

Thornhill Student Back At U. Of Waterloo After Studies In Germany

BY JO CRUISE
Andrew Lipp, Centre St., returned August 31 from Europe where he spent two months taking a course at Boppard on the Rhine as a Goethe Institute Scholarship recipient and a month travelling in Germany and Austria.

The courses are designed for foreign students from all over the world who are over 18 years of age and have completed at least one year of German at university. The program is subsidized by the German and Canadian Governments.

Andrew flew aboard Lufthansa German Airlines from Montreal to Frankfurt last May with a group of students from across Canada, mainly from the Maritimes, Quebec and Ontario with a few from British Columbia and Saskatchewan. On arrival the group dispersed to various German towns and cities where they had been assigned to attend classes.

University students from Japan, Indonesia, the African Congo, Ethiopia, Tunisia, Turkey, France, Sweden, Finland, Italy, South America, Switzerland, Israel, Belgium, Polish and Czech refugees, and 22 Americans and 19 Canadians were fellow students with Andrew.

German was the universal language spoken and, apart from the Americans and Canadians who spoke English, Andrew had the opportunity to speak German and was able to communicate with students from all over the world. He made many friends and received invitations to visit them in the future.

One interesting fact was how little Andrew was able to learn about the foreign students' families and politics. Students on the most part would not discuss their backgrounds.

During the week Andrew was kept busy with his studies but he was able to get away on weekends to visit cities within driving distance.

He enjoyed a visit with the family of a post-graduate student at Waterloo University when he stayed at his home in Karlsruhe. Other visits enjoyed were a trip to Baden where he saw the famous Roman Spa and a trip to Worms, scene of the Diet of Worms in 1521 called by Emperor Charles V, which among other matters, took up doctrines spread by Martin Luther.

A visit to Nuremberg to see the German Grand Prix, a visit to a U.S. Airforce Base and an interesting tour of Mainz with a visit to the Gutenberg Museum were all gratifying weekends Andrew was able to take advantage of.

In Mainz Andrew bought a piece of parchment used in the original press said to be the first European press to print from movable type. Mainz was also the second seat of the Holy Roman Empire and the lavish cathedral was a fascinating building to see.

A week was spent in Vienna where Andrew visited with relatives and was completely enthralled with the beautiful city.

Another place of interest he visited was Dusseldorf where he saw the German production of "Hair", translated exactly from the English version.

A walk up the 535 steps of Cologne Cathedral was quite an experience and trips to Coblenz (completely flattened from World War II bombings) and Heidelberg, to see the famous university founded in 1386 and Heidelberg Castle, were all memorable weekends Andrew was able to enjoy.

During his travels he met a Swedish Prince (Friedrich Jan Fock), and was invited to visit him at his Castlekalm mar home. Unfortunately it wasn't possible for Andrew to accept the invitation owing to his limited time.

When Andrew caught his flight at Frankfurt for the return journey he was surprised to see that every student had managed to make the flight on time.

After spending a few days at home, Andrew left for Waterloo University where he enters his third year. He is most anxious to return to Europe next year and plans on entering a German essay competition open to all the students who travelled overseas on the summer study program. With his outstanding record at university as a top German student, Andrew should stand a very good chance of winning the award.

About 50 children have to walk along Sand Road, described as narrow and unsafe for pedestrians, with 18 inch deep potholes and often covered with 4-6 inches of water in places. Delegate Jesse Brown of Queensville Sideroad told the board his son was killed on the road earlier this year. The county school board agreed to study the problem.
