Annual Meeting

Preliminary Plans Ready For New Church

At the annual meeting of the Richvale Emmanuel Church, January 28, the vestry report was presented by Warren Nobles, rector's warden. Outlining the year's activities, Mr. Nobles stated a building and stewardship committee had been formed to aid in the planning of a proposed new church. Preliminary plans for the structure were presented at an April 21 meeting by the architectural firm of Noble and Douglas. Funds pledged toward the new building had reached $6,000 at the end of March. The year's financial statement indicated a balance of $3,838.21 in the general account and $6,568.25 in the building account. There were no liabilities recorded. Lionel Boswell, people's warden, brought in the proposed 1963 budget of $7,000 for current expenses with a building fund of $5,000 spread over three years. Appointments for this year were: Glen Lunau, vestry clerk; Harold Silk, rector's warden; Warren Nobles, deputy warden; Lionel Boswell, people's warden; and Arthur Smith, deputy warden. The Sunday school report showed a gain of 84 pupils over the previous year. The present staff totals 21. An active program over the past year was noted in the report of the senior youth group. Activities included debates, a record night and a spaghetti dinner. Roger Williams was elected president of this group, Dave Humphreys, vice-president, Marilyn Haston, secretary, and Elizabeth Hamblin, social convener. A junior youth group for the 12 to 15 age group was also formed during the year. Rev. F. C. Jackson, acting as chairman, gave a vote of thanks for the excellent committee reports tabled at the meeting.

Unionville Police Village had previously approved purchase of all equipment except the truck. The village held over a decision on the purchase of the vehicle, subject to council's approval. Building in Markham Township last month reached its lowest ebb in several years. According to a report from building inspector Fred Fudge, permits issued during January had a total value of only $18,300. Included in the total were $13,300 worth of residential permits and $5,000 in industrial and commercial permits. Council also agreed to subsidize the extension of the area served by the Victorian Order of Nurses in Richmond Hill to include Markham Township. The township will pay a grant of $5,000 to the VON. In 1962, Richmond Hill paid $2,000. AURORA: Aurora's centennial coins and lucky books have made a half-page story in Numismatic News, one of the world's major coin collector papers. AURORA: A contract for Aurora's new pump-house was let recently for $12,000 to Model Builders of Aurora. Child Guidance Course

Fifth Session Studies "Responsibilities" - Mon.

With the general heading "Responsibilities" as the subject matter for the fifth session of the six-week child guidance course, subsequent sub-headings of "Home Chores" and "Allowances" made up the chosen topics for the February 11th parents' group. Reviewing the various stages of personality development (third session) Mrs. G. C. V. Hewson, who is conducting this course, emphasized awareness, which is a slow process, develops in the young child on his way to assuming responsibilities. Parents were reminded the learned self-confidence in a child contributes to the degree of responsibility he is able to assume, and this responsibility has to fit in with the child's growth along the way.

What Is Responsibility? Many definitions came from the parents such as, awareness of consequences, knowing what to do, carry through a task, trustworthiness, dependability, although a dictionary explanation was "accounting for". How many of these qualities are found in children? These expectations can certainly be goals, to a degree, but what parents expect in responsibility should match up with what the child is able to perform. In the early stages what is expected is related to self, i.e., dressing, feeding, toilet training, etc. During the three-four-year level, parents should work with the little ones, sometimes starting their tasks for them to help them achieve small responsibilities, i.e., putting away toys, picking up clothes, learning to wash themselves, etc. Responsibility here is added in terms of interest in what they are doing. Key to co-operation at this level is getting their interest. Parents often despair at the early school years stage, but must remember children are going through terrific development at this time of industry. They seem to forget every manner taught, tidiness gets to be a real chore, but these are "nuisance" items while they are investigating the "new" world. Things at their own age level seem to be closest to children at this stage. Six To Nine During the six-nine year level parents expect by this time: personal care, small chores, manners, sense of time, degree of honesty, to mention some responsible characteristics. In order that parents may help their children along these lines it was suggested to let the children know what is expected of them; perhaps by the use of a schedule or blackboard. By referring to this — needless interruptions can be avoided in their activities by getting the expected jobs done first. Children are usually willing to do their best if the jobs are met a step at a time. Parents were asked to "put up" with help from their offspring when it is offered, even if the job could be more quickly done alone! Make use of the help when it is willing (this help is so often temporary!) So often parents neglect to realize that attitude and tone of voice are important points to remember, as children tend to accept the parent's image of himself built up from words and phrases. So admonishing a child thusly: "Now remember to bring home ALL the change when you go to the store," or "Oh, you never do anything right," could well have damaging effects, if continued. Nine To Ten The nine to ten year stage is able to accept defined chores expected of them. They are now able to do various things and they know this. Try letting them have a voice in planning the responsibilities or chores they can handle and would like to do. During the coffee and buzz-session time interesting discussion on allowances brought forth comments and questions on how this form of responsibility can be handled. Parents were asked to let their children spend a few pennies foolishly, in order that the opportunity of learning what the child really wants to either save for or do without. In the older child the allowance should be a realistic amount to include fixed expenses such as bus fare, lunches or other regular expenses he is expected to look after. Recalling one of her many experiences in her special field of counselling, Mrs. Hewson related an anecdote in connection with the CBC presented program last fall, "The Special World of Women", on which she was chosen for a panel discussion, "The Role of the Mother". Attitudes of the Canadian mother at home as well as those of the working mother were a source of interest to the parents' group, thus concluding another full evening. Next week - Pre- and Early Teens.

Markham Council

A request for a new fire truck by the Unionville Fire Department was referred to the finance committee by Markham Township Council Monday morning. Cost of the truck would be $15,000. Council approved purchase of other equipment for the fire department with a total of $645.

Special Showing Lauded By Critic

On February 8 an interested audience of adults saw a special showing of one of the Children's Films of Note programs by special invitation of the committee which presents this series. Roy Clifton introduced the program and outlined briefly the reasons behind these films produced for the Children's Film Foundation. Among the audience were Mrs. Margaret Pope of CBC's Trans Canada Matinee, and Gerard Pratley, well known film critic. Following the film there was an informal discussion and quite a few members of the group expressed their willingness to serve on next season's committee to ensure the continuation of the series. Mr. Pratley gave a favorable on-the-spot criticism of the film.
