will get these things for Christmas gifts and they can be just as deadly as any gun if not used properly and with caution.

We once saw a demonstration by a skilled archer using a bow of about 40 pounds pull and shooting a hunting arrow. A five gallon drum was packed with wet sand and a .303 rifle used to fire a slug into the can from a distance of 25 feet. The .303 slug naturally pierced the near side of the can but only made a dimple on the far side. From the same distance a hunting arrow went right through the can and into a piece of pine put up as a backstop.

One game warden has already found children wandering around in fields using bows and arrows. A talk with the child and then with the parents usually brings home the facts of life about these weapons. Used indiscriminately they can be just as lethal or even more so than a gun. Used properly they can be a source of real enjoyment.

If you should get your boy or girl a bow and arrow set this year then start out by impressing on them some firm ground rules. They'll enjoy their toy a lot more and it could be that you'll get a lot of peace of mind. And so will the poor harassed game warden, while all the little varlets will look a lot better for being sound in mind and limb.

The old saw about a prophet being without honour in his own country is certainly true to judge by what is happening to the Richmond Hill Senior Hockey League. Now in the eighth year of operation the league is getting publicity in all the large metro papers and radio stations. A team from Syracuse wanted an all-star team from the league to play down in the big U.S. of A. while they have had interested inquiries from several teams in Metro Toronto regarding the possibility of joining the league. Yet despite all the publicity and interest in other centres nobody in the Richmond Hill area gives a tinker's dam or has ever even seen them play.

The teams in this league play good hockey. It used to be sort of a blood and thunder league but the adoption of international rules two years ago changed all that. Players who didn't want to play in what was a woodchoppers' league are now flocking back and the result is fast, crowd-pleasing hockey. Games are every Tuesday night at Richmond Hill Arena. For 50c you get to see two fast-moving, any hockey aficionado. There's no need to line up action-packed games that are guaranteed to please for tickets and no waiting at the box office. Lately the box office attendant has been the loneliest man in town as thousands of people stayed away. If it's the cold arena you're worried about then forget it. The high octane pace of the games will soon warm you up. Why not have a look one of these Tuesdays and find out?

Turns In Great Performance

One reason why the C.F.G.M. Singalongs are in first place in the Squirts division is young netminder Ken Hughes who is seen turning away one of four breakaways by the Aurora club in Friday night's action at the town arena. C.F.G.M. won the tilt 7-1 to rack up their sixth win against one defeat. An overflow crowd attended the special hockey night and all proceeds were earmarked for minor hockey in Richmond Hill.

Our Juveniles Score 22 Goals In 4 Games

Richmond Hill Juveniles, coached by Bill Armstrong of Newmarket and managed by Eric Charity of Richmond Hill have a real problem. They have twenty-four players on the roster and there is no competition available for them in the house league organization. As a consequence the entire group are carried on the team operating in the North York League.

They have already piled up an impressive early season record having played and won four games this season. A total of 22 goals have been fired in opposition nets while the Juveniles have given up only five goals. They have beaten Nobleton twice and Newmarket and Schomberg once each.
