

HAGGART BOWS OUT - PLAXTON IN

over abundance of low assessment homes and a shortage of high assessment homes. If we can attract the presidents and managers of industry to live in our town this could help industrial development.

He claimed there is need for economy both within and without council and that local improvements and drainage schemes should be installed if when and where people want them. He felt that centralization doesn't mean efficiency and that unless we get more for our tax dollars from the county level we are better off controlling our own services. "I live here, my children go to school here, I like this town and I feel I have a substantial stake in its future," he concluded.

DEPUTY-REEVE
Floyd Perkins

Also visibly moved by his acclamation to the deputy-reeve-ship Floyd Perkins, who has served on council for 12 years, promised "I'll work harder than ever during 1965 for the good of Richmond Hill and its people."

WARD 1 COUNCILLOR
Walter Seudts

Noting that the 1964 council had again held the line on what was once "our spiraling tax rate" despite a tax cut of a third of a mill and a forecasted healthy surplus, Walter Seudts reviewed the year's accomplishments and promised to continue to work to bring about improvements wanted and needed, and also to try to attract the much needed industrial assessment to pay for these improvements.

He enumerated as his objectives more parkland on both the east and west sides of town, actual construction of the Crosby farm which will clear up sewage backup problems in Ward 1 and make additional assessment possible, continue tree planting program started this year, and to have another year of progress without an increase in taxes.

Con Thompson

Contesting this seat for the second time Mr. Thompson, attacked Councillor Seudts for his stand on the controversial southwest plan and alleged failure to provide for engineering fees in the budget for work needed in Beverley Acres, his own ward. He tipped his hat to the incumbent for mastering the questionable art of telling people what they want to hear but cleverly concealing the whole truth, and pointed out the settlement with Bailey and Associates for $3,500 cost and the town $2,000 in legal fees and of the two lots received one is below minimum requirements and the other cannot be built on because of a water bed under it.

Mr. Thompson also dealt with proposed work on storm sewers and roads in Beverley Acres estimated at $1,080,000. He claimed that with subsidies the work would leave some $650,000 to be raised through taxes. This amount could be spread out over three or four years, he stated.

Eric George

The keynote of Eric George's speech was responsibility. Mr. George also is seeking this seat for the second year in a row. He feels it is the responsibility of all members to implement wishes of the taxpayers not to force unnecessary, unwanted and expensive improvements on them. Industry can be encouraged by easing zoning bylaws, he claimed. He also claimed that economy of operation could secure tax cuts and provide a full time town engineer. He stands for sidewalks on the main streets in subdivisions laid under a winter works program and solution of Beverley Acres drainage problems. He is against fluoridation and for a two-year term.

William Lazenby

Allencourt Pharmacy proprietor, William Lazenby, who is completing his first term on council and is standing for re-election, stated that he had tried to represent all ratepayers in town as well as in his own ward in his many decisions. He had served on the finance, transportation and industrial and development committees. The latter committee, of which he was chairman, had operated on a budget of $1,500 and had begun negotiations with the Ontario Government for senior citizens' housing.

He also reported his committee had entertained the industrialists to show them how much the town appreciates their contributions to its economy. Mr. Lazenby stated he was proud of the integrity of council. "I still do not intend to knock on doors," he stated. "But I will have a sympathetic ear for your problems. I hope my actions in 1964 have proven me worthy of your confidence."

Len Pugh

Real Estate Agent Len Pugh forecast a double increase in taxes next year, attributing this year's decrease to the fact the town had over-debentured. Industry is our only answer, he claimed. By offering incentive facilities and a good labor force we can attract industry to fill up the 107 acres of marketable and developable industrial land available within the town limits. He advocated this before going north to acquire more land for industrial purposes. Mr. Pugh stated that we do not need any more homes than we have because we can't service them. "Let us clean up our dirty shoes and promote industry in every possible way".

Basil Lismore

Seeking election for the first time Mr. Lismore stated he was in favor of the two year term and of fluoridation. He felt the first responsibility of a councillor was to look after the complaints of his own ward and to keep its ratepayers informed. He must also be a part of the town and only by all councillors working together can the town progress. "I intend to stay here and do what I can to make this a better place to live in" he concluded.

Mrs. Lois Hancey

The many improvements made to Ward 3 during 1964 are apparent and proof of the sincerity of promises made in last year's campaign Mrs. Lois Hancey told the ratepayers. She served on the welfare and procedure, the police, fire, transportation and swimming pool committees and on the board of the VON. She cautioned ratepayers to choose a council of unbiased clear-thinking decisive people who will consider the needs of the whole town not just a part of it and who realize the effects of their actions on everyone.

Answering a question from the floor Mrs. Hancey enumerated the things done in Ward 3 as a new park ready for seeding, a second park in Wards 1 and 3 to control high density development, sidewalk on Markham Road in front of apartment buildings for protection of children going to school, two weed cuttings, ditches on Cedar Avenue looked after, the creek into which the sewage treatment plant discharges cleaned up three times, offensive odor from the treatment plant eliminated, parking controlled near apartment building and schools, a bridge built giving access to Sussex Avenue park. "If this is nothing, I've wasted my year," Mrs. Hancey emphatically stated.

Thomas Murphy

Thomas Murphy, a real estate agent who served on council in 1963 claimed that Ward 3 was the forgotten and ignored section of town and charged that Mrs. Hancey had done nothing to alleviate the situation. He promised to give his support to the improvement of the industrial-residential assessment ratio, improvement of Yonge Street and additional park and recreational facilities for young and old. He also promised to support keeping taxes down. His decisions will be "yes man to nobody". He promised honest, fair, constructive government for the benefit of all residents particularly those in Ward 3.

Robert Saunders

Sitting Councillor Robert Saunders stated he was seeking re-election for the sole purpose of representing to the best of his ability every ratepayer in the town. He stated he does not have nor does he seek support of certain members of the Southwest Homeowner's Association. "These few have seen fit to misinterpret every move made by your council and every statement issued by members of council relative to the southwest project."

Councillor Saunders reported his salary to the end of the third quarter was $1,216 and estimates that by the end of the year it will be $1,430. Expense allowance to date amounts to $608. He concluded, "My moral standards are high, my intentions are sincere, my knowledge of municipal administration is broad. I am humble, I am understanding, I am patient and I am dedicated. These are the qualities I offer in seeking your support on December 5."

Eric Handbury

Coming from New Zealand to Canada four years ago, Mr. Handbury lived for two years in Vaughan Township before moving to Richmond Hill recently. He is a theatrical producer and experienced in municipal affairs in New Zealand. He said he and his family had chosen Richmond Hill as the place where they wanted to live after searching for three years. He said he had been closely involved in the fight against the "poorly conceived plan" of redevelopment in the southwest area. "I shall at all times represent the views and aspirations of the ratepayers on council and interpret council actions as they apply to Richmond Hill as a whole to my ward," he promised.

John MacDiarmid

Mr. MacDiarmid who has been defeated on several occasions in bids for public office will again seek the Ward 4 seat. At present he is serving on planning board. He served one term on Council in 1962.

Barbara Hryb was high for the ladies with 380 and husband Steve won for the men with his 339.

Mrs. Freda Dempster took top honors in the bridge marathon.

While the number of entries in the marathon was down from past years, the ladies were delighted to have an exceptionally large turnout for the progressive games which are held in conjunction with the marathon finals.

Approve Health Unit Expansion

York County Hospital Board has given its approval for a 10,000 square foot building on its Newmarket property to house a new county health unit.

The present unit with a staff of about 22 health nurses, two medical officers of health and clerical help is being squeezed out of the county building as various county services expand. Badly in need of space are Children's Aid Society and juvenile and family court facilities.

Board of Health Chairman Reeve E. J. Norris of Georgina told last Friday's county council meeting, the health unit will negotiate a long term lease with the hospital.

Since its location is to be on hospital grounds, the health unit will qualify for substantial grants from the senior government, up to about $17 per square foot.

The county will be responsible for all maintenance costs but there will be no other charges, he said.

Councillors approved the recommendation but all plans and specifications must come before them again before final go-ahead is given.

Boys' Club Suggested

At Hagerman's Corners

Markham Township Council was asked for their co-operation in the setting up of a boy's club at Hagerman's Corners at this week's council meeting.

Frank Oliver of Hagerman's Corners advised that he had a lot adjacent to his house and was willing to erect a building on it for this purpose. He stated that he himself was familiar with various types of machine operation and carpentry and would like to try and teach the boys some trades.

Councillors R. J. Sloane and Deputy-reeve Rumble thought the boys could learn trades at high school. Councillor Cleary Palmer suggested that Mr. Oliver should get in touch with the provincial government and get a permit to operate a trade school.

Mr. Oliver stated however that he didn't want a trade school but just to offer the boys something to occupy their time. "Instead of knocking over grave-stones." Although he would require financial assistance with the project, he didn't expect it would cost the township anything, Mr. Oliver said.
