Has Johnny A Problem?

Is reading a problem in Richmond Hill public schools?

A group of parents apparently thinks so and plans to visit the public school board when it meets again April 22 to discuss the issue.

The board was notified of the group's intention by Vice-Chairman Deena Simpson at its meeting Thursday of last week. Mrs. Simpson said she didn't realize there was a reading problem, but the parents felt there was.

"We already have a motion to appoint a psychologist," said Superintendent Gordon McIntyre.

"For the trustees or the kids" asked Trustee David Stephenson.

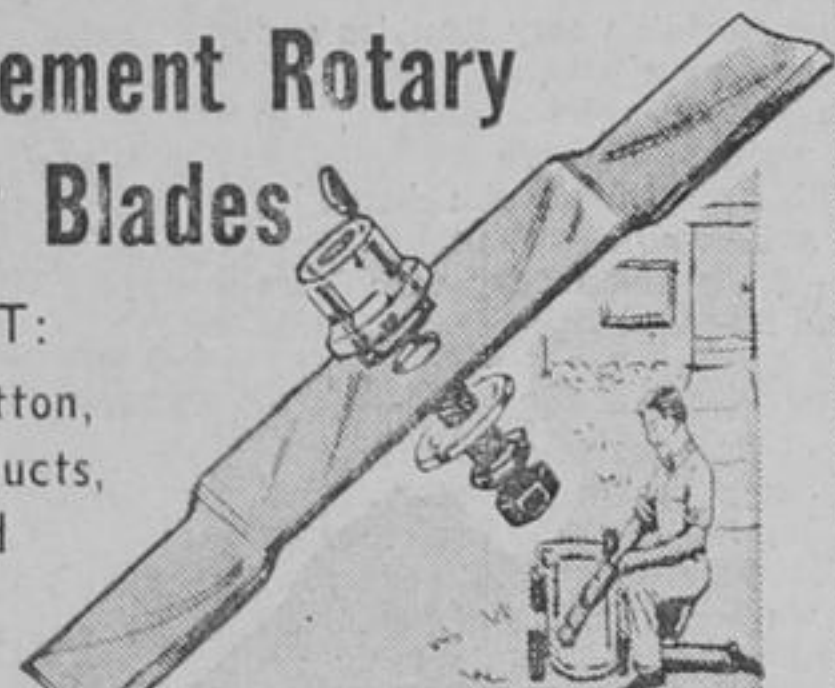

Chairman Walter Hutchinson said that where the problem was psychological, it wasn't a reading problem.

"To slough this off as a reading problem is all very imprecise," Mr. Hutchinson said. "The board is all too aware of the special services we would like to offer, but we haven't found a way to pay for them yet."

"I don't believe because Johnny can't read—to borrow a popular phrase—is necessarily the fault of the school system."
