It's Up To Stay! Canada's new flag may not become official until February 15, but so far as Bruno Tambosso, 30 Sussex Avenue, Richmond Hill, is concerned, it's official now. And it has been since January 21 when he first started flying it. Mr. Tambosso, who purchased the flag in Toronto, said nobody took much notice of it until he lowered it for Sir Winston Churchill's death. He ripped it and had to take it down for a couple of days to get repaired, and then everybody asked about it. Now that it's back up, however, he says the 3x6 foot flag is there to stay, "unless the wind knocks it down."

For the first time a Richmond Hill organized canvass will be held for the Ontario Heart Foundation on "Heart Sunday", February 14, between the hour of 1:30 and 3:30.

Councillor Eric Handbury has volunteered to be chairman of the door-todoor canvass and already has secured about 70 canvassers. He told "The Liberal" still more volunteers can be used and he will be happy to have them contact him at 884-6675.

The canvassers will receive cash donations at the door but, if you prefer, they will leave an envelope in which your contribution may be placed and forwarded to the treasurer at a later date.

The town has been divided into five areas - on the east side of Yonge Street from Elgin Mills to Crosby, Crosby to Markham, Markham to the south limits; on the west, from the northern limits to Mill Street and from Mill to the southern limits.

In the lower picture Robert Miller, chairman of organization and extension committee of York Summit District (left) is shown as he presented the group's charter to Ray Weeks. Mr. Miller was assisted by Ron Sculthorp, commissioner of York Summit, in presenting this charter. A general Cub assembly was introduced by Akela Ross Wood who gave an explanation of the "Jungle Ritual". Akela Stewart Coxford led the group in the "Grand Howl"

The Scout assembly, led by Scoutmaster Drummond Fraser, included a going-up ceremony and Scout investiture which involved three boys, Brian Whittingham, Clark Lemon and Tim McGhie. Afterwards there was a campfire with a sing song, followed by a very well produced skit, "Trigor Mortis, the Frontier Mortician". The skit was the brainchild of Rod Milligan and the cast was made up of members of the newly formed senior troop.
