1,000 Attend York North Conservative Forum

 exerted in Richmond Hill in favor of the White Paper. This came in the form of a single sheet of paper which appeared at the meeting. It was titled "A news release, February 18, 1970, from the York North Committee on Tax Reforms — a non-partisan organization for a more equitable tax system in Canada."

It began as follows: "In 1968, Canadians expressed their hopes for a truly just society. The White Paper on tax reform is an important step towards the attainment of that goal. But, it is being opposed by the Conservative Party, in collusion with vested business interests, masquerading as representatives of the 'middle class' in Canada."

This sheet, after presenting a series of arguments in favor of the White Paper, ended up as follows: "If you believe in a truly just society, stand up and be counted," and went on to urge the reader to write York North Liberal MP Barney Danson through Box 32, Richmond Hill.

During the meeting, too, a questioner suggested the Conservative Party was responsible for a recent Toronto meeting at the Royal York Hotel February 8 by the Canadian Council for Fair Taxation opposing the White Paper. This was denied by Mr. Stanfield.

Also during the York North PC forum, a sheet of paper was distributed asking those in attendance to express their opinions on "Benson's White Paper" and to hand the sheet back to an usher. Over 250 of these were filled out, and the results of this poll are to be tabulated and made public.

Another sheet of paper circulated the announcement that the York North PC Association will hold the second in its series of public forums, this time on the subject of housing and urban affairs, March 18 at 8 pm at Willowdale United Church, Willowdale, (on Kenneth Avenue behind Northtown Shopping Centre). Chairman will be Howard Grafty, former Conservative MP for Brome Missisquoi, Quebec.

Dialogue Chairman Stanfield began the open forum discussion with a brief summation of the White Paper on Taxation, its history and events since it was made public.

The four panelists took turns presenting their views. Then time was allowed for about 15 questions from the audience.

Accountant Ford said the main impact of the White Paper for him was that it was going to make life more difficult and it was going to be much more difficult for young people to go into professional life. They were going to be required to pay taxes on fees as billed, and before the money was received.

Mr. Ford said the fundamental error in the White Paper was in the impact it would have on the Canadian economy. It would mean a reduction in the annual number of new jobs and a reduction in the national economy. The White Paper would reduce taxes for the poor at the expense of the economy.

Canada was going to be turned into a nation of bookkeepers, and there wouldn't be enough accountants for all the people needing them. The White Paper would reduce the ability of Canada to finance its own development. "I see nothing but an increase in the sale of Canadian property to outsiders," he said.

HITS THE MIDDLE CLASS
 Panelist Hurlburt said the White Paper was aimed squarely at the middle class. They would be paying more of the nation's tax bill.

Mr. Hurlburt said his main objection was to the insidious manner Finance Minister Benson had equated social reform with tax reform. He warned the audience not to be fooled by this political trick, one which had been used often before.

He couldn't see how the White Paper was going to deal with Canada's major needs, including urban poverty, regional disparity, encouragement of industry, stopping the brain drain. It would also fail to relieve the serious plight of the provinces, which faced expanding costs and responsibilities.

The White Paper would limit capital expansion through what he called the "double whammy" of capital and estate taxes. He warned that Parkinson's second law was that expenditures rise to meet income.

The White Paper was a national tragedy and the government had no choice but to withdraw it, Mr. Hurlburt said.

CREeping SOCIALISM
 Advertiser Johnston said the White Paper mirrors the creeping socialism prevalent throughout the western world, and was too much and too fast for an emerging country like Canada. He said he believed a capital gains tax was necessary to achieve greater tax equity in Canada, but the White Paper proposal would cause a brain drain that would be like Niagara Falls. This in comparison to the dripping tap that was the present drain.

"What price being a Canadian? What price working for a Canadian future?" he asked. The White Paper made it the most attractive escape for close-held corporations to sell out to the highest bidder now, in order to establish capital value penalties. And in most cases the highest bidders for these firms would be outsiders, and most of the bids would be from the United States.

Mr. Johnston said he knew that three firms in his industry were considering selling out before implementation of the White Paper. A fourth had already sold out, largely because of the White Paper proposals.

He said the White Paper proposals would drastically reduce the number of small businesses. "And when small business goes only government and big business are left," he said. The few remaining innovators and creators would disappear.

It was the job of the Opposition to be crusading for justice now, he said.

END OF SMALL BUSINESSMAN
 MLA Reilly said he was asking the question "Why destroy the small businessman?" and was receiving hundreds of replies against the White Paper on this question from all over Ontario. There were 25,000 to 30,000 businesses in Ontario. There were 5,000 plants with five to 14 employees and 4,000 with one to five employees.

Mr. Reilly said the finance minister was going to hurt small business by putting it in the same tax category as big business. What should be done was to do away with the tax abuses without doing away with the existing small business system, he said.

The small businessmen were organizing against the White Paper, he said, because they realized the danger to their livelihood. Government should be making it easier for small business, not harder.

"Silence means consent," he said.

"HAMMER AND SICKLE DOCUMENT"
 Then came the question period.

Stan Hatch, describing himself as a small, small businessman, said he was terrified for himself and his family. He wanted to know what was going to be done to fight this "hammer and sickle document."

Mr. Stanfield said the PCs intend to fight the document in a constructive way.

Paul Bennett of Thornhill said he would like to know when social reform became socialism. Then Hugh Allison of Unionville spoke through the audience microphone, asking what the PCs were going to do about inflation.

Mr. Stanfield said the White Paper had an inflationary bias which should be avoided.

Denay Preece of Thornhill wanted to know where the PC Party stood on the tax revenue increase controversy.

Mr. Stanfield said the White Paper estimate by Mr. Benson, of $630,000,000, was vastly underrated... grossly and absurdly understated.

Sid Gadsby from Gormley asked if the PCs were going to put out their own White Paper.

Mr. Stanfield said this was already done in substantial measure. He said the party accepted the need of a capital gains tax to get equity, but felt the White Paper rate was absurd. The maximum should be 25%, he said.

A Richmond Hill student wanted to know if his government student loan should be taxed. Mr. Reilly said this should only be done on the basis of total income.

Frances Emery of Richmond Hill wanted to know what the PCs would do to stop the drain of brains and property ownership to the United States.

Mr. Johnston said Canada should equalize its taxes with the U.S. and give the individualual a fair chance.

Councillor Eric George of Richmond Hill asked if the party had an idea about how to make allowance for inflation before applying the capital gains tax.

Mr. Stanfield said he favored such an allowance, and had been looking for a way to do it. But the party's tax experts couldn't find a practical way. But this inflation factor was an argument against going to a capital gains tax as high as 50%, he said.

Edward Seagram of Gormley noted the White Paper would put a capital gains tax on people who leave the country, and this would tend to discourage outsiders from bringing needed talents into the country. He said this could have a bad effect, and wanted to know what would be done about it.

Mr. Stanfield said the White Paper had a built-in incentive for people to leave and that he didn't see the need for the proposed high capital and inheritance taxes in Canada.

Mr. Ford said the White Paper would be punitive to talent from outside the country, and would discourage professionals from coming into Canada to work for short periods of time. This was another reason why the White Paper should be withdrawn, he said.

Guest speaker at this service will be Miss Jane Bailey, of Toronto, formerly of "Crossroads Africa." Theme of this year's world-wide services is "Take Courage."

World Day of Prayer On March 6
 Miss Muriel Israel, director of community services of Walmer Road Baptist Church, Toronto, will be the guest speaker at the annual World Day of Prayer. This year the ecumenical meeting will be held at St. John Baptist Church at 2 pm March 6. Women of all faiths will be participating in the service.

The World Day of Prayer services have been held in Canada since 1920 and since that time have spread throughout the world, until last year 150 countries were involved and millions of women prayed together. The total offerings are spent to provide Christian literature throughout the world.

This ecumenical experience will be repeated in the evening at 8 pm for those women of all faiths who are unable to attend an afternoon service. The evening service will be held in St. Matthew's United Church.
