No Hardy Boys Local Library

Children's book series such as the Hardy Boys, the Bobsey Twins and Nancy Drew are not included in the selection of children's books available at Richmond Hill Public Library, Chief Librarian Fred C. Israel, informed "The Liberal."
 "We agree with the critics of such books that they are 'trash,'" said Mr. Israel, "and do not feel that we should spend public monies on them, particularly when there are such numbers of worthwhile books available."
 Mr. Israel pointed out that in Richmond Hill, both in the schools and in the public library children may choose from a large selection of good literature.

These children's series books were severely criticized last week by Mrs. Margaret Beckman, librarian and member of the Waterloo Public Library Board, who called them "garbage" and maintained that they should be banned from school libraries.
 Educationists and writers in the area are divided in their opinions on the subject. Supporters of the series books claim children enjoy them, and from personal experience reading them does not prevent reading good books.

AURORA: Jack Chapman and Bert Graves were appointed members of Aurora Memorial Arena Board. Harold Morley, Earl Martin, Harold Matthews and A. K. Bennett were appointed 1964 members of the Aurora Parks Board.

Mothers March Monday

Disabled Needs, Success Outlined

Next Monday, about 300 marching mothers will be looking for lighted Richmond Hill porch lights as beacons to their 1964 one-hour campaign on behalf of the handicapped.
 They join 40,000 March of Dimes canvassers in Ontario and 100,000 in Canada seeking support for a need in society that has grown overwhelming.

In Richmond Hill, last year, the corps raised close to $3,500 in an hour.
 Last Thursday night, at the Church Street home of Mrs. Norman A. Todd this year's March of Dimes local chairman, group captains who will lead Monday's blitz were treated to an eye-opening, first-hand pep talk on the merits of the March of Dimes.

Guest was Wade Hampton, former top-knotch Canadian skier struck by polio in 1953 and now a consultant with the Rehabilitation Foundation and director of "Operation Reliance," the workshop for the handicapped started six years ago at Highways 400 and 401.
 Mr. Hampton, at whose workshop the disabled are working at hundreds of job contracts for major firms said, "It is the wrong attitude just to hire the handicapped. There is still the psychological block of healthy people to them. We are trying to prove the physically disabled aren't necessarily the occupationally disabled."

There are 10,000 rehabilitated people in Canada that would have cost the taxpayers $25,000,000 and who will earn through their jobs $65,000,000, he said.

 At "Operation Reliance," the staff turn-over (unlike any other firm) is welcomed because it means a person can go out and successfully hold his own in an ordinary job. "Last year, we had 60% turnover," Mr. Hampton said.
 Although polio victims are still a large percentage of the group being rehabilitated through the March of Dimes fund, other disabilities, major and minor are also part of the planned program.
 Rehabilitation is done by doctors' referral to the fund, through a case worker, clinical examination, therapeutic treatment or surgery, special equipment and jobs.

 There is a special housekeeping training program that has returned the disabled mother to her home where normally she would have to be institutionalized, he said.
 Mr. Hampton told the meeting a variety of colorful, poignant vignettes of some of the people working at "Operation Reliance" and how they have met the challenge of being handicapped.

Metro Police Ask For Court Ruling On 'Fanny'

The controversial novel "Fanny Hill" has made the news again when Metro morality detectives last weekend seized 2,000 copies under orders from county Judge W.A. Shepherd.
 Detectives were reported to have said every copy of the book, subtitled "Memoirs of a Woman of Pleasure," would be off the shelves of Metro bookstores shortly.
 Judge Shepherd has been asked for a ruling on the obscenity of the book by February 4 after police said their investigations of the novel began last week after numerous complaints about it had been received.

In Richmond Hill, where the novel first came into the public eye with the borrowing by Police Chief R.P. Robbins of several copies from Coles bookstore for general's office, the chief Monday had no comment on the further action.

And in London, Ontario, Police Inspector Leonard Elgie who was given one copy of the book seized from a downtown London store said London police weren't necessarily planning wholesale seizure of the novel.
 Owners of Coles stores, major distributor of the book, agreed to withdraw it from sale. Police said they also have orders to seize all copies from the Toronto firm publishing the book. According to Metro police, booksellers may continue to sell it but they may be charged if the February 4 ruling finds the book obscene.

 Sgt. of Detectives William Pilkington, acting Metro morality squad inspector, said booksellers in the past have always cooperated with police and refrained from selling similar books pending court action.
 "The trouble is some people have taken advantage of the publicity about the book from Richmond Hill and have flooded the Metro market with thousands of cheap paperbacks," he is quoted as saying.

The attorney-general's panel on obscene literature, after several days study of "Fanny," ruled November 26 it would not recommend its removal from bookshelves because any opinion might lead to extralegal suppression.
 Panel chairman David Coon, a Stouffville lawyer, said that if the novel were the subject of a court case, it may very well be ruled obscene.
 The panel also found it could be termed "historic, artistic and significant" as far as the period of English history (1747 or 1748) in which it was written was concerned.
 No copies of "Fanny" have been available in Richmond Hill since the chief took an undetermined number of copies from the rack early in November.

Two Drag Strips Haunt Markham Mind Now!

The drag-strip furore has lumbered back onto the Markham Township scene again but this time in more drags than one.

This developed Monday as township councillors heard an application for a second strip to be located in the area of Highway 7 in the eastern portion of the township. Applicant is A. Letke of Agincourt.

The first drag-strip came into the spotlight also as council passed licensing and regulating bylaws to allow the already okayed strip to operate only on Lot 19, Concession 7 of the township. Initial licensing fee is $500.

Continued opposition from Councillor Charles Hoover and Deputy-reeve Stewart Rumble who warned council it was "on dangerous ground in passing these two bylaws."

Councillor Hoover again pointed to advice from the township's solicitor stating the old bylaw should not be changed if the new one "gives a particular privilege to one party and not the general public. This is the case here," he contended.

Mr. Hoover went on to say that the new bylaw specifically gives the right to one person to operate in the township and as such could be ruled invalid if someone else wants to challenge it.

Deputy-reeve Rumble stressed "we are on very dangerous ground in passing this. I don't think we'd have but very little choice in granting a second license to another person wanting it."

Mr. Rumble commented it was also unfair to the drag-strip operators who stood to bear the brunt of expense if the present licensing bylaw was revoked. He added the bylaw could be changed almost immediately.

"Any bylaw can be changed," interjected Reeve Charles Hooper. "Some bylaws are not worth the paper they're written on if someone wants to contest them. We could have a bylaw one week and have it changed the next."

Council continued to wrangle for the next few minutes with Councillor Cleary Palmer commenting he thought they "were flogging a dead horse."

Reeve Hooper and Councillor Hoover were at slight odds at one point with the reeve opposed to the latter's reshaping of matters in relation to the first strip.

He felt the question should stick to the second application.

"Let's not go on acting like schoolboys," admonished Councillor Palmer. "Let him speak out."

Mr. Hoover did so then and a little later.

Reeve Hooper also said the application left him with the impression the strip would be located right on Highway 7 adding that "some other areas allow this."

Deputy-reeve Rumble said his interpretation was the strip would be adjacent to the highway - - - not on it.

It was finally decided to leave the application in the hands of council's committee.

GIMMICK

One of Ontario's oldest food clubs has resorted to a gimmick. Our investigation has turned up some of the facts.

OBJECTIVE

This firm operates from 350 Islington Avenue South and has a reputation. Their main objective seems to be to sell food and freezers.

ALL NEW MEMBERS QUALIFY!

However, it seems they are definitely on the prod for even more of the market, and are willing to go to almost any length to get it!

It appears that their gimmick is to give away a complete week's supply of food to those families who decide to participate in their plan by Feb. 8th, 1964. On checking with the Local Consumer Protection Agency it was found that their reputation was pretty fair. It is hard to believe that one can actually be money in pocket from the very first day, BUT because this programme is based on your NORMAL WEEK'S SHOPPING and NO DOWN PAYMENT IS NECESSARY, plus our gift to you of ONE WEEK'S SUPPLY OF FOOD (provided you act by FEBRUARY 8th, 1964) ... you are actually money in pocket by enrolling NOW!

"Holy Smokes! What a wonderful New Year offer for the whole family, -especially Mom!"

"Im sold!.... How about you?"
