and School Association Monday evening. Director of the psychiatric services, York County Hospital, Newmarket, Dr. Hughes spoke on "Understanding Our Children".

Noting that psychiatric application to children's problems is a development of the last 25 years and in Ontario of the last 10 years, Dr. Hughes stated it has only begun to grapple with the problems and has not yet come up with a panacea.

However, he reported that there are some things about behavior which are fairly well established in principle if you have understanding. All behavior is motivated, has a reason, he stated. In some cases it may be undiscovered and in others it cannot be removed.

Motivation comes in general from people's attempts to make themselves more comfortable. "If you want to control behavior you must excel in understanding of its motivation. What we do about behavior problems has a terrific part to play", he continued. Speaking as a parent of four children, "and I can't understand them", Dr. Hughes cautioned that a parent needs to be flexible about decisions about motivation. "All training depends on the fact that acceptable behavior must be developed from a very early age, and made important to the child", he told the parents.

"Be flexible, be thoughtful, be ready to stop or change your methods", he urged. "If a problem develops, try the simple method first. Ask that it be stopped, insist that it be stopped, and if this fails, look for the motive", was his advice, "rather than jumping up and down on the offender, as I would like to do".

The speaker admitted he often used physical punishment on his own children. "It's main benefit is that it releases my anger", he said, "and let's the child know he is not pleasing me. Because he wants to please me, it may be effective".

During the question and answer period, Dr. Hughes said he felt front-runners should have a lot of attention in our educational program, "at least as much as slow learners, which they don't". "The world needs the abilities of these front-runners".

Enjoy Delicious Variety At Smorgasbord

Among the many patrons of the annual smorgasbord dinner held at Brown's Corners United Church in November were Mr. and Mrs. Ewart Stiver, well-known residents of Unionville. The Stivers are pictured above as they chose from the many delicious varieties of food offered by the women of the church.

Mr. Hancey said consideration must be given to the future of the town's young people stating "there is a shortage of recreational facilities and of qualified personnel to guide these young people".

Mr. Murphy stressed the need for more industrial-commercial assessment pointing to recent figures which showed it "was down about $1,200,000 last year. Industrial assessment in the neighboring municipalities has increased, why not here?"

Mr. MacDiarmid stated "side-walk construction on school routes remains a top priority in Ward 4".

"New industrial assessment is needed but the major function of the town as a residential and commercial centre will remain unchanged. Therefore costs must be kept in line with income".

Mr. Saunders said he had "strong financial and administrative background and I will apply this toward working conscientiously on your behalf to the best of my ability".

Mr. Huntley plumped for the need to control the steadily increasing tax rate by sensible action and by attracting new industry.

"This drop in industrial and commercial building", he said, "seems to me a sign of some lagging in the field of promoting Richmond Hill as an ideal site for industry".

He also promised to do his best to reach an agreement with Markham Township to get "the rest of Elgin Mills Sideroad East paved. This situation", he said, "as it stands is ridiculous and should have been corrected when the paving was done from Newkirk to Yonge".

Mr. Mansbridge said he would endeavor to initiate the "removal of ditches in our ward thereby removing the hazards to our children and also ensuring that storm sewers are installed so that residents of Ward I will not be faced with sewage back-up". The residents, he said, should be presented with the costs for their approval or disapproval.

Mr. George said he would like to see the ditches in his ward lined with asphalt instead of being sodded to "cut down on maintenance costs" and said he would be in favour of annexing land north of Elgin Mills Sideroad East which was ideal for industrial expansion.

Mr. Thompson promised to work toward stabilizing the tax dollar increase on schools while making sure that the proper education is available for the children.

Mr. Lazenby related his efforts as chairman of the Personnel, Welfare and Procedure Committee in helping to arrange the establishment of the Senior Citizens Housing Project "after two years of red tape". "The 55-suite building will be a reality in 1966".

rial growth to ensure an orderly future. "We must plan today for tomorrow", he said.

Mr. Wortman called for sweeping changes in the curriculum "that are affecting every subject not only in the content of courses but also in the sparseness of the hour teaching methods".

He also stressed the need for increased co-ordination with other school boards in the area "in establishing specialized service".

Mr. Binkley and Mr. Stanley echoing similar sentiments.

There were four speakers in the school board bracket - all of whom were not only in the content of courses but also in the sparseness of the hour teaching methods".

Mr. Knott promised to continue to do his best for the rate-payers in the two year term.
