

The Liberal

An Independent Weekly: Established 1878

Subscription Rate $3.50 per year; to United States $4.50; 10c single copy

Member Audit Bureau of Circulations Member Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association

J. E. SMITH, Editor and Publisher W. S. COOK, Managing Editor

"Authorized as second class mail, Post Office Department, Ottawa"

Pennies For UNICEF

In today's world, millions of children are ill-fed, poorly clothed and unschooled. We have never seen them; they are the "faceless children". But on Hallowe'en next Thursday, Richmond Hill school-age children with faces, albeit some of them masked, will be doing their part to give aid to these unfortunates, through their contribution of collected pennies to UNICEF (United Nations International Childrens Emergency Fund). On this one night of the year, the gaily dressed area youngsters come knocking on the door, looking for traditional treats but also seeking help for their "faceless" friends.

For example, Pleasantville Public School pupils last year collected $104, most of it in pennies for UNICEF. This year, their fourth, they saw a Danny Kaye film on his UNICEF work, October 23. Several other Richmond Hill schools are following suit with the main requirement that each child is familiarized with what's behind UNICEF.

The organization, participated in by more than 100 countries, is not a charity but a co-operative effort to improve the lot of the children of the world. Interested countries must first ask for UNICEF assistance and for every dollar given, these governments spend $2.50 for local buildings, personnel, domestic food and facilities.

The Hallowe'en tradition, widened six year ago to include UNICEF collections, was met with protests that the children were being robbed of their fun.

Canadian children have also made it a night for children around the world since they have learned their help is needed.

Last year from the Atlantic provinces to British Columbia, regardless of variable weather, approximately 400,000 costumed youngsters sallied forth with paper bags for treats and UNICEF collection boxes. They brought home candy, cookies and apples and they also brought back almost $400,000 in pennies, nickels and dimes.

This is a worthwhile effort on the part of our young people in Richmond Hill; let's support them in their earnest sincerity to share their good fortune to be Canadians.

Traffic Lights?

In spite of the lamentable condition of Bayview Avenue for the mile and a quarter north of Markham Road, traffic volume continues to increase in the eastern section of Richmond Hill.

Allencourt Plaza, Bayview Secondary School and the new St. Joseph's Separate School have all added to the concentration of traffic at the Bayview-Markham corner. In rush hours a real traffic control problem is shap-

Perhaps the time is not far distant when a traffic count would reveal the need for traffic lights at this busy corner. When the Toronto & York Roads Commission is finally persuaded to pave Bayview Avenue, the volume of traffic at this corner is bound to increase appreciably and traffic control by lights will be essen-

Time And Clocks

When we set the clocks back an hour this weekend we may tell ourselves we are changing time, taking back that hour we spent for longer summer evenings last April. But the sun will rise unchanged next Sunday, on its own schedule, and the only change will be in the position of the hands on those ticking machines by which man masters his own life. We will adjust our own gauge of the hours somewhat closer to the reality of night and day, the sun, the earth and the year.

Time has its own dimensions and neither the sun nor the clock can encompass them all. All we can do with the astronomical absolutes of time is note them, divide them as we please, and live by them in our daily routines. Beyond that, our own emotions, our hopes and fears, our worry and our relief, shape not only our days but our hours with only casual regard for absolute or arbitrary time. The busy day can be brief, the suspenseful hour endless. Who can prove, by any clock ever devised, that time on occasion does not stand still? The interval between heartbeats can be a terrifying eternity, and the pause between two spoken words can shape the dimensions of all our tomorrows.

Time is all around us, the time of the hills, the time of the tides, the lifetime of a man or a tree or an insect. We participate in time, try to shape it to our own necessities: but when we change the clocks we aren't changing time at all. We are playing with figures on a dial that denotes but cannot alter the flow of forever.

"DEAR MR. EDITOR"

Suggests Police Patrol Town Park

time enjoying the park facilit-their manly strength by taking I have lived in Richmond les which were so close. It was the swings away from the must hold a university degree. Hill for over twenty years and a pleasant, quiet place to take younger children and when they during the past year and a half the dog for a walk or to sit out are done they wind the chains my wife and I have lived in an under the trees on a hot sum- up around the supporting bar apartment building on Church mers' night. so that the younger children Street South which looks dir- However, all good things it cannot reach them.

these pleasures ended rather deny younger persons their During the first summer we abruptly this summer with the pleasure but the sights to were here we spent a lot of arrival of large bands of young which I have been exposed this people who are constantly loit- summer make me feel that the ering in the park area. These park area should be regularly from 13 to 16 years and a few ment both day and night. In my

METERS DRIVE AWAY SHOPPERS

of them drive cars which they opinion one item that might be Dear Mr. Editor: invariably manage to manoeuvre of assistance would be spot-For the first time in my life, over the grass, around the trees lights mounted on the arena I paid a parking ticket for being and anywhere else they will fit. building such that they would in the right, and only in Rich- After darkness settles these shine the length of the wall and mond Hill could this happen. young people remain and if the out onto the grass and drive-At 8:30 a.m. on Friday I put night is warm and you have way areas, enough money in the meter on your windows open you find I advance these only as sugthe municipal lot at Richmond you are subjected to some of gestions since I feel that if Pol-Street and Yonge to last three the most vulgar obscenities ice Chief R. Robbins was to Before the time was up, I shouted at the loudest possible arena board they could arrive went out to my car and there voice. These sounds are inter- at a better, more effective, solwas a ticket on the windshield. rupted only by bottles being ution for this type of problem.

I contested it immediately at smashed against the arena walls. To serve the best interests of the local police station and was or large rocks being rolled the taxpayers who elected apologetically told I had to pay down the metal roof. as the meter was set for only If you live on an upper floor one hour and no matter how of a building such as we do, much money I put in, I would you are forced to keep your still have to be penalized un-drapes closed since these young less I was there to pay after people seem to enjoy climbing each hour. This was impossible the trees in the park so that they can look into your wind- AURORA: The centennial comin my business. In other cities, your money ows.

pay, but not in Richmond Hill. town installed several sets of to just about "break even" when several occasions, rates are thus set more with refer- structed by the C.N.R. for un- and Holsteins. They came from I am glad for the past 15 swings, slides etc. for the final returns are complete. The ence to the "market" (a business dimension) than to loading of equipment at the the herds of Alf Bagg, Edgeley, years to have lived outside the younger children to use and for committee is to receive one- what British Treasury officials refer to as "quasi- site. town, for this action disgusts the entire summer the younger third of net profits from offime, and no longer will I ven-children have been unable to cially sponsored events. Sale of ture in a store in that area, get near them. The reason be- medallions and commemorative as I might be trapped again. ing that some of these larger coins resulted in a profit of An Irate Vaughan Taxpayer. oafs take pride in exhibiting $4,402.

mittee, which spent $20,000 on

Yours Truly

K. W. Tomlin Jr.

36 Church St. S.

Rambling Around

"Modern Business Affects Everything We Do"

... PROFESSOR WOODBURN THOMSON

Professor Woodburn Thomson, his wife Cicely, a daughter Janet and two sons John and Robert, live at 87 Vaughan Road, Richmond Hill. Many readers of "The Liberal" will remember the column "Over Hill, Over Dale" that Cicely Thomson wrote for this paper for several years. Now she directs plays: last winter "Teahouse of the August Moon" for the Curtain Club; "Anniversary Waltz" for the Aurora Club: and was co-director for the "Vagabond King" produced by the Scarborough Club. The oldest son John is an undergraduate at the University of Victoria in B.C.; Janet and Bob attend Richmond Hill High School.

sailing. In the wintertime he skis at Summit and Collingwood; and in the summer sails the ketch "Maud II" out of Penetang. "Maud II" came from the drawing board of W. J. Roue, the designer of the famous schooner "Bluenose."

Professor Thomson lectures on administration at the "School of Business" which is part of the University of Toronto. He explained that two quite different activities go on in most business schools. First, there are courses in those skills that are used in business today and that help to make the student productive early in his employment. Then there are courses which aim to help the student to handle, five or ten years from now, problems about which we now know very little, but which will face him when he arrives at positions of higher responsibility.

In business administration, graduate students study accounting, corporation finance, business economics, production, marketing and administration; after which they will choose from various areas of specialization.

Can you type a business administrator as having particular qualities? Professor Thomson doesn't think so. He says different situations require different comadministrative process may be common to a church, a school, a hospital, a paper box factory, or an army; but ethics vary from one institution to another. Permissable limits of aggressiveness, the extent and rigidity of ground rules, the amount of concern a man is expected to demonstrate for the common good, are by no means uniform across-the-board. A man who could be a breath-taking success in one institution, might not be tolerated for long in some others.

"All the same, outstanding administrators are usually creative individuals," said the professor. "Churchill is a recent example: and people like the one-time C.P.R. president Van Horn, or Samuel Gompers, the father of the American Federation of Labour, were examples around the turn of the century. All three were innovators, two were artistic, all knew when to kick over the traces (and had the guts to do it); and the two whose work, in my opinion, was to have the greatest significance in the long run had a consuming passion for history."

According to Professor Thomson, the "school" approach to business is a relatively new thing; and did not spread rapidly until the last few years. Originally the idea was an American one. In the old days, an intelligent man with experience could cope with the business problems of his time. But today, for "epaulets"?) with a rapidly accelerating rate-of-change in society, "experience" is much less valuable.

As an example of change, he said, "Look what has happened to information". In the last few years we have had what amounts to an information-explosion. Today, old ways of assembling information is no longer adequate: instead, information-handling Flashback has been going on in many other areas.

The importance of the liberal arts or the "humanities" is mounting. No longer can a man expect to rely principally on institutional customs, personal experience, or even specialist knowledge to guide him when he is suddenly confronted with unusual and novel developments. In such a predicament, a man can count himself fortunate who is able to call on philosophy, to protect his intelligence "against the bewitchment of language;" history to help him see the real possibilities of the future by placing the present in meaningful context; and great literature to remind him of the potentialities of the human heart. At the Toronto School of Business, applicants

Today business attitudes affect almost everything we do. Our vocabulary is changing. Words from the business world find their way into everyday conversation as symptoms of the commercial assessectly over the town park and is said must come to an end and I would be the last person to ments that people are steadily spreading through-out their lives. Nowadays, instead of "convincing" someone, we "sell" them: instead of ourselves being convinced, we "buy"; and so on.

"The condition heralded by this sort of seepage," young people would vary in age patrolled by our police depart- said Professor Thomson, "is a world in which nothing is worth doing unless it 'pays', or where anything is possible if the price is right, or where everything is good if it is big . . . and better if it's bigger. Of all the professions, only the ministry seems to have re- ty. It was therefore fitting that ed their interest even when no mained relatively free from the rampaging twins . . . commercialism and gargantuanism".

While business ideas may well have been healthy enough on their own home grounds, they act as detergents or disintegrants when they entered nonever heard and these are always meet with town council and the business territory. "When runaway business thinking began to swamp all jobs and professions" said the Professor, "then the meaningful and noble aspects of work were washed away, leaving only the drudgery and the opportunism behind. Such things will happen to people whose imaginations can conceive no more inspiring incentives than the carrot or the stick".

According to Professor Thomson, the most farm with 24 horse drawn equipment which occupied the glaring examples of misplaced commercialism are to ploughs. By 1925 entries had tent city set up on the grounds, be seen in the administration of our nurses and police- risen to 201 horse drawn horseshoe pitching and a large men. Police wages in this province have been for ploughs and 67 tractors. Today display of York County's famous years set by county court judges and assisted by the emphasis is on mechanical dairy herds were featured. All is honoured in the amount you | Early this past spring the the year's celebrations, expects | industrial rate setters. When, as has happened on moral" considerations, we should heed the warning CAVEAT EMPTOR. For in the long run we will get the police force we deserve; and we have no right to | ing used to turn a furrow. (Continued on Page 15)

Chameleon

The colours of milady's tresses Change now as often as her dresses. The gal who was brunette last week Is now a blonde, petite and sleek. Next week she may be henna, copper, Or other wondrous shades may top her, Until the dazzling tint that's hers Is what her gentleman prefers!

Robert D. Little

by Elizabeth Kelson Second Thoughts

by George Mayes Yesterday's news is not necessarily dead.

Gangland "canary" Joe Valachi is back in his cage again and, as they now say in the Cosa Nostra, "it could happen in the best of families".

In the big British mystery over who was going to be Prime Minister Macmillan's successor, it was quite a surprise to learn it was Lord Home. (This was one British mystery where the "Butler" didn't do it.)

Mystic lies about beer-ran the heading on a story from Richmond Hill court in which a Goodwood man, who describes himself as a mystic, was fined $100 for signing a false name to a beer purchase. The police testified he had 42 cases of beer and 13 Woodburn Thomson has two hobbies; skiing and | bottles of liquor, which at least proved he wasn't lying about being a "mystic"—defined as "one who aims to achieve spiritual ecstasy".

> Even The Telegram seems to be confused by the Star's "open-up look". A recent heading was set: School Board Meetin gs Must Be Open Or Else . .

And the Star itself is obviously in a mixed-up state with such headings as these on its BOOMTOWN METRO series:

100 immigrants a day swell city OUR TOWN — We're adding 50,000 people a year

When Davidee ET-54, who is a worried Eskimo up at Frobisher Bay, wrote Prime Minister Pearson about his fears of war, he received this reassuring reply: "You and your family can think about building your own future without worrying whether bombs may fall upon you."-Yes Davidee, keep cool. All you have to worry about is OUR Bomarcs.

Mme. Ngo Dinh Nhu has been quoted as making binations of qualities in a man. Some parts of the some pretty nasty remarks about the U.S. in her speeches—but hardly nasty enough to warrant the eggs and the booing she has been getting; unless, possibly, the papers have been reporting only all the "Nhus" that's fit to print.

> A schoolboy who thinks up a new way to cheat on a test is probably more creative than criminal according to a U.S. National Education Association report. And if this creativity can be channeled properly, they say, it would revolutionize teaching and learning processes . . . And income-tax returns.

> With the bilingual hysteria at the point where Real Caouette is demanding that CNR conductors wear "Conducteur" on their hat badges, it's encouraging for our side to see such items as these:

> (a) Professor Dale Thomson, of the University of Montreal, says Ottawa should be made a bilingual city by law. (This would be welcomed by those Ottawa citizens who now have to go over to Hull to hear English spoken.)

> (b) French-speaking members of Parliament were calling for Royal Canadian Mounted Police uniforms to have bilingual epaulets. (What's English

> Drought-desperate farmers in Southern Ontario were reported to be paying up to 10c a gallon for water. . . . Save your old ice cubes.

In Pears Gone By

Items gleaned from files of "The Liberal", the home paper of this district since 1878.

for themselves and their families, new homes and new fire-

Angus Cowieson of Roche's

RICHMOND HILL BIRTHPLACE OF THE INTERNATIONAL MATCH The successful conclusion of the 1963 International Ploughing Match last week at Caledon, recalls that the foundation for this match which this year was also the site of the world championship ploughing meet, was laid in Richmond Hill in 1910. In October 1927 the Internat- sides. ional Ploughing Match was held | Ideal weather on the Tuesday on the municipal (Toronto Jail) got the match off to a good farm at Langstaff. A special start with events for York edition of "The Liberal" featur- County ploughmen. Prominent ed the event in detail.

in the list of prize-winners on The editor noted that "for that day were names which are many years after the province still found in reports from the of Ontario was settled, plough- international shows. William ing matches were held in dif- Clark, Fred and Ed Timbers, ferent sections and nowhere David and Gardham Tran, were was there greater interest than winners of prizes in many sucin the townships of York Coun- cessive years, and they retainthe provincial association which longer actively competing. Durwas destined to grow to its pre- ing later years they have sent magnitude should have had coached younger men to ploughing championships. This year, its birth in this district.

"In 1910 a few enthusiastic 1963, found William Clark actmen met at Richmond Hill and ively participating in the inorganized the Ontario Plough- ternational contest, not as a ploughman, but as a judge. The first match under its Wednesday of the 1927 match auspices was held on Sunny- was rained out but the events brook Farm on the outskirts of scheduled for that day were run Toronto, in 1913, with but a off on Thursday and Friday few entries in the hand plough with the other events. More classes and one tractor. In 1914 than 100,000 visitors were rethe match was held on the same corded. Besides the exhibits of animals shown were registered A platform was specially con- and fully accredited Jerseys some drawn by oxen, still be- Thornhill, W. Haynes of Newmarket and Wilmot Bros. of "Through the agency of this Sharon.

Visitors to the match saw Point, Reg Wood of Aurora,

Bilingual Review Seeking Support

In a letter to "The Liberal", Claude P. Vigeant of London reports a group of young French-speaking Ontarians have started a little publication called

"La Revue Ontarienne". Mr. Vigeant said that at a time when everyone is talking about bilingualism, the group decided to do something positive with its monthly publication which intends to discuss topics of interest to all Canadians and at the same time, give Franco-Ontarians the opportunity to express themselves in a publication of their own.

There is only one Franco-Ontarian daily, the circulation of which goes mainly to Quebec and half a dozen weeklies.

"We are counting on French-Canadians and bilinqual English-Canadians to help get us started. The address for information is 390 Princess Avenue, London," Mr. Vigeant said.

MARKHAM : A bylaw was passed at Markham Village Council to provide for a vote with the elections this fall on a twoyear term for council. If approved, the two year term would commence January 1,

BUSINESSMEN'S Special Luncheon

Monday to Saturday 12 noon to 2:30 p.m. Special Rates For Wedding Receptions and Banquets

Sample Menu Sweet & sour Spare ribs, chicken chop suey & plain fried

Chicken mushroom and vegetables almond, chicken ball pineapple, plain fried rice $1.55

Soup or tomato juice, club steak (red brand), mashed potatoes & cole Banquet menu on request

YANGTZE PAGODA RESTAURANT FOR RESERVATIONS

SELLING YOUR HOME? "THE LIBERAL"

AV.5-4303-5-3036

WANT ADS AV. 5-3316

Richmond Hill, Ontario THE ATERIE

Phone TU. 4-1212

ENJOY SUNDAY MOVIES

THIS SUNDAY and EVERY SUNDAY Continuous From 5:30 p.m. Monday to Friday, 1st Show at 7 p.m. Saturdays at 6 p.m.

Matinee Saturday and Holidays at 2 p.m. Last Times Today, Thursday, Oct. 24

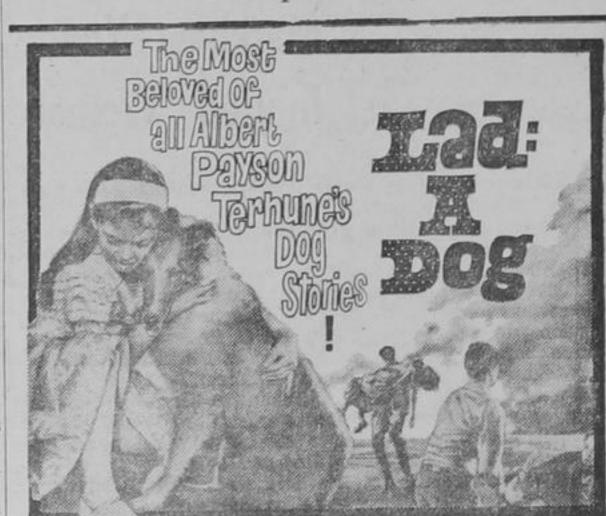

'That Touch Of Mink"

Bette Davis and Joan Crawford

Saturday Matinee, Oct. 26 2:00 p.m. Only

Recommended Adult Entertainment

ploughs over 100 years old Carl James and Porter Bros. of Lorentz by ILLE HOWERD and EXCEPT O MEETING AND AND ADDRESS OF THE RESIDENCE OF THE PROPERTY AND ADDRESS OF THE PROPERTY ADDRESS OF THE PROPERTY ADDRESS OF THE PROPERTY