The Whitchurch Centennial Centre is in danger of losing the entire committee that operates it.

"At our executive meeting we decided unanimously to resign as a body if council refuses to grant sufficient funds to operate the centre," stated Kim Rogers, chairman of the group.

"We're prepared to hand the key to council and tell them to run it.'

Last June, when the township decided to build the centre as a Centennial project, they allocated barely enough funds to build it, and none at all to operate it, Mr. Rogers claimed. Therefore by the end of the year, the centre ran short.

In January Mr. Rogers approached council for a supplementary mini-budget to cover the operating costs for 1968. Council granted funds for this purpose.

In March, the centre presented this year's budget to council, asking for $13,000. Of this, $7,000 was to finish the building, which is not yet insulated, and cover operating costs from March, 1968 to March, 1969. The other $6,000 was to be the start of a fund to build an arena and rink in 10 years by putting aside part of the costs every year until then. Council refused the $6,000 right away, and subtracted the amount in the mini-budget from the other $7,000, leaving the centre $3,373 of the $13,000 they had asked
