Last Series Lecture Learning Disabilities

The final lecture in the series of learning disability lectures co-sponsored by the Association for Children with Learning Disabilities and the Ontario Teachers' Federation, in co-operation with the York County Board of Education, will be held tonight (Thursday) at Thornlea Secondary School at 8 pm.

A number of children in York County who have been diagnosed as having specific learning disabilities have been able to remain in their regular classrooms, and with the co-operation of the York County Board of Education, have been excused for remedial tutorial classes at York Educational Clinic.

This clinic operates from donated quarters in Richmond Hill United Church. These classes are on a from 1-1 basis to 1-4 basis, and allow the child much more opportunity for individual assistance than is possible in the classroom. The age of the students attending the clinic range from grade 1 through high school.

This lecture will consist of a panel, the staff of the educational clinic, explaining the remedial techniques they use which are often applicable in the regular classroom setting. Teachers of regular classrooms as well as special classes are requested to attend to provide them with the opportunity to assist the child with subtle learning disabilities, as well as the child with specific deficiencies.
