BAYVIEW SCHOLARSHIP WINNERS PAUL WILSON, BARBARA LOWENS, BEVERLEY ANN EVERARD

Bayview's Fifth Annual Commencement

Nostalgia and a young lady by name of Barbara Lowens stole the show at the fifth annual Bayview Secondary School Commencement October 29. And it was Miss Lowens invoking the nostalgia with her valedictory address as well as walking off with the majority of awards.

Special guest speaker was A. P. Gordon, B.A., registrar of the University of Waterloo.

Miss Lowens received the York University Governor's Scholarship, York University Entrance Scholarship, the Ontario Scholarship (she was one of two others to be so recognized), the York Central District High School Board Award for General Proficiency, the Principal's Award, the Florence E. Luke Award, and the Department of Education History Award.

In her address Miss Lowens dwelled on the newness of the five year old school noting that she had also just completed five years of sharing the educational traditions it was building.

"From the outside," she said, "anyone can see how Bayview has been physically changing and growing. From a comparatively small number of students living on borrowed-time in Richmond Hill High it has developed into a large, modern secondary school with hundreds of students in a variety of courses.

"But as a first wave of pure-blooded Bayviewites we feel more closely than anyone else the dynamic way in which this school has been gaining in independence and maturity," she said.

Miss Lowens traced the early adventures in the new school out of which developed a school with students forming a series of clubs and organization that emphasized it.

She also paid tribute to the school's academic program and the teachers who made it function so successfully.

"Not only do we owe them a great deal for their guidance in class and clubs," she said, "but it was also due to their interest that few students felt like mere faces in the crowd even though the physical size of the school was expanding so rapidly.

"I take this opportunity to recognize the contribution our teachers and principals have made in inspiring a genuine desire for continuing our education and training."

Mr. Gordon urged each student to concentrate on making the world the "best world for you" in this way you make it the best possible one for those around you.

"We want to live in a 'you' world," he said, "and not a 'they' world with someone else doing all the work."

He told the graduating students to develop their native abilities as well as maintaining the desire to succeed in the technical world confronting them.

"Most failures in the world," he concluded, "lack the goals not the abilities."

Principal William McPhedran congratulated those graduating and noted that the school had produced three Ontario scholars last term where it had previously only produced one.

He pointed out that two thirds of the graduating class were going on to higher education while the other third would be entering industry which is a different form of education in this technological age.

Other major awards and their winners: grade 13 — Beverley Everard, York University Entrance Scholarship; Ontario Scholarship; Ontario Canadian Legion, Two Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 375 Awards; Paul Wilson, Ontario Scholarship; Students' Council Award for General Proficiency and citizenship, mathematical association of America and Society of Actuaries Award; Ellen Derry, Provincial Bursary; Federated Women Teachers, Bursary; Miss Annie Eubank Memorial Award; Wayne Everett, Provincial Bursary; IODE Award; Marilyn Doner, Toronto East General Entrance Scholarship; Robert MacLean, Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 375 Award; Pat Oxley, Dr. Cairns Prize for History; Roger Touw, Richmond Hill Engineers' Wives Bursary.
