Markham Union At Two Hearings

A certification hearing was held Tuesday for 36 outside municipal workers of Markham Township before the Labor Relations Board. Decision was rendered.

The inside workers, Local 1219, Canadian Union of Public Employees in Markham Township, were scheduled to go to salary conciliation before a three-man board at 11 am today (February 12) at the King Edward Hotel.

Chairman of the conciliation board is Allan Dennis of Lakefield, Ontario. The union's nominee is Harry Simon, Canadian Labor Congress Ontario director. The township's nominee is Toronto lawyer Thomas Storie, who recently acted in a similar capacity for Vaughan Township.

Douglas Flood, president of Local 1219, and Frank Kitchener, CUPE national representative, were to present the union case to the conciliation board.

Local 1219 represents 23 workers and is seeking its first contract since certification in Markham last May. A conciliation officer failed to bring the two sides together in December. The union is seeking salary increases which average about 23%, plus union security and sick leave provisions.

High Cost Of OWRC Water, Sewage Is Alarming

One of the important matters which require a decision by Richmond Hill Town Council in 1970 is participation in the Ontario Water Resources Commission's proposal for water and sewage disposal facilities for this area.

On January 12, council received a report from Metro Planning Board, which contains comments on the OWRC proposed by Commissioner of Planning Wojciech Wronski. Consideration of this report has been referred to council in committee of the whole.

The area to be serviced by the water and sewage systems includes those areas designated for urban development in the Metro Plan east of Highway 400, excluding the Village of Stouffville. Adjustments by the OWRC include a "squaring off" of the Markham-Unionville urban centre, addition of strips of land on the east side of Bayview Avenue and the west side of Bathurst Street and Markham Township's "rural industrial" district extended easterly to Concession 5.

Total land area to be serviced by water facilities will be approximately 31,000 acres and the area to be serviced by the sewer project will be approximately 28,200 acres, excluding that portion of southwest Markham Township which is at present serviced through the Metro sewer system.

Mr. Wronski also noted that the Village of Woodbridge is similarly serviced through Metro but, with all lands west of Highway 400, is excluded from the OWRC program.

The proposed systems are to be designed to serve an ultimate population of 360,000, although it is estimated that the 1989 population will be only 234,100.
