The autumn community pot luck supper was held in Headford United Sunday school room October 8 with the usual sumptuous repast and two hours of noisy cheerful visiting. It was a pleasure to have Elizabeth and Gordon McMillan home, Mr. and Mrs. H. Acreman, Keswick, Mr. and Mrs. M. Acreman and Mr. H. C. Dunfield, Meadow Lake, Sask.

During the social period Mr. and Mrs. Acreman were presented with gifts, a laundry hamper, large glass bowl and a silver spoon for Mary. The Acremans moved to Don Mills Road in August.

Communion service was held Thanksgiving Sunday in Headford. A harvest arrangement of fruit and vegetables decorated the table at the entrance to the sanctuary and at the chancel a level arrangement of autumn flowers and harvest fruits, placed there by Mrs. George Barker.

Canada's Diet

Thanksgiving days, Sunday and Monday were celebrated by family gatherings and no table suffered what an American writer called, "Canada's basic diet." Round the World Cook Book by Myra Waldo published by Bantam, offers this surprising information.

"The basic items of Canadian diet are few and simple: potatoes, homemade bread and maple syrup. Canadians are exceedingly fond of potatoes and they eat enormous quantities of them prepared in countless ways.

"Dainty, thin slices of pale white bread would not be appreciated in this hardy country; instead there is a demand for large loaves of home-style bread, hot and delicious. Even city dwellers will not accept anything but the country style bread.

The national sweet tooth inclines toward maple syrup and large amounts of it are used for sweetening practically everything.

But there is much more to Canadian food, such specialties as their famous pea soup, the locally made cheeses and ales, tourtiere (the national pie) and grand-peres (a maple syrup dessert).

In the western part of the nation, game, such as duck, geese, venison, bear, rabbit play an important part in the diet.

Challenge OF Cancer

PROGRESS OF RESEARCH CHEMOTHERAPY: continued search for new and more effective chemo-therapeutic agents. There is hope that one or more of the many drugs being used for treatment studies may be capable of inducing a cure.

Your Legion Reports

Branch 375, Royal Canadian Legion

By Eric Chapman - 884-0045

Probably the hardest part of providing this weekly column of Legion news is the gathering of the facts. The news you read each week is gleaned from a variety of sources, and is the result of personal inquiries, numerous telephone calls, and being in certain places at certain times. Sometimes some of the interesting items escape because one finds it impossible to be in all of the places all of the time. The occasions when a written report is received are rare, and it is therefore appreciated when such a report comes to hand. And even more so when the writer has obviously taken the trouble to write his own report "good enough for copy. The following is by Junior Legionnaires and cub reporter, Rick Sinclair.

The first fall general meeting of the Junior Legion was held September 30 in the downstairs room. Although the turnout was not as good as expected, concrete suggestions were made for the coming year.

The new president, Andy Lewis, succeeds Rick Smith who recently retired. Andy shows a knack for this difficult job and the Junior Legion has high expectations for the future under his leadership.

In discussion of objectives for the coming year, publicity, economy, and increased participation by the general members was highlighted. An enthusiastic executive committee is already working on the suggestion for a weekly "recreation night" and a meeting has been planned for this Thursday to start the promotional ball rolling.

Anyone wishing to become a member, or who would like information, should contact Andy Lewis at 884-1495 or Rick Sinclair at 884-2387 after 6 pm. Meetings will be held for members and prospective new members at Legion Court (downstairs room) every Thursday evening until further notice.

The Junior Legion is an organization open to all local young men between the ages of 14 and 20. It is operated under the by-laws of the Royal Canadian Legion and run entirely by its own elected members. A committee of senior Legion members advises and guides the juniors to some extent, and this committee is presently in need of assistance. Any Legion member that feels he (or she) may have something to offer towards the future of this organization is requested to come forward. The Legion recognizes, as must we all, that it is from among these young people that the future leaders of Canada will be drawn.

The ladies auxiliary report that euchre will be played at Legion Court beginning 8 pm next Tuesday.

Zone Commander and Auxiliary Member Gloria Sanford, reports the auxiliary's birthday show is being rehearsed for staging on November 14. She also reports that a recent rehearsal held at the legion court was inadvertently wired up to the microphone system and was broadcast live and impromptu in the club room. The club room was thereupon cleared of all members.

The Legion film board reports two films will be shown next Wednesday at Legion Court beginning 8 pm. The films are "The Battle of Cassino," and "The Olympics". Admission is free.

Readers may recall the story of the lost spectacles told in this column recently. The story concerned the visit by Comrade Bill Wright to Sherwood Forest in Nottinghamshire, England, where he lost his spectacles. Through a set of coincidences unknown to Comrade Bill, the spectacles were returned to Richmond Hill.

Last Friday in the Maple Leaf Room at Legion Court our 75-year-old, short, bespectacled veteran of a forest sojourn was presented with his glasses. The surprise party that gathered for the occasion included 16 of the Wright family from Willowdale. Bill seemed very surprised and happy with the events, and said his glasses had probably dropped off the end of his nose when he saw a stunning figure in the form of Maid Marion in Sherwood Forest. His travels also included a trip to Blackpool where he visited a British Legion branch and was presented with a Legion jacket.

Another presentation he received was a gigantic stick of Blackpool rock, four inches in diameter and three feet long, which of course he was not in the habit of carrying around, and was therefore not displayed last Friday.

Later, the party, and most of the inhabitants of the Maple Leaf Room retired to the club room, being attracted by the sound of a set of drums and other music emanating from the Friday free and easy. The "Gene Krupa" of the evening, the man with a beat that resounded and boomed and almost rocked all of the past presidents' pictures off the wall, was identified as Gord Stewart. He was ably assisted by Pianist Terry Whelan, and his fiddlers two, Frank Barrott and Leo Gehan.

Comrade Barrott plays a very good fiddle, and his rendering of Rimsky Korsakov played somewhat in the style of another famous violinist, Jack Benny, would certainly have been appreciated by Comrade Rimsky if he hadn't already been a member of another Legion branch. Comrade Barrott was requested to play recently at the ball following the fall Legion meeting in Penetang, where once again Branch 375 walked off with the attendance award.

It is unfortunate that the Legion make no awards for talented fiddlers; however they do have awards for talented presidents.

Meanwhile back at the court, Comrade Leo Gehan fiddled "The Crooked Hornpipe" and the "Irish Washerwoman," and was jauntily received by some of our more sprightly and avid square dance enthusiasts. Two singers, Comrades Bill McLean and Lyn Tucker enlivened the voices of all present in singing all the old songs, and Comrade Wally Smerciak, an able MC and referee, made sure that everything proceeded as usual, according to Wally.
