Maple Trustees Plan New Lights And Sidewalks For Keele Street

One of the projects being undertaken by the Maple Village Trustees is the installation of street lights on the newly paved strip of Keele St. They will be modern type mercury vapour lights similar to those used in the CN Marshalling Yard. These are a special low glare lighting. The lights at the corners of the cross streets will be amber color, of the same type. The trustees have also undertaken to replace the sidewalks in that part of town with new wider ones. The nice part of these improvements is that they will be paid for by a tax surplus that the trustees have from the last two years. Another project given approval by the trustees is to bring water into Nor-Maple Park. The line will be extended from the end of Jackson St. to the edge of the park and this will enable the ice rink to be properly maintained. The trustees are also looking into the possibility of treating the three large elm trees in the park for Dutch Elm disease. Tests will be made to see if it is still possible to save them. If the tests are negative they will be given the new treatment for healthy trees. Residents can watch with interest the results of the experiment on these lovely old trees. The treatment will be carried out by the Richmond Tree Service, owned by Harold Van Dyke, whose wife is the former Joyce Keffer.

Mr. Spence indicated that his engineering details on the plant, the collector and trunk mains would be available to council shortly. Joint Sewage Plant Said Too Costly

In answer to a question by Councillor S. D. Kaiser at the September 7 meeting of Vaughan Township Council with respect to the report of a recommendation of the Ontario Water Resources Commission for a joint Maple-Pine Grove-Kleinburg sewage treatment plant which appeared in the September 2 issue of "The Liberal", it was revealed that the report had been in the Vaughan offices since August 26. Neither Reeve A. H. Rutherford or any members of council had any knowledge of the report or the recommendation. The recommendation was included in a lengthy report from the OWRC which Clerk J. M. McDonald described as "a report on an accumulation of problems in the township which have been referred to the health unit for years". Reeve Rutherford commented that some of the recommendations went back four years. It included the recommendation that the township should locate all outlets into storm sewers in Maple, as there is evidence that sewage is going into them at various points; that Maple residents with malfunctioning septic tanks should contact the health unit and carry out repairs suggested by them. The report also indicated that a water pollution survey had been made in Vaughan Township which indicates that while the main water courses have not deteriorated, they are being degraded at certain points, principally at Kleinburg, Pine Grove and Maple where polluting wastes are entering water courses. These three areas are all in need of communal sewage works, the report said and continued Jack could cause a deterioration of water courses. A joint sewage plant for these municipalities was recommended. Reeve Rutherford felt that the cost of such a joint plant would be prohibitive. Mr. McDonald suggested that it would be more logical to tie in with the Woodbridge sewage disposal system. When asked whether he did not consider that the recent provincial legislation with respect to provincial financing of water and sewage works was designed to help such areas to obtain necessary services, Reeve Rutherford replied that he felt it was meant for serving larger areas. "It would be foolish to have two or three different plants in Richmond Hill, Markham and Vaughan", he said. "An inland municipality like Richmond Hill can't be boxed in. It would be of interest to all concerned to have joint services." Mr. Rutherford also felt that such a subject would certainly be discussed at

Vaughan Issues "Cease & Desist" Order

In answer to a query by a Concord ratepayer, Vaughan Township Reeve A. H. Rutherford advised at the September 7 meeting of council that the new owner of the property at the southwest corner of Bathurst Street and Highway 7 had been told to "cease and desist" in the apparent creation of a storage depot for used lumber and wrecked cars on the property. A large amount of used lumber was reported already on the property and the fire department had been called to extinguish two fires. Councillor S. D. Kaiser questioned whether council could prevent a property owner storing things on his land. Deputy-clerk Ted Jackman advised however, that the owner was carrying on a business and manufacturing boxes from the used lumber. The land in question is zoned agricultural.

Renovation Of School Offices Cost $9,525

Total cost of renovating the administrative offices of Vaughan Township School Area was $9,525.23, it was reported at the board's meeting last week. Of this amount $7,402.73 was spent on materials and labor and $2,122.50 on furniture. This amount was well below the original estimates, it was reported. When last spring the board was asked to vacate the space they had occupied in the Vaughan Township Municipal Building since 1960, they undertook the renovation of the more than a century old original two-room Maple school building, which had been known for some years as the George Bailey Annex, to use as administrative offices. Use of the building for this purpose had been planned for some years.

No Date Set For Vaughan Inquest

No date has been set yet for an inquest into the death of Alfred Zeltens, 42, of Brampton, who was electrocuted last week while working on a road construction job near Kleinburg in Vaughan Township. However, police said an inquest would be held. Police said Zeltens was standing next to a truck when a diesel shovel either touched or came too close to a high tension line and sent 8,000 volts through him.
