Mrs. M. Poore is in charge of the women's work committee. Sewing and knitting is provided by volunteer workers. The Red Cross supplies the wool and the material. The finished articles are distributed to overseas relief, for local emergencies, outpost hospitals and disaster areas. Sewing and knitting volunteers are needed. If you would like to help in this way please contact Mrs. Poore by phoning 884-1824.

Miss Daisy Wright of Thornhill is in charge of the women's corps. The purpose of this committee is to see that there are available a group of trained and disciplined women to help the local branch and the Ontario division in various capacities.

Jane Welford of Willowdale is in charge of the Junior Red Cross committee. The Junior Red Cross is the largest youth organization in the world having more than 1,400,000 members. In Ontario, there are 20,000 members alone. This group whose unit of organization is the classroom has the support of the Department of Education and operates through the schools in the province. The funds raised by the organization is used to assist needy children at home and overseas.

The president of the high school Red Cross is Miss Vivien Ritchie, and the secretary is Miss Carol Noel. It offers help to the blood donor clinic and aids during financial campaigns.

As you can see, in the Red Cross, there is a place for just about everyone.

Report From Parliament

Parliament informed the House of Commons that one of the branches of the Canadian Legion was fined $225 for raffling a boat, motor and trailer valued at $1,800 at a dance last August. One problem which faces all clubs wanting to hold draws of this kind is the uncertain state of the law. A number of judges have held that if there is an element of skill and knowledge involved then the draw is not illegal. Thus, if a person is selected by chance, but must win a prize answer a question of skill, the draw may very well be legal and not contrary to the Criminal Code.

Other judges have said this is not so, and that "absurdly simple questions" requiring little skill would not change the form of a useful function in the hands of judges of Canada divided on the issue, there is no wonder that a problem exists.

ONE RECOMMENDATION
Therefore, one recommendation which I would like to make is that a service club take a test case to court to see just what the law is. If by asking a question of skill the draw can be legal, then the service clubs should be able to go ahead and sponsor their draws.

But that does not solve the problem completely. York County Council hit the nail on the head when they passed a motion recently. They said that "accredited service clubs perform a useful function in the community and for charitable purposes" and that their methods are "enthusiastically supported by the general public."

UNANIMOUS VOTE
Because of this, the York County Council unanimously passed a resolution requesting that the federal government amend the Criminal Code in respect of fund raising by accredited service clubs.

The action of county council was responsible and forthright. There is no doubt that many people in Canada and in our own community DO NOT feel that draws or lotteries should be legal. Nevertheless, there was a recent amendment to the Criminal Code so that agricultural fairs could legally sponsor games of chance. This is a special exemption for agricultural fairs, just as there is a special exemption for betting at race tracks.

MANY BILLS
I agree with the opinion of county council that accredited service clubs perform a valuable service with their draws, and that they, too, should have an exemption under the Criminal Code. There have been bills before Parliament, even in this session, on this question.

Recently there were many bills concerning interest rates and consumer credit; the government therefore set up a joint committee of the House and Senate on consumer credit to hold hearings, to discover law and opinion, so that the committee could make a recommendation for changes in the law to Parliament.

I believe that the government should appoint a special committee of Parliament to consider all the bills which have come before us: those on sweepstakes for hospitals, lotteries and bingo for service clubs and religious organizations, provincial lotteries for those desiring them. All of these have been the subject of recent bills.

I will seek the support of members of the government to establish this committee and I shall strive to see that justice is done for the service clubs of Canada.

FEDERAL-PROVINCIAL CONFERENCE
At the federal provincial conference which begins on November 25, it is understood that the whole question of provincial lotteries will be discussed. According to informants here the federal government has no interest in state lotteries and has no intention in moving for changes in the Criminal Code on its own account. Any decision will be dependent on the interest which the provinces display in the idea. What might be the result, is that if the provinces wish to legalize lotteries the Criminal Code could be amended to allow them in the province where they would become legal if they met with the approval of the provincial attorney general. Quebec and British Columbia are rumored to support this proposal, and it is reported that Premier Robarts of Ontario also favours changes in the sections of the code which now bans raffles and bingo as well as the larger sweepstakes and state lotteries.

Sincerely,
John Addison

and family life on the picturesque Gaspé coast are depicted through the story of Suzanne. Even when they are concerned with making a living, the fisher folk are portrayed with their inherent characteristics of gaiety, friendliness and a jolly spirit of play. The book is beautifully decorated with the author's paintings.

The Golden Phoenix, and other French-Canadian fairy tales by Marius Barbeau. Oxford, 1958. Three hundred years ago when the French colonists crossed the ocean to settle the shores of the lower St. Lawrence, they brought these stories with them. One generation told them to the next, until they became part of the spoken tradition of Canada. Michael Hornynsky has retold these tales in lively, humorous fashion which will delight any child.

The Black Joke by Farley Mowat, McClelland and Stewart, 1962. In the tradition of the classic pirate stories, Farley Mowat has written an excellent adventure story for teen-agers.
