Planning Board Still Pondering Over Two Car Wash Requests

Richmond Hill Planning Board withheld any decisions last week on two car wash applications pending until reports have been received from the various municipal departments concerned.

The car washes - one submitted by Gulf Oil at 4770 Yonge Street North (beside Wilson-Niblett Motors) and the other by Don Little Ford, 4870 Yonge Street North - were initially processed at a previous meeting.

Councillor Lois Hancey tended to favor the Gulf submission because "There are no residences in the immediate area while the Little proposal ment on residential areas."

Member Howard Whillans commented that, "We're encroaching on residential areas all the time.'

Mrs. Hancey said, "We don't permit car washes in town so that we can control them.' Approval for any such operation requires a zoning change in each individual case, Chairman Harry Sayers observed that the Gulf application was being circulated while the Little one hadn't to date. He added that the Little application was being held back because additional land would be required and thus changes would be made in the original application.

Mrs. Hancey then proposed a motion that would reject the Little application on the grounds that it would be too close to a residential area, it could create a traffic problem and that "There is a seemingly inadequate parking space for vehicles."

Her motion was lost when she couldn't find a seconder. Mr. Sayers said he was somewhat reluctant to have the car wash infringing on a residential area but reserved judgement until comments on the application had been received from the department heads. School And Library Boards To Share Books In King, Whitchurch Townships

Effective in September, the King Township Public Library will house a York County Board of Education library unit designed to provide 15 small elementary schools in King and Whitchurch Townships with loan collections of books and the services of an itinerant librarian.

In return, the York County Board will locate a collection of curriculum-oriented reference material valued at about $500 in King Public Library for public use.

Since pupils from King Senior School and King Secondary School, both adjacent to the public library, are likely to be the heaviest users, some materials from the secondary school library will also be placed in the public library when the total circulating loan collection is made available to the public during July and August of next year.

The loan collection for the schools, all located in the county board's Area 2, will initially consist of about 2,000 volumes, divided so that at least 1,000 books over and above those already in their schools will be available throughout the year to pupils of the primary and junior grades.

The participating schools, Hillcrest, Vivian, Shrubmount, Pine Orchard, Ringwood, Lloyd, Vandorf, Lake Wilcox, Ballantrae, Strange, Pottageville, Eversley, Kinghorn, Snowball and Doris M. Patton, are all too small to support adequate collections of books in their own libraries.

One or more curriculum topics will be emphasized in each lot of books which will remain in a school from three to five weeks. Teachers will have a circulation schedule to let them know when material on various topics will be arriving at their schools.

In addition about 250 filmstrips on various topics will be circulated from the county board library service in the King Library. Teachers and pupils will be able to borrow the filmstrips in the same manner as library books.

All of the books ordered for the service will not be available when school opens in September, but the board expects that at least partial lots will be placed in every school before the end of the month.

The board of education staff based in the public library will include one full-time itinerant school librarian, 40 percent of the time of a master teacher for librarians working as an itinerant, and one full-time library clerk whose time will be shared with other developing school libraries in the area.

At the end of a year's operation, this cooperative venture will be evaluated by both boards. The co-ordinating committee which will be responsible for the project includes John Kudelka of King Library Board, Librarian Ian Scott, Master Teacher Irene McCordick and Superintendent Ron Hall of Area 2.
