

Rolph Davis Wins Waterloo Scholarship

Rolph Davis of King City, a graduate student at the University of Waterloo, has been named as the first winner of the new Frank H. Kortright Fellowship in Conservation. The announcement of the fellowship was made last week by Professor R. R. Krueger, chairman of the university's geography department.

The fellowship, valued at $1,000, is awarded by the Canadian Sportsmen's Show to a graduate student in geography and regional planning at the University of Waterloo. The student's major interest is to be in the area of conservation.

Mr. Davis is a graduate in geography from the University of Toronto and has completed a year of post-graduate study at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph. He worked for the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests at Rondeau Park last summer prior to registering for graduate work this past week at the University of Waterloo.

Training School Boys Pose Police Problem

Stouffville Police Department Chief Orland Keating reported at a recent meeting of the Stouffville Village Council that juvenile escapees from the St. John's Training School near Uxbridge have been giving the department a real problem.

During the past year, four car thefts in the town had been traced to escapees from the school. In a personal visit, he had seen little sign of control and was of the opinion that the boys could leave at any time.

At his recommendation, council passed a resolution requesting the Attorney General's Department to investigate security measures at the school.

Crimes of inmates of the institution range from incorrigibility to armed robbery.

Used Beer To Rest Feet Not Drink

A Toronto man who claimed he was using a case of beer as a foot rest on a trip home from Quebec August 23 had a liquor charge dismissed against him Tuesday.

Magistrate O. S. Hollinrake in Richmond Hill Court asked John Power, about 45, of Eglinton Avenue, to explain why Markham Police had charged him with having an open case in his truck.

Only one bottle was missing, court was told.

Power said he was asleep during part of the trip and didn't know the one beer was missing.

He said there were two people in the car and if he'd known the case was open, there would have been two beers missing, not one.
