Enrolment in Ontario Universities has increased from 44,000 to 82,000 in the past five years; operating grants have increased from $42 million to $202 million; student awards from $5 million to $32 million; the number of assisted students from 8,600 to 50,000. These facts were included in a report given last week by Minister of University Affairs William Davis.
The minister also stated that in Ontario, despite demand for university education, no qualified student has been unable to find a place in a provincially assisted university. He suggested that whatever reasons might exist why able young people do not proceed beyond secondary school, lack of finances need not be one of them.

Legislation was passed to give substantial increases in workers' compensation effective August 1. The new rates provide payment to widows of $125 monthly, fatherless children $50 monthly. Maximum benefits for injured workers has been raised to $5,250 per year and the waiting period for compensation has been reduced to one day.
The increased bill which is estimated at over $7 million will be paid by industry. The increases will make Ontario a leader in workmen's compensation benefits in Canada.
An Ontario Labor-Management Arbitration Act will be introduced to the house in the near future, as a result of an agreement reached between the Ontario Union Management Council and the Department of Labor.
County judges, who in the past have arbitrated a majority of labor-management disputes, have been exempted from these duties by an amendment to the Judges' Act.
The new legislation provides for the appointment of an arbitration commission composed of an impartial chairman and six members. This commission will recruit, train and maintain a panel of acceptable arbitrators. Arbitration of grievances without resorting to strikes or lockouts is one of the most important features of our industrial relations system. The act should allow the system to continue to function with efficiency and impartiality.
In the field of water management programs are continuing through conservation authorities and the OWRC. Pollution continues to receive close attention and increasing numbers of industries have installed or are installing water treatment works to eliminate this type of pollution.

Wider Concept Of Recreation Examined At Conference Tonight

Representatives from 38 community organizations have been invited to a conference on recreation sponsored by the Whitchurch Township Council and the recreation committee. The conference will be held tonight (Thursday) at the Centennial Centre in Ballantrae.
The committee in charge of organizing the conference included Councillor Betty Van Nostrand, Mrs. Mernie Elias, Mrs. Ivaegh Hepburn, Mrs. Lillian Atcheson, Bill Rooth, Bill Paine, Ken Farquharson and David Parker, district consultant of the Youth Recreational Branch of the Department of Education. Mr. Parker helped plan the program and chose the topics to be discussed.
"We are aware of the need to consider the fitting use of leisure time," said Mrs. Van Nostrand. "We want to be able to communicate and co-operate with each other to use the available facilities to the best advantage."
The committee hopes to have a representative of the Ontario Municipal Recreation Association present at the conference.
After dinner and a meeting, two films will be shown and the conference will divide into seven discussion groups. The groups will examine such topics as the recruiting and training of volunteers and what recreation programs are needed for young people and adults.
"We're such a large area it will be rather difficult," explained Mrs. Van Nostrand. "This is the only way we can hope to have any communication."
Mrs. Van Nostrand hopes the conference will help broaden the scope of the idea of recreation from a concept of sports alone to one including arts and crafts, music and library facilities.
"Recreation can be so many different things and involve so many different types of people," she observed.

Woman Wants King City Mayor's Favorite Dish; Alas, No Mayor

A Quebec authoress has written the "Mayor" of King City to ask for an 8 1/2 by 11-inch (glossy) photo of himself as well as his favorite dish and the recipe that goes with it — if possible.
Why?
The authoress, a Mrs. Donatienne Menard of Laval, is writing an "unusual book, a recipe book to help people learn things about themselves."
In addition to wanting a picture of the mayor and his favorite recipe or dish, Mrs. Menard would also like him (?) to supply a history of the city both past and present and its population.
The problem?
King City just hasn't any mayor so he doesn't have a favorite dish and/or recipe and with a present population of 2,000 it's unlikely the village will have a mayor for a few years yet.
Result?
A nonplussed shake of the head last week from King City Village Trustee Chairman Peter Williams who represents (as chairman) about the highest authority the village has produced.
"I don't think we do anything with the letter," concluded Mr. Williams, "at least not until we have a mayor."
In other business, the trustees noted the old fire siren has now been installed in the park and is in operative condition but hasn't been tested yet.
The difficulty originally arose when the new fire siren was placed in the fire hall. There were complaints to the effect that it couldn't be heard clearly in some areas of the village.
It was decided to re-install the old one to cover the "dead areas" missed by the new one.

The trustees also decided to inform the residents that the garbage operator had informed them that he would be willing to pick up various types of garden rubbish or unwieldy junk during the week if it is placed out in a convenient location for him. This doesn't apply to regular household garbage which will continue to be picked up on a weekly basis.
The problem arose recently during the annual spring pickup as the operators found themselves bogged down with excessive materials that had been piling up for a number of months.
Some trustees also felt the problem was due in part to the garbage contractor not having prepared for such an onslaught with both men and machines.
In some places garbage was being picked up around 10:30 or 11 pm at night.
