Senior Citizens Services $12,200

A secondary plan to extend services to the proposed senior citizen housing project in Richmond Hill will cost an estimated $12,200.

Town council received and accepted this plan Monday night from its engineering department and later announced it would hold a joint meeting November 2 with Ontario Housing Corporation to further discuss the project.

The OHC plans to erect a four-storey elevator apartment containing 33 bachelor suites and 22 one-bedroom suites for a total of 55 units.

Tentative locale of the building will be on the Dufferin Street extension at the end of Church Street. The corporation has an option on that portion of land owned by H. J. Mills Ltd., rose growers.

Dye Feels NDP Party Has A "Good Chance"

Ralph Dye, the Richmond Hill High School vice-principal, who is NDP candidate for Toronto Parkdale riding, said recently he feels there is a "definite disillusionment with the Liberals" and chances for his own party are good.

"It's a wide open situation," he said.

In the 1963 election, the NDP was only 770 votes behind the Tories with 5,538.

A long-time Labor Party worker in his native England, Mr. Dye says he is stressing the positive aspects of NDP policy, "particularly our economic and social planning for this age of automation."

Parkdale was a Tory stronghold for 28 straight years to 1949 when it sent a Liberal to Ottawa. The Tories captured it again in 1953-58 and swung back to the Liberals in 1962.
