Two Services Will Mark R.H. World Day - Prayer

This year, March 5 has been chosen as World Day of Prayer. Locally the service will take place at 2 p.m. in Richmond Hill United Church, sponsored by the Free Methodist Church, and at 8 p.m. in St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Richmond Hill East.

The World Day of Prayer is a child of the missionary movement; it was mothered by the Women's Missionary Societies of many churches on this continent and it was their missionaries who first carried the news of the observance overseas.

In 1887 the Women's Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian Church, USA instituted a day of prayer for home missions; two years later the Baptist Women's Board appointed a similar day of intercessions for foreign missions. In the succeeding years women of other communions began to share in these services. In 1919 these two observances were combined into a United Day of Prayer for Missions and the date chosen was the first Friday in Lent.

In Canada the pattern was strikingly similar. As early as 1895 the Women's Auxiliary of the Anglican Church designated St. Andrew's Day, as a day of corporate intercessions for missions. The Methodist Women's Board also appointed a similar day of prayer. It was, however, the Presbyterian women, following the institution of their annual day of prayer in 1916, who first caught the vision of a wider significance for these denominational days of prayer; a vision which led to the Canadian observance of the World Day of Prayer and formation of the Women's Inter-Church Council of Canada, which sponsors this observance.

The first service was held in Canada on January 9, 1920, and was called "Women's Interdenominational Day of Prayer for Missions." In the spring of 1921 the United Day of Prayer Committee in the United States invited the women of Canada to join with them in their Day of Prayer on the first Friday in Lent. This invitation was accepted.

The next chapter in the history of the World Day of Prayer is the story of its journey around the world. The ever widening circle of the observance was not the result of a highly organized promotional campaign; it just happened and this makes it somewhat of a miracle. Missionaries returning to their overseas fields of service and church women traveling abroad spoke of this United Day of Prayer and of the joy of sharing in its fellowship.

In 1927, at the request of interested women in other lands, it became in name, as it had become in fact, "The World Day of Prayer". In 1964 millions of women in 150 countries knelt together in prayer. In Canada last year 3,500 communities from Newfoundland to the Yukon observed the day.

The offering from hundreds of World Day of Prayer services across Canada makes possible substantial grants to a large number of organizations. Braille and talking books for the blind, hymn books for Formosa, Bible Society branches in many lands, and the World Council of Churches are just a few of the causes assisted. Some of the money stays in Canada to assist the Bible Society, the Committee of Friendly Relations with Overseas Students, Student Christian Movement, the Indian-Eskimo Association of Canada, and others. It also helps to make possible Bibles for New Canadians, and the printing and distribution of Christian literature in French, Finnish, Ukrainian, Hungarian and Italian languages. In 1964 the offering totalled $72,106!

Motorcycle Club Beer Drinkers Pay $400 Fines

Infractions under the Liquor Control Act resulted in fines totalling more than $400 for 11 members of the Vagabond Motorcycle Club, 8143 Yonge Street, when they appeared in magistrate's court last week. Charges against nine other members will be heard February 23.

The charges arose out of a joint raid against the newly-formed club by Markham and Vaughan Township Police, January 22, during the height of a beer-drinking party.

Police confiscated 86 full pints of beer, 44 empties, and arrested 24 guests, including 15 men and nine girls, some of whom tried to stage impromptu exits during the raid through back doors and rear windows.

During the court hearing, reasons given for being at the house on the night in question, ranged from seeing about "getting my motorcycle painted," to "having my ears pierced."

Of the 15 who appeared in court only one entered a guilty plea to any of the charges. He was Ronald Storey, 20, who resides at the Yonge Street club, and who was convicted of illegal possession of liquor and keeping liquor for sale.

A third charge of supplying liquors to minors was withdrawn.

Similar charges, however against club president, Edward Lesniewski, 25, and Stanley Lindsay, 25, both residents of the club, were withdrawn by Crown Attorney A. Armstrong.

Both Lesniewski and Storey, who wore beards during their entertainments, were clean shaven for this occasion.

No explanation for the withdrawals was given, although Magistrate O. S. Hollinrake told Storey he wondered if he might not be "taking the responsibility for the others."

Crown Attorney Armstrong had admitted there was no record of Storey having purchased any beer.

Storey, who faces a minimum term of two months in jail under the act was remanded to February 16 for a pre-sentence report.

Jorg Schneider, 20, of 8143 Yonge Street, who also was originally charged on the first three counts, had the charges against him withdrawn in favor of a reduced one of purchasing liquor under age.

Testimony revealed that Storey had helped Schneider carry the beer purchased by Schneider, into the house.

Of the remaining charges, four people were convicted of drinking while under age, three were convicted as found-ins, and two others were convicted of having liquor in a place other than a residence.

Three other charges of found-ins, including one against a juvenile, were dismissed.

Brian Hampson, Toronto, who is in hospital at present, was remanded to March 9. He is also charged with being a found-in.

Evidence presented by Constable Clifford Cox, of Markham Township Police, who observed most of the proceedings through a pair of binoculars from the upstairs window of a nearby house, showed that drinking was being carried out in most of the rooms, and beer was available to guests for a fee at the front of the house. Guests were required to toss their money on a counter set up for that purpose, he said.

Constable Cox said the house had been under observation for two weeks, and that during one of those weeks 504 pints of beer had been purchased for the house.

The night of the raid, he said, he had watched the various beer drinkers in action and had made notes on the clothes each was wearing, so he would be able to identify them again later in the evening.

When he checked the guests during the raid, he smelled their breath to see if they had been drinking. Constable Cox said, Sgt. Robert Hood, of Markham, who led the raid, confirmed the constable's evidence.

Those paying fines were: Eta Fields, 18 of Toronto, $33.50 for drinking under age—she said she had gone to the house to visit a friend; Ingrid Poehler, 16, Rexdale, $23.50, found in, had been listening to records and not drinking, she said; Tom Zlatas, 25, Rexdale, $33.50 for having liquor in a place other than a dwelling—arrested going out of the back window. Zlatas said he had gone to the house to see about making levers for some of the motorcycle clubs; Brian Leckie, 19, Rexdale, $33.50, drinking under age—denied he had had anything to drink; Thomas McDonald, Toronto, $33.50, liquor other than a residence—picked up by police in a car after the raid; Diane Sawyer, 16, Rexdale, $33.50—drinking under age, said she had gone to house to see girl friend about having her ears pierced; Lyman Oakes, Rexdale $33.50, found in—testified had gone to house to see about having his motorcycle painted; George Chiasson, 23, Toronto, $33.50, found-in—dropped glasses while fleeing from house, said he had gone there to see about selling a car; Susan Templeton, 19, 8143 Yonge Street, $63.50, drinking under age—convicted in 1964 for same offence.

New Flag Raised February 15 On Township Schools

A new Canadian flag of the design adopted by the Government of Canada has been supplied each school in the Vaughan Township School Area, it was reported at the board meeting Thursday night of last week.

The principals were asked to plan a suitable program for February 15 in the individual schools to mark this historic event and to familiarize the children with the symbolic significance of the design.

If the ceremony was conducted outside, the principals were asked to see that the children were warmly clothed and to keep the program brief.

Police Charge Local Motorist

A Richmond Hill resident has been charged with failing to yield the right of way following an accident at Yonge Street and Trayborn Drive, February 13. Charged was Gordon W. C. Smith, 68, of 62 Hunt Avenue.

Police said the Smith vehicle was proceeding south on Yonge Street when it was in collision with a car driven by Peeter Maru, 37, of Lake Wilcox. Maru was making a left turn off Trayborn onto Yonge at the time.

Willen Williams, 44, of Toronto, has been charged with failing to stop for a red light as a result of an accident, February 14, about 12:15 a.m.

The Williams' vehicle was in collision with a car driven by Daniel Laralbie, 19, of 406 Yonge Street, Richmond Hill, at Yonge Street and Crosby Avenue.

Damage to the two vehicles was about $50.

Television Will Never Replace Teacher—McIntyre

Despite the fact that television is playing an important part in the classroom, it will never displace the teacher, Richmond Hill Public School Superintendent Gordon McIntyre told the board Thursday of last week.

Mr. McIntyre made his comments during a discussion of the board regarding payment of its annual dues of $100 as an associate member in the Metropolitan Educational Television System.

The superintendent said there was one TV set in each of five schools, and that the school telecasts were geared to study for the Metropolitan and Ontario areas.

"These telecasts, like any lessons, vary from being almost useless to being the spark of some of the best lessons yet," said Mr. McIntyre.

He said that television was at its best when it brought something immediate and important to the classroom, such as the recent coverage of Sir Winston Churchill's funeral.

"However, education is still a two-way business," said Mr. McIntyre. "Television won't displace the teacher, because the only thing that gives good two-way communication is a good teacher and a class."

Last week the board also approved a salary schedule for principals, vice-principals and assistant principals, as recommended by the personnel committee.

Following are the recommendations: principal's salary, $9,300 minimum, $11,300 maximum for 15 rooms and under, $12,500 over 15 rooms effective September, 1965, with a regular $400 increment, plus a $400 adjustment; following that the annual increment shall be $500 to the new maximum.

Vice-principal's salary, $7,500 minimum, $9,200 maximum, with $500 annual increments, with the salary of the present vice-principal being increased to $8,500 in September, 1965. The allowance for the assistant principal is to remain unchanged.

In a report of the superintendent, it was shown that John Hincks, assistant principal at Walter Scott Public School, had received or made 462 calls during the year, having to do with the securing of or releasing of supply teachers, plus various other teaching situations.

He said there were 16 supply teachers on the list, and they had been hired a total of 337 times last season.

Mr. McIntyre described the assistant principal as "a dedicated young man," to whom calls from teachers wanting substitutes sometimes came in to his house as early as 6:40 a.m., although they were not to call until seven.

A recommendation of the superintendent that consideration be given to requesting York Central District High School Board to provide the services of a school psychologist, or psychiatrist on a fee basis in the budget for same, was referred to the planning committee for study.

The board also approved a recommendation that the annual Junior Red Cross campaign for funds in all classroom branches be sanctioned.

Trustee Stan McBeth was appointed to replace former Trustee James LeMoine, who has resigned, on York County Elementary School Trustees' Association.

Which came first, the teacher or the course?

Last week, Richmond Hill Public School Board found itself trying to decide that question after hearing Superintendent Gordon McIntyre's report of The Ontario Curriculum Institute.

The institute, which was set up to deal with the latest phases of education and to keep schools informed of the latest trends, had proposed that conversational French be started in grade three public schools.

However, board members were concerned with the lack of reasons given for the proposal.

"They haven't told us why, or for what purpose," said Mr. McIntyre.

Said Trustee Phyllis Hawkes: "In England, where there's no political or international interference, French is automatically second, then German next."

Mr. McIntyre said the institute's concern seemed to be with providing the right kind of teachers' course, without advising as to what form the French course itself should take.

A crash program had been set up last year to determine how quickly teachers could be taught to teach French, and assumed that boards wished to have French taught.

Board Chairman Walter Hutchinson suggested the crash program had been in the nature of research to see if teachers could be developed.

"What is it they are teaching people to teach?" asked Mr. McIntyre. "It seems to me they're coming in the back door."

He said the field of the institute was not in the field of teacher training, but in curriculum itself.

Vice-chairman Deena Simpson said she felt the board, which had been contemplating membership in the institute for 1965, should belong to it, but that a more definite outline of what courses were being considered, should be presented.

"I don't think we're getting the guidance we should," said Mrs. Simpson. "I think French would be ideal, but they're worrying about the teaching of it."

Trustee David Stephenson suggested the board ask the institute for its program for the coming year.

"Let them know we're not too sure we want to join," said Mr. Stephenson. "I think the reply we get will throw some light on it."

The board approved a motion by Chairman Hutchinson to send a letter of inquiry to the institute, along with a cheque for the coming year.

Membership is based at 10 cents a pupil, with about 3,500 pupils in the Richmond Hill system.

The board also moved to join the Ontario Educational Research Council at a fee of $50 annually.

Mr. McIntyre said the council was a reporting body, which didn't do research of its own, but kept other school boards aware of educational research being carried out in Ontario and occasionally throughout Canada.

Mrs. Toby Shore concluded her summary of area activities, describing them as steady and productive.

Junior auxiliaries provide the services of 42 volunteers. Reporting for all of the volunteers, Mrs. W. A. Smith stated that Mrs. R. J. Miller, director, had trained 175 members.

Mrs. H. R. Howden presided for the election of officers and the slate was accepted as read: honorary president, Mrs. S. Snively; honorary vice-president, Dr. Lillian Langstaff; past president, Mrs. R. J. Miller; president, Mrs. E. Redelmeier; 1st vice-president, Mrs. W. Pocknell; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. J. W. Robinson; 3rd vice-president, Mrs. G. Kelly; recording secretary, Mrs. W. A. Smith; corresponding secretary, Mrs. C. W. Stoddart; treasurer, Mrs. W. Kedwell.

Mrs. Miller installed the officers, asking them to affirm their dedication to the work and promises of their offices. Members were asked to stand and pledge their dedicated support to the auxiliary.

Mrs. Pocknell called on Mr. Storms for a message and in his usual breezy manner he established rapport between himself and audience. He said he sometimes walked through the hospital just for the pleasure of it. He commented on the pervading cleanliness and the cheerful atmosphere and added, "It doesn't even smell like a hospital."

A letter from the president, enroute to New Zealand was read by Mrs. Miller. She sent her greetings and regrets that she was not present and expressed her pride in the successful and dedicated work of the members.

Before adjournment Mrs. Pocknell acknowledged with gratitude the many contributors to successful work of the auxiliary, to Mr. Chatfield, the hospital board, the staff and the local press.

Proceeding the meeting a friendly social hour had been enjoyed over dessert and coffee house sold out by March 1. It under the supervision of the Allenbrae Branch Auxiliary.
