

Crop Improvement Meeting

Must Produce Good Hay And Pasture

A York County farm stands or falls on its ability to produce good hay and pasture. Like most sweeping statements, this one can be debated, and kicked around endlessly, but no one can argue that in a county like York, where most of the farm income comes from livestock, that forage crops are not at least one of the major factors in running a farm well.

The annual meeting of the crop improvement association next week, takes a good hard look at hay and pasture. This meeting, one of the biggest farm events in the county each year, is next January 9th.

The program in the morning will feature a panel on pastures. Eldred King of Markham will discuss over grazing, while Bruce Harper of Stouffville, Doug Hope of Newmarket and Ernie Crossland of Newmarket, will put forward their ideas on making pastures really produce with natural grazing.

Growing good hay and pasture is one thing, but doing it at a profit is sometimes another. Farmers always have to be sure that money spent on fertilizer, seed, and machinery for this crop, will bring in enough extra feed to make it worthwhile. The answers are difficult, but the main speaker for the meeting, J. B. Nelson of the Farm Economics Branch, will have some good information on this subject. Cost research has been completed recently on hay and pasture, and Mr. Nelson's talk will help to keep you practical.

A new feature at the crop meeting this year will be seven, very short talks mainly by local men. The subjects will vary from the beef storey barns for dairy cattle. The speakers will be Bill Sutherland, Allan Moore, Dr. Stan Young, Harry Walker, Ralph Clayton, Alex Davidson and Ken Fallis.

As well as these features, there will be reports on crop projects done in 1962, reports on the performance of new varieties of grain and corn, and the election of officers for the association.

The meeting starts at 10.30, free lunch is provided, and there are good door prizes. The Newmarket Town Hall is the location as usual. All farmers are invited and again, the date is next Wednesday.
