

Summer Scene

By CATHY WILSON

Hi! For the next ten weeks or so, while Ian McAlister is vacationing from newspaper land, I've joined "The Liberal" staff to keep all you of the high school and college crowd posted on what's happening this summer in the Hill . . . in other words the "Summer Scene".

Each week in this space you will find the profile of an individual or group of individuals living, attending school and working in Richmond Hill. The object of this profile is to help everyone in the Hill to become acquainted with the responsible, energetic young people who are a big contributing factor in this community.

However, the format of this column will not be strict. Occasionally, if I feel very strongly about a subject, I may slip into the editorial style used often by Ian in "Perspective"; or take a poll of teenage views on a question pertinent to the society in which we live, or current events. If you, yourself, have any suggestions about people whose "profile" you would like to see, or a question which you consider of interest to youth, I would appreciate it very much if you would scribble them down and address them to me, care of "The Liberal", 63 Yonge St. South.

Now, so that I shall not remain completely anonymous to you, the very important reader, I would like to sketch in a quick profile of myself:

As is the case with most people, I was BORN a Canadian, in England, seventeen years ago to be approximate. I spent my younger years in New York and later Niagara Falls, Ontario, moving to Richmond Hill when I was eight years old. My life here has been spent peacefully (or not so peacefully at times) living with my family and attending school in Richmond Hill.

As to my writing career its beginning coincided with my conquest of the alphabet in grade 1. My first major work, "The Witch of The Blue River," written when I was nine, never made the best-seller list, and in fact never saw the inside of a publishing house; and subsequent stories, mainly about Christmas and cats were printed, but by no means indelibly, in my own little black story-book.

Since these stories, I have confined myself to English assignments and my own scribbles which I hope no one will ever be unfortunate enough to read. But in the next few weeks I hope to prove to you that at least some of my word concoctions are digestible.

Police Accident Report

Rain, Unknown Cars Cause Of Four Pileups

Saturday night's heavy rainfall was blamed for two accidents in Vaughan Township, while unknown cars were blamed for two in Richmond Hill.

In the first one, $250 damage was done to cars driven by Sonja Hornstein, RR 3, King City, and Robert Tindal, 132 Pemberton Road, Richvale, when they were in collision on Bathurst Street, south of Maple Road.

In the second one, Wayne Taylor, Lot 20, Concession 6, Vaughan Township, told police he lost control of his car in the rain while driving on Langstaff Road, east of Keele Street, and ran into the ditch.

Damage to his car was estimated at $225.

A motorist, who claimed he was cut off by another motorist, had his new car damaged in the amount of $1,000 when he ran into a light standard on Elgin Mills Sideroad East at Bluegrass Boulevard June 23.

Richmond Hill Police said the car, driven by Terrence Shannon, Don Mills, left a skid mark of 280 feet before hitting the post.

Conservation Projects In The Area Visited

Representatives of Richmond Hill, Vaughan, Markham, King and Whitchurch Townships, with other member municipalities of Metro Conservation Authority were taken on a tour of authority projects June 16.

Travelling by bus they visited:

- Lower Don area (Taylor Creek Park) to view the flood plain land and channel improvements.
- York Mills channel to inspect progress of channel construction. En route, they viewed the site of the Ontario Government's Museum of Science and Technology on Don Mills Road.
- Milne Dam site to see the reservoir area and initial stages of dam construction.
- Bruce's Mill Conservation Area to inspect recreational facilities and have lunch.
- Albion Hills Conservation Area to visit the conservation school and farm, and view stream improvements, recreation facilities, Humber Forest and reforestation measures.
- Clairville area to look at reservoir, dam and road alterations.
