Youth Doesn't Want Any Legal Advice, Magistrate Says No

A Richmond Hill youth who insisted he wanted no legal help as he faced charges of theft of cash and jewellery December 29 from two Yonge Street stores will have legal aid anyway.
 Magistrate O. S. Hollinrake equally as firmly insisted Tuesday that Neil Edward Malcolm, 19, appearing before him and wishing to proceed with his case, be given some legal advice since the charges were serious and carried stiff penalties if he was convicted.
 Malcolm at first refused any help and the magistrate said, "Whether you like it or not, I want the legal aid people to explain to you what the charges are and what's involved."
 He remanded the youth to today's court.
