Local Man Opens Transmission Shop

A well-known local man, Bruce Brillinger, has announced the opening next Tuesday of his "Transmission Shop" specializing in automobile transmissions at 177 Yonge Street North. He will be in partnership with Jerry Atkin.

Mr. Brillinger has been a life-long resident of the area. He received his education at the Richmond Hill Public and High Schools.

He was apprenticed by his father, Jack Brillinger, in body and fender work. He received his Class A licence in the fall of 1956 from the Provincial Institute of Trades after completing five years apprenticeships, two ten-week courses at the Institute, and attaining honors in all examinations set by the Institute after completing a night course in the winter of 1958-59.

During this period he attended various automatic transmission schools and received a certificate in Diesel engines.

He has been in the employ of R. D. Little and Son for the past seven and a half years.

Have You Read These?

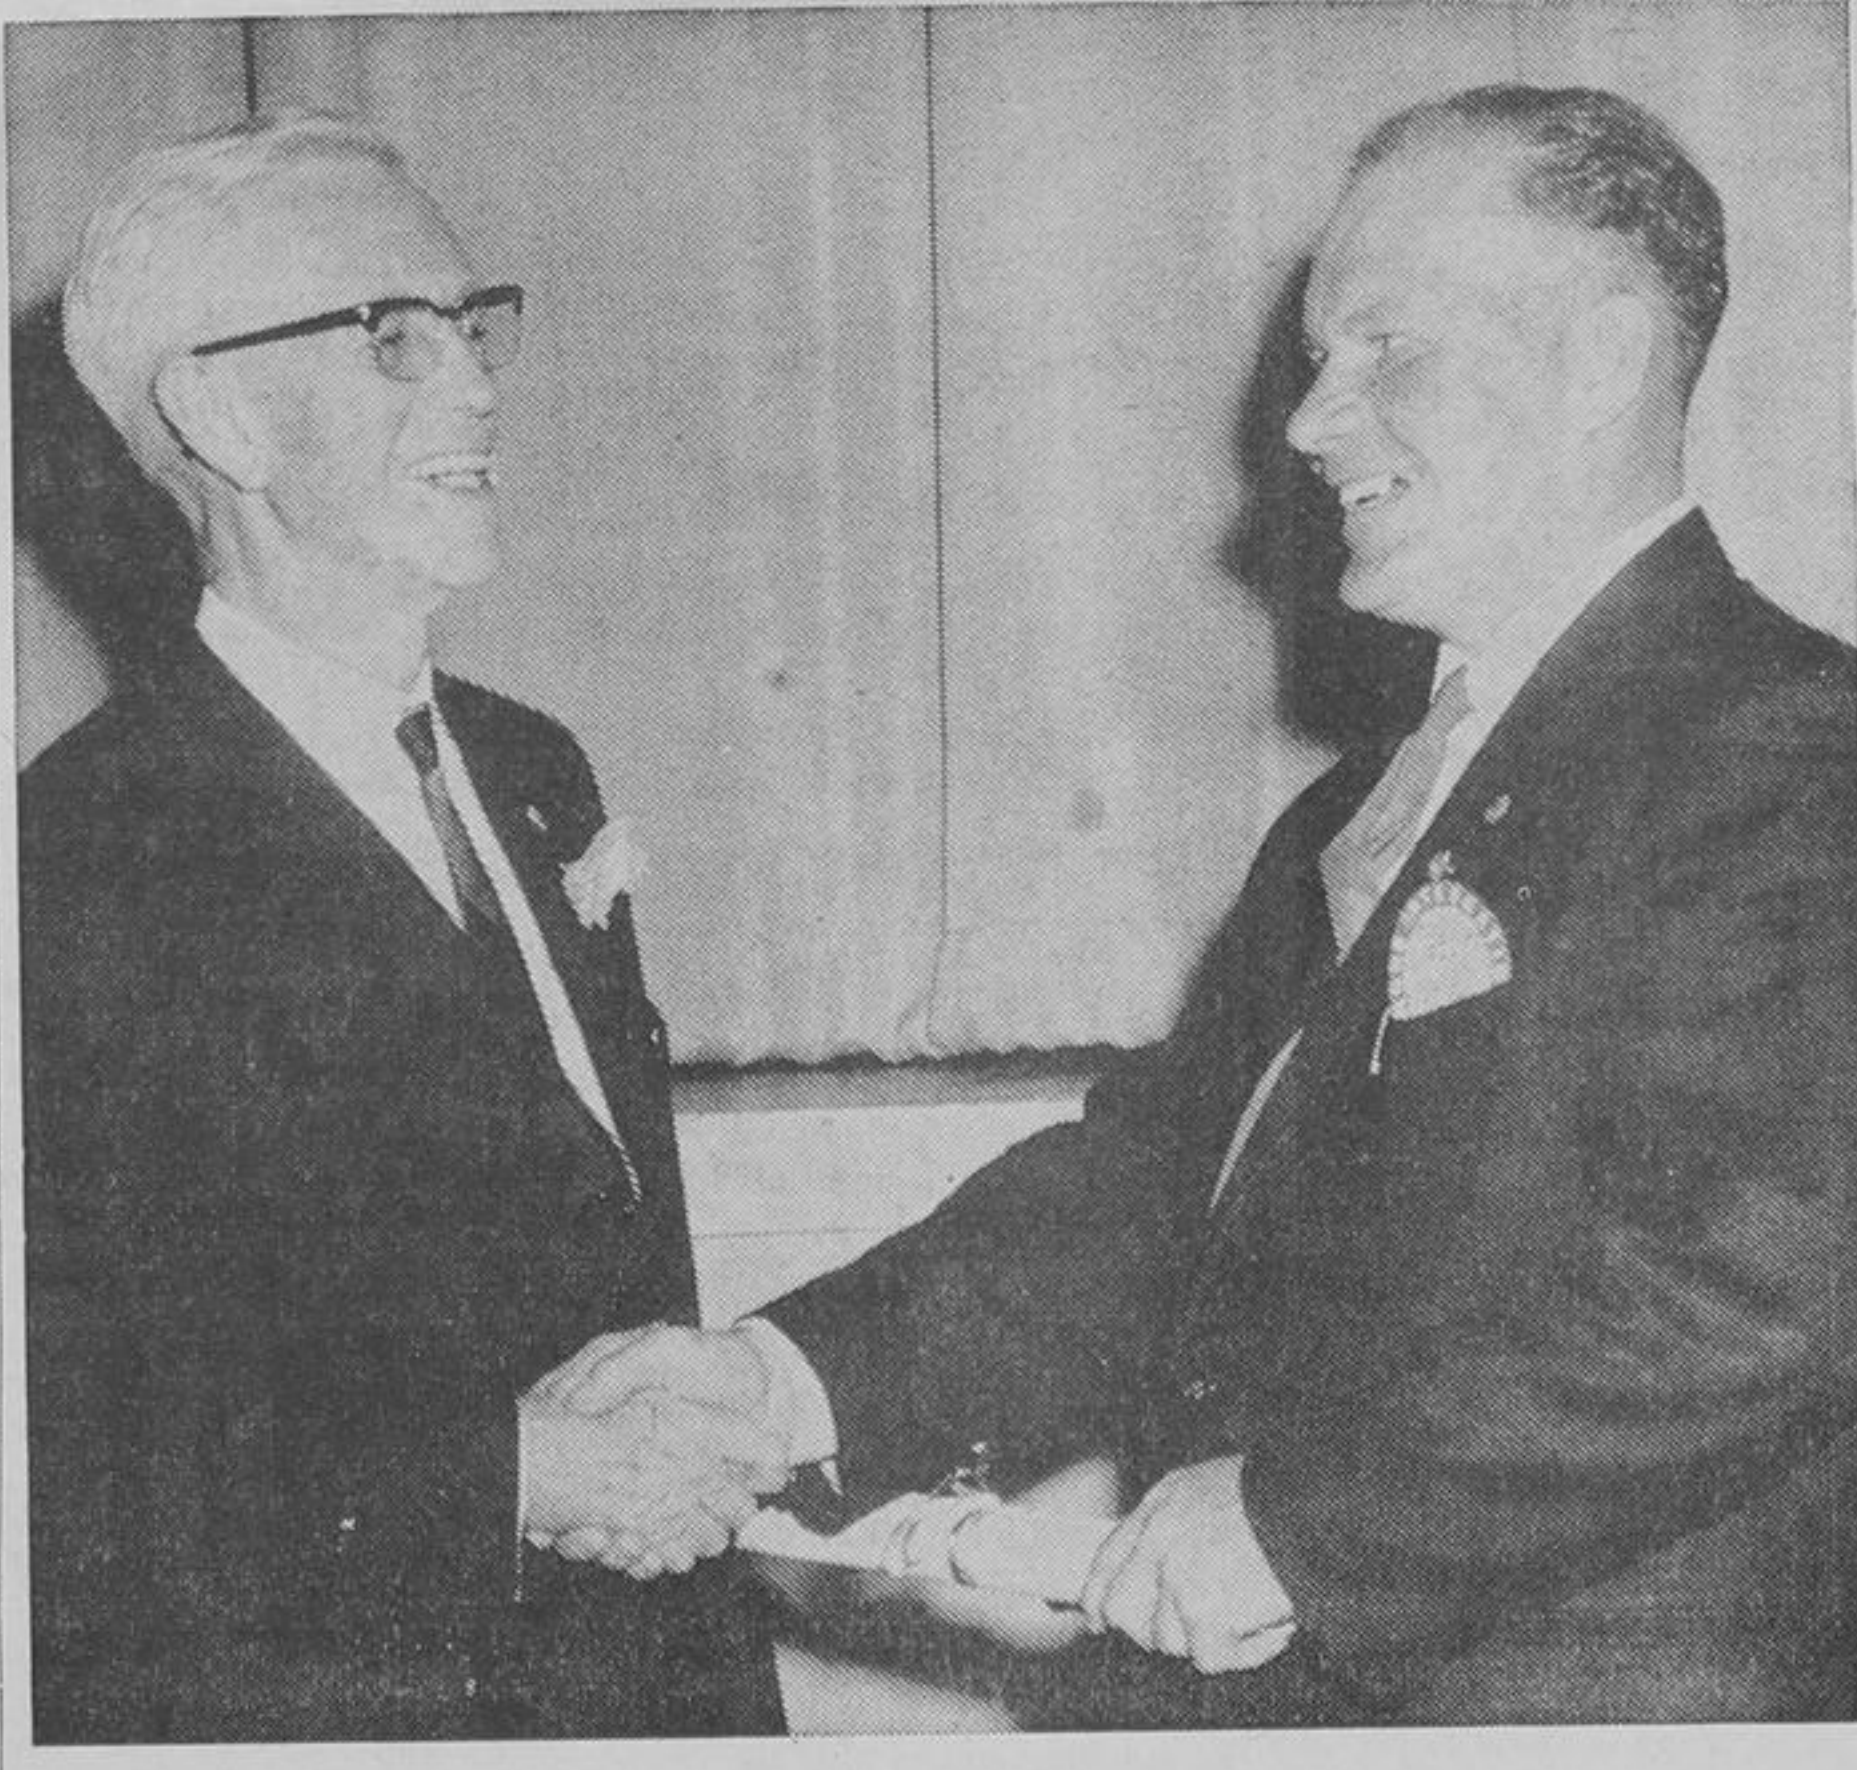

By Richmond Hill Public Library Board

Triumph by Philip Wylie, author of "Generation of Vipers" and "The Innocent Ambassadors" among others, and coiner of the phrase "Momism", weaves an intriguing tale of the last American survivors of a World War Three holocaust. What makes the story interesting is that the survivors, holed up hundreds of feet below a Connecticut mountain in a million-dollar fallout shelter are all races, Jewish, Japanese, Chinese, Negro. They have one thing in common . . . they are alive through the unbelievable force of their weekend host who stocked the shelter with everything conceivable for their survival with the exception of the prescience to know how they will react to the awful devastation taking place above them or to being cooped up together for what appears to be forever. As in his other works, Wylie takes apart modern society to show the symptoms he believes are leading to disaster.

The Talent Scout by Roman Gary. A biting different novel by the author of "A European Education" is based on one man's search for the devil. The setting is presumably a central American country and the devil's protagonist is its dictator, Jose Almagro, who plumbs the depths of evil to attract the devil. As the book jackets says, each page rings with the echoes of man's craving for immortality, expressed in the haunting final cry of "What is death? Nothing but a lack of talent."

The Off-Islanders by Nathaniel Benchley. Son of famed humorist Robert Benchley, the author takes a merry subject . . . Russian submariners stranded on a sand bar off a Cape Cod resort town off-season . . . mixes in some true town characters, stirs up several colourful settings such as the town pub and the dump, and comes up with a memorable Cold War story. Both sides are quite prepared to defend themselves despite the divergence of the rules. Among the characters are the divorcee who helps straighten out a young Russian sailor on differences between American film stars and fashion models, the town drunk who dons an Indian headdress to act as a spy and the sometime painter who emerges as a sort of hero. A happy, readable book.

Household Ghosts by James Kennaway, author of the highly rated "Times of Glory", his first novel. Mr. Kennaway's serious novel deals with a young married woman in the Scottish lowlands facing infidelity but caught up short by her past. Mr. Kennaway has a wonderful way with dialogue and the sort of conversation between his characters is characteristic of his first novel and maybe even more so . . . crisp and witty yet so real it could be a thousand intimate conversations in a thousand places. A fascinating book full of sympathy.

Richvale Lions Accept Charter

How those Lions roared when the new club charter was presented to Richvale Lions Club Friday night at a charter night banquet attended by more than 200 Lions from as far distant as Willowdale and Schomberg. Gifts were received from Aurora, Humber Valley, King City, Maple, Nobleton, Newmarket, North York, Oak Ridges, Richmond Hill, Schomberg, Thornhill and Victoria Square clubs. Lions president John Bailey accepts the charter from Dr. Hugh MacKay (right) district zone chairman of Richmond Hill.

In Memoriam

ANDERSON — In loving memory of a dear husband, dad and grandpa, Bill Anderson, who passed away October 14, 1962.

What would I give to clasp his hand,
His happy face to see,
To hear his voice and see his smile,
That meant so much to us.

Lovingly remembered by wife Annie and family. *1w15

VALLIERE — In loving memory of our mother, Elizabeth Valliere, who was called home, October 8, 1930.

A mother who gave us the best years of her life,
Who cherished our secrets, our sorrows, our strife,
Who taught us to love, and taught us to pray,
Dear Mother in heaven, God bless you today.

Your life was unselfish, for others you lived,
Not for what you received but for what you could give.
Memories are treasures no one can steal.
Death is a headache nothing can heal,
Some may forget you now you are gone,
But we shall remember no matter how long.

Lovingly remembered by family. c1w15

Births

Lockjaw

There are still cases of tetanus, or lockjaw, every year. Almost every one is unnecessary, says the Health League of Canada. Tetanus toxoid offers excellent protection. Tetanus is a serious infection that often proves fatal. It is much too serious to take a chance - immunize now. CARL E. HILL, M.D., M.O.H.

(Continued From Page 1) contact with a representative of the receiver, who stated that they would be interested only in a lease on a month to month basis or the outright sale of the lot.

Councillor Thomas Murphy reported that the lot could be purchased for a very reasonable price, and if it were legal, it might be a good investment to use as a temporary parking lot until the proposed laneways are provided when it could be sold probably at a profit.

Councillor Alex Campbell declared he was against the town speculating with public money. "If you can make money, you can lose it," he maintained.

Councillor Walter Scudds stated, "You can't buy a lot for parking when you have already accepted in principle the planning board's recommendation that no further parking lots be provided, but that laneways be built to open up the rear of commercial properties for parking and servicing."

Here's a smile for you

The judge was hearing divorce petitions when a female complainant pleaded her case, citing as grounds that her husband was careless about his appearance.

"I'm afraid you'll have to have a better reason than that," the judge finally announced.

"Well, it seems sufficient grounds to me," the woman replied. "After all, he hasn't made an appearance in over three years."

There's nothing like a sparklingly clean outfit to boost your spirits and get rid of those dull weather blues. We're all judged on our appearance so make sure you're at your best with clean clothes properly pressed. Our efficient cleaning service is as near as your telephone.
