King Notes

Problems of men and women on probation were outlined to King City Lions' Club at last week's dinner meeting in All Saints' Anglican Church. Owing to illness, the original speaker, Mr. Daniel Coughlan, director of probation services of Ontario, was unable to be present. Instead, Mr. Ray Love introduced Mr. Wally Buntin of the probation services staff, who blamed most of probationers' troubles on narcotics. Mr. Buntin estimated 90 per cent were addicted. Since drugs could cost $30 a day and the victims couldn't earn the money legally, the men turn to stealing and the women to prostitution, he said. The speaker found many of the probationers had no church affiliation and hadn't had the opportunity to belong to organized activities, such as sports sponsored the year around by the Lions' Club. Lion Jack Walkington announced tickets are available from members for the car draw to be held May 31 at Graystone Restaurant in Aurora. The project will be in aid of furnishing two rooms, one at York County Hospital and one at the hospital under construction at Richmond Hill.

the name of his great-grandfather who started a blacksmith business in the district in 1826. Mrs. Harold Clapp of Fraserdale Farms had a word with Mrs. Diefenbaker, who had taught her literature in high school 25 years ago in Guelph. They had not seen one another in the meantime. No heckling or discourtesy marred the friendly welcome given the Prime Minister in King. Not all the people were his political supporters. Some were staunch pillars of opposing parties and others came because they respected his office.

The afternoon tea and showing of 21 Canadian historical dolls at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, netted $24 toward the purchase of choir gowns. The organist and young people's choir leader, Mrs. Howard Clegg, was hostess. In the choir are Mary and Ruth Agar, Brenda and Cheryl Chesney, Carolyn Holman, Lynda Clegg, Mary Rawlings, Judy and Jill Armstrong, John Agar, Russell Arbuckle and Ronnie Clegg.

An interesting outing for some forty children from King Kindergarten was the trip to the sugar bush at Eaton Hall. Morning and afternoon classes were taken in cars to the King farm, accompanied by the teachers, their assistants, and mothers. Mrs. R. O. Kerslake, Mrs. Allen Sneath, Mrs. Kenneth Gibson, Mrs. Ronald C. G. Wilson, Mrs. R. J. Stevens, Mrs. Tom Arlidge and Mrs. John Baker.

Mr. Robert Easdale showed the visitors around the grounds and through the greenhouses. In the maple bush the children were held up to see the cauldron of boiling syrup. They learned how the trees are tapped and each child had a chance to taste the sap before and after it had been boiled. As for the pre-school aged youngsters, they earned from their host the compliment that they were all "well-behaved". Mothers operating the non-profit King Kindergarten have learned they must seek another teacher for the term starting the beginning of October.

Mrs. R. O. Kerslake of Richmond Hill, whose excellent leadership for the past five years has been appreciated by children and mothers alike, expects to be moving in mid-August. Her husband has been transferred to Calgary. Mrs. Kerslake has been a kindergarten supervisor nine years. In King she was in charge of the nursery group two years before it developed into a kindergarten three years ago.

A scheduled 10-minute whistle stop lengthened to 20 minutes when Prime Minister John Diefenbaker included King City in his pre-election tour. The Prime Minister was accompanied by his wife, M.P.P. "Lex" Mackenzie and a barrage of photographers, reporters and TV cameramen. He made no formal speech but moved among the people, shaking hands.

When she married she moved three blocks away to Mr. Brown's home on North Keele Street. He was born on King Township's sixth concession and has lived in the village since he was five years old.

Music was always a prime interest to Mrs. Brown. For several years she played the organ at King City United Church. She liked composing music for her family's enjoyment and her efforts included an operetta.

Mr. Wilson also commented that $3,800 was the top salary for teachers in the area regardless of qualifications.

Mr. A. Young representing King Township was not in favour of rushing into the idea of a general school area, which had not been approved by the voters in the last municipal election. Mr. Sands speaking for Markham also spoke on the subject and noted that the closest that Markham and Vaughan townships came was a four division school area.

Many of the parents went home a little confused about debentures, school grants etc., but it is hoped a future meeting by the home and school will give a more enlightening picture of the school system and its financial set-up. Miss J. Crawford will share the cash and banner award for the parent-teacher award, and we believe Miss Crawford's class has set a record for the year.

While making his calls on Saturday, Mr. Banbury, meat salesman, noticed that several papers were still outside the home of Mr. J. Belzak, North Road, and not being able to get an answer to his several knocks to the door, notified Mrs. G. Cragg, who operates a store at the corner of Elm Grove and Wildwood Ave, who in turn notified Vandrof O.P.P.

An investigation showed that the occupant, Mr. Belzak had succumbed to a heart attack and had been dead for several days.
