Preparations are being made by the Richmond Hill South Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses to attend the "Disciple-Making" Bible Seminar, to be held at the Civic Auditorium, Oshawa, from August 10-13.
 William Yacos, presiding minister, stated that all are looking forward to the Bible instruction. Among the local group attending will be George Curtis, 8929 Bayview Ave., Thornhill.
 According to Mr. Yacos, Mr. Curtis is the oldest member of the congregation, being 80 years old. Mr. Curtis has spent 50 years of his life pursuing the ministry as one of Jehovah's Witnesses; with many of those years spent in Thornhill. "All of Jehovah's Witnesses continue to learn how to improve their ministerial activity," Yacos said, "so Mr. Curtis will profit immensely from the educational program."
 In addition to the varied educational discourses and dramatizations, the convention will also conduct a baptism of new ministers on August 11. Baptism constitutes ordination for Jehovah's Witnesses," Yacos said.

Metro-Vaughan Dump Hearing
 greater detail as to the cost of finishing this or any other site."
 When Clark stated that that was what he would expect, McCullum continued, "I suggest that whether anyone will ever see that golf course will depend on the possible benefits of some long-in-the future course."
 Clark denied this, but was finally forced to admit that he had no "authority" from Metro Council to promise residents of Vaughan Township that there would, in fact, be a golf course on the site. He did not deal directly with the council, he advised, but with the Metro Works Committee and he had shown committee members the map as one of the proposals he was making to Vaughan.
 When questioned by McCullum as to whether or not the works committee had authorized him to offer a golf course, OMB Chairman J. A. Kennedy who was presiding at the hearing interrupted to query whether a committee of any council could ever authorize anything itself and it was agreed that such a committee could not.
 Mr. Clark finally admitted that "no precise approval has been given" to the golf course which had been much enlarged upon as an asset to the area and the township generally.
 In similar fashion, by relentless questioning and insistence on positive and specific answers to his questions, Mr. McCullum drew from Mr. Clark the admission that there had been no particular studies or surveys carried out in the design of the small lake shown on the site, diversion of the damming up and formation of Rainbow Creek which presently bisects the site, running south from almost the centre of the property right down to the CN right-of-way where it has previously been diverted to run east into the Humber.
 Ripping off part of an overlay on the map, McCullum revealed that the original map had shown a much larger lake and asked why it had been made smaller. Clark replied because the smaller lake would require less protection from surface water (possibly polluted by garbage) going into it. He had previously stated that the lake had been included in the first place for aesthetic considerations but also because its presence would mean a shallower ditch would be needed to divert the creek if the lake were constructed.
 However, Mr. McCullum's further questioning about the lake on Tuesday brought the hearing to a surprising denouement.
 In asking whether or not Metro Conservation Authority had approved both the lake or the entire project, Clark was finally forced to admit that such approval had not been given.
 At this point, Mr. Kennedy intervened to question whether Metro had any authority to appropriate the site or require the hearing at all without this approval.
 The query threw both sides into a quandry and the hearing was adjourned to Wednesday morning so the question could be decided and whether or not the hearing should continue.
 Before the adjournment however, Mr. McCullum had obtained from Clark the damaging admission that when the site was completely filled, trees wouldn't grow "too well" on it.
 Much time had been spent Monday when Mr. Clark was being questioned by Mr. Mace, extolling the benefit township residents would obtain from the landscaping and permanent "open space" created.

Summer Scene
 By CATHY WILSON
 Among the most energetic young people working this summer are the counsellors at Richildaca Day Camp established over ten years ago by Bill Babcock, head of the Physical Education Department of Richmond Hill High School. Recently I spent a day with Cathy Bowman of 194 Mill Street watching the camp program in action.
 Cathy, who was born in London, Ontario in 1950 and has lived in Richmond Hill for six years is a senior counsellor in her second year at Richildaca. Each morning at about 8.15 she boards a bus full of excited, laughing, talking children, and travels the fast fifteen miles northwest of Richmond Hill to the campsite just off Jane Street in King Township. Her day then consists of nine different periods of exercise and activity with a dozen ten and eleven year old girls.
 The morning, of first swimming lessons in the pool, classes of first aid instruction in the tree fort, and camp-craft at the old campsite is followed by a lunch of sandwiches and milk at a picnic table or in the cooler tent. Once every two weeks there is a cook-out lunch, at which each child can eat her fill of hamburgers cooked over a camp fire and roasted marshmallows.
 Lunch is followed by a refreshing splash in the creek on the rope-swing, and then Cathy herds her young charges off to the pond to instruct them in canoeing. This usually results in the riotous fun of tipping the canoes so that the souealing children (who are almost all taking Red Cross Senior Swimming) can cool off even more as the sun gets hotter. Back to the woods and the tree fort, and Cathy takes a breather as one of her two counsellors in training gives a lecture on knots and lashing.
 Finally, the day ends at 3.30, most days with a council ring where "Mr. B" as he is affectionately known by the counsellors, and his very able assistant Kel Tonner discuss parents' rights, overnight camping and general conduct.
 If it sounds to you as though Cathy Bowman has a busy summer vacation, her school days are just as full. Next year Cathy will be in grade 13 at Richmond Hill High School and she holds the double-barrelled position of vice-president of the students' council and chairman of the dance committee. After high school Cathy hopes to take courses in physiotherapy at McGill University in Montreal.
 About her job as a counsellor, Cathy remarked, "Patience... you've got to have patience... and endurance, but I feel, that for me this is very good experience, as I hope eventually to work with disabled children."
 And it certainly does take patience and more patience to exercise a disabled child slowly back to health.
 (Cathy Wilson is a secondary school student residing in Richmond Hill)

Rhythm Combo For Church Service
 A unique service of worship using modern music and language will be held under summer skies at Little Hills Farm, near King City, this Sunday, at 7:30 p.m. The interdenominational service is in memory of the early pioneers who worshipped God under the open air.
 A swinging rhythm 'n blues combo will provide the music for the service, conducted by Teen and Twenty Chapel, a contemporary youth ministry of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. Afterwards there's a giant outdoor coffee house, featuring the band and folk singers.
 Little Hills Farm is the home of Emil Schilder, a chartered accountant, who is sponsoring the service. The property is set on 10 acres in beautiful King Township. It is one of the highest spots in the area, offering an impressive view of the countryside. Between the gently sloping sides of two hills is a natural amphitheatre ideally suited for a large crowd.
 Mr. Schilder says that "through the language of today and with the rhythm and beat of modern music, we will faithfully offer the fruits of our fathers, through which God has built a country overflowing with the richness of its resources and produce."
 He suggests that you bring a garden chair, unless you wish to sit on the grass. Outdoors sports clothing is suggested. And come early, you may have to walk a few minutes from where you park. (In case of rain after 6 pm the service will be held in Thornhill Presbyterian Church.)
 Little Hills Farm is located five miles west of Aurora, on old Aurora Sideroad, between Keele and Jane Streets.
 Teen and Twenty Chapel has travelled extensively, mostly in Ontario, for the past 2 1/2 years, conducting services in churches of various denominations. They go monthly to Thornhill Presbyterian Church during the winter months, and have also been to King City United Church and Richmond Hill Presbyterian Church. The chapel has produced two recordings, appeared on TV and at Expo 67.
 Come and worship, commemorating the past in today's language and music. Young people especially are invited, but all are welcome, young and old.
