PHIL CLARK
 Top Student — 87.3%

Eight grade 13 graduates from Richmond Hill High School were among York County's 64 Ontario Scholarship winners.

Without exception they intend to continue their studies at universities, and the $150 cash award from the Department of Education to Ontario Scholars will help them to meet expenses.

To qualify as an Ontario Scholar, a student must have an average of 80 percent or better in his top seven subjects, and he has to do it all in one year—those who repeat a course to upgrade marks so that they may be admitted to the "university of their choice" are not eligible.

Top student at Richmond Hill was Phil Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Clark of 106 Ruggles Avenue with an average of 87.3 percent.

Phil intends to major in mathematics and statistics, and has been accepted at Yale University in New Haven, Connecticut.

He is a keen athlete and is willing to consider a Canadian University if he can get an athletic scholarship, but this is just a hope.

He was a player in a junior A hockey game for St. Catharines at Niagara Falls in September, and played Junior B hockey there in the fall, but managed to keep up with his school work.

Phil went into grade 13 in his home town in November, and played for Richmond Hill Rams. He also plays golf and during the summer plays baseball for an industrial league.

And to round out the summer, he is working as a shipper for a firm in Metro.

Pat Boone, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Boone, 10 Knollside Drive, finished her year with an average of 86.4, and plans to major in modern languages at Laurentian University in Sudbury in the fall. She is interested in a career as an interpreter and translator.

For the summer, she is working for Ronalds' Federated in Richmond Hill.

Elizabeth Wilson, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wilson, 89 Bedford Park Avenue, finished the year with an average of 86.3, and plans to major in English at the University of Toronto.

Her father is a teacher at Seneca Community College, and her mother at Bayview Secondary School, so it would not be surprising to see her entering that profession, but meanwhile she is working in a book store at Towne and Country Square.

"Liz" is interested in children as well as books, and while she was in high school worked as a volunteer at Brownlee Camp for Emotionally Disturbed Children.

Jean Yoteff, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Yoteff, 101 Trayborn Drive, is out of town for the summer, working as a mother's helper for friends in Beeton.

She earned an average of 84.7 percent, and plans to major in languages when she goes to Laurentian University in the fall.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aldo Bacchi, 360 Sugar Maple Court, Aldo Bacchi, 17, plans to enter a computer science course at the University of Waterloo in the fall.

She is working for her father's Willow Construction Company, but is looking forward to a trip to Europe before the summer ends. Her final average of 83.1 percent qualifies her as an Ontario Scholar.

Barbara Wilkinson, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Wilkinson, 50 Benson Avenue, is working as a checker at a local supermarket, but with an average of 82.3 percent she is looking forward to entering Victoria College, University of Toronto, in the fall and majoring in languages and psychology.

Victoria College will also be the destination for Leon Broad, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Broad, 21 Bedford Park Avenue, but he plans a general arts and science course, majoring in political science.

For the summer, he is working with a Metro distributing company. His final average was 81.7 percent.

Anne Honeyman, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Honeyman, 193 Chassie Court, finished the year with an average of 80.1, and will major in modern languages at Trinity College, University of Toronto. Meanwhile, she is working in a local restaurant.

57 Pupils To Metro 337 County Schools

Fifty-seven pupils leaving grade 8 from York County Separate Schools will be going to Roman Catholic High Schools in Metro, according to a report presented to the York County Separate School Board, at its July 21 meeting, by Superintendent Joseph Hodge.

Approximately the same number of former county separate school pupils will be enrolled in grade 10 in Metro Roman Catholic high schools. The board provides transportation for these pupils in its own buses and subsidizes the tuition fee in part.

The remainder of the 394 separate school grade 8 graduates in York County will be attending local secondary schools.

Three New "Open" Schools Planned By County Board For Opening 1971

After examining a lengthy staff report on "open concept" schools as compared with those of traditional design, York County Board of Education agreed June 2 to adopt this concept for three schools to be built for September, 1971.

The schools, Rogers School in Newmarket, an unnamed junior school in the Wimpey Subdivision in Aurora and an unnamed junior school for the Costain Subdivision in Markham Township, will be the first completely designed on authority from the county board.

All schools and additions built or completed since the board took over from the county's 21 area boards were in various stages of planning prior to amalgamation of the boards in January 1969.

The open plan schools contain large areas to accommodate up to three or more regular classes, but also make provision for smaller groupings where these are necessary. Several teachers are responsible for the 100 or so pupils in each area.

In presenting a 62 page study of county schools which have been operating under the plan, Research Officer Brian Burnham pointed out that at the time the study was made, none of these schools had been in use for a full year.

Principals said academic achievement of the pupils concerned could not be reasonably assessed when the school had been in operation for less than a year.

Communications Officer Margaret McLean told the board that a similar study in Waterloo indicated there was no appreciable difference in the reading and mathematical skills of pupils in open and conventional style schools.

A sixteen member research team, mainly elementary school principals, conducted a study of seven York County schools this winter, and heavy emphasis was placed on observation of pupil and teacher behaviours in the schools, comparing open to non-open concept schools.

The results of the study tended to favor the open school. It supported other Canadian studies in reporting that the open setting increases co-operative planning and teaching.

The report noted "the widespread demonstration of mutual regard among pupils and teachers compliments all schools in this study."

A similar study in the Borough of North York had found little variation in student performance in the two types of schools beyond what could be expected in any two schools, declared Mr. Burnham.

York Separate Schools Expect 4,746 To Enroll In September In Fall On Yonge Street's Edge

Enrolment in the 20 Roman Catholic schools in York County in September 1970 is estimated at 4,746 including 75 non-residents, Administrator Joseph Hodge reported at the July 21 meeting of York County Roman Catholic School Board. Enrolment at the end of June was 4,620 pupils from kindergarten to grade 8 inclusive.

St. John School (Sharon Annex) was not in use during the past school year, but is being renovated to accommodate 80 kindergarten pupils and 98 in grades 1-8, reducing the number in these grades at Our Lady of Good Counsel in the same area from an enrolment of 285 at June 30 to an estimated 146 in September.

The new St. Anthony School being constructed on Bayview Avenue in North Thornhill, will be in use in September with an estimated 20 children in the kindergarten and 103 in other grades. This will reduce expected enrolment at both St. Luke's (senior school) which are also located in the Thornhill area, with a total enrolment for the three schools estimated at 657. St. Luke's and St. Robert's had a combined total of 624 at June 30. In September 290 pupils will be at St. Luke's (45 in kindergarten), 244 at St. Robert's and 123 at St. Anthony.

The day after receiving a new bicycle complete with "banana seat" and "monkey bars", a South Thornhill 12-year-old fell from his machine on Yonge Street and died of head injuries.

David John Small of 111 Morgan Avenue was pronounced dead on arrival at York Central Hospital, Richmond Hill, at about 8 pm.

His brother Steven, a passenger on the bicycle, suffered cuts to his left elbow, knee and foot.

David was the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Small.

The boys were riding south downhill on the west shoulder of Yonge Street and fell near the south entrance of the Thornhill Golf and Country Club. Steven told police they tried to brake, hit a bump, wobbled, hit another bump, and then fell.

The accident was first reported to Markham Township Police at 7:37 pm. The investigation also involved the OPP and was finally taken over by the Vaughan Township Police because it happened on the Vaughan Township side of Yonge Street.

Motorist Robert Field of 56 Wedgewood Drive, Willowdale, accompanied by Gary Levesque of 62 Westwood Lane, Thornhill, came upon the scene right after the boys fell.

Mr. Field told police he found a boy lying in the roadside grass, crying very hard and apparently in great pain. Both the boys were conscious when he stopped, and he drove them home.

Mrs. Small took David to the bathroom to wash the blood from his face, and he collapsed there.

Called to the house, Markham Township Police found David not breathing. They managed to get him breathing again and took him to hospital by ambulance. But to no avail.

Dr. Jack Saunders of King City, coroner, said an autopsy showed the boy's death was due to head injuries. No inquest will be held.

Add Drug Charge For Kelly, White

A charge of possessing a proscribed drug commonly known as methadone or "speed" Monday was added to the robbery and forgery instrument charges faced the week before by two Satan's Choice Motorcycle Club associates in Richmond Hill Provincial Court.

Wayne Kelly, 22, of 11 Derow Crescent, Willowdale, and formerly of Richmond Hill and Thornhill, faces one other added charge, namely breach of probation due to possession of a proscribed drug without authorization.

The other accused is David White, 22, of 16 Dunsmane Drive, Thornhill.

Kelly and White were held in jail without bail following their court appearance July 20. Monday the Crown Attorney asked to have each of the accused held on $5,000 bail each.

Judge Russell Pearce fixed bail at $3,000 and the pair were still in custody at last report.

White also faces a charge of possessing a bull whip and motorcycle chain for purposes dangerous to the public peace.
