A new two-storey addition to the Falconbridge Metallurgical Laboratories on Yonge Street at Roosevelt Drive, Richvale, is well underway. Above is a rear view showing work progressing on this third extension the company has made to its laboratories since their inception in 1953. Construction is expected to be completed by mid-September this year. The present 4,800 square-foot addition is a steel frame, block wall structure, faced with white brick, approximately 40 feet by 60 feet and 25 feet high. General contractor is Trist Construction Co. Ltd., Toronto. Designers are R. G. Watson Co. Ltd., consulting engineers, also of Toronto. Electrical and mechanical contracts are held by McGregor Associates Limited.

Large Addition Falconbridge Labs

Total expenditure on the new extension and new equipment will be approximately $300,000. It will:

- House an additional process development area designed for research into new ore treatment methods, aimed at decreasing air and water pollution;
- House new metal facilities needed for alloy development programs;
- Allow an area for a new X-ray microprobe, used to study distribution of elements in ores, metals and intermediate products, and to assist in ore exploration, design of more efficient metal recovery systems and improvements of alloys.

Manager of the laboratories, Roly Bergman, said the extension will also include a central stores and storage area, to improve the general efficiency of laboratory operations. Part of the capital expenditure is going for further air and water pollution control systems at the laboratories, to ensure the extension does not add to environmental problems in the area. The laboratory staff has grown from four in 1953 when the company purchased and modified an existing two-storey building on the site. Today the staff numbers 80 as research has expanded from the field of chemistry and spectrochemistry to include mineralogy-geology and metallurgical process and product development.

Out of the work in this lab have come such significant developments as a new process for recovery of ferronickel from lateritic ores, which Falconbridge will utilize in its $200-million ferronickel project now under construction in the Dominican Republic. NICKEL 98, a granular intermetal product introduced to international markets in 1969, was also developed under a pilot program at the local laboratories. The labs grew from an idea of the late Dr. H. J. Fraser, former company president, in 1947.

Believing that as a major producer of non-ferrous metals, Falconbridge needed more knowledge of metals and particularly more rapid and precise methods for precious metals assay, Dr. Fraser initiated a program of sponsored research at Queen's University. By 1952 this program had resulted in development of successful spectrochemical methods of analysis. The building purchased in 1953, was enlarged in 1955 when mineralogy, geology and metallurgy sections were established. In 1962 it was extended a second time to house a new products research group.

Bride Wears Mother's Wedding Dress For Thornhill Nuptials

The bride wore her mother's gown and a corsage of white orange ice gladiolus flanked the altar of Thornhill United Church for the August 22 wedding of Margaret Jeanne Taylor and James Phillip Matresky. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Taylor, 27 Valloncliff Road, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Matresky of Kitchener.

Officiating clergyman was Rev. Alfred McAllister. Mrs. Lona Richardson played the wedding music, and Mrs. Anne Wilson sang Crampton's "23rd Psalm" before the ceremony and "A Wedding Prayer" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory slipper satin gown fashioned on princess lines with a sweetheart neckline. Her skirt flowed into a long train, and her long embroidered veil fell to the floor from a corsage of lilies in her hair. She carried a trailing bouquet of yellow mums and red roses.

Maid of honor was Patricia Wadsworth, and bridesmaids were Susan Taylor, a cousin of the bride, Susan Mallon, and Mrs. Brenda Wilford, sister of the groom. Junior bridesmaids were Elizabeth and Susan Cunningham.

The attendants were dressed alike in body-line dresses of soft green cotton with high collars, short sleeves, and fitted waists. The bride's dress was accented with a white sash and a white sash. Her hair was styled in a long, wavy fashion. The groom wore a dark suit and a white shirt with a dark tie. The ceremony was held in the church sanctuary, which was decorated with white flowers and greenery.

The junior bridesmaids had matching gowns trimmed with white daisies and carried baskets of white daisy mums. Robert Krueger of Kitchener was best man, and ushers were Chris Vogel, John Matresky, brother of the groom, and David Taylor, brother of the bride.

A buffet supper was served to about 130 guests at the reception at the Heintzman House. To receive the bride's mother wore a floor-length salmon pink gown and a corsage of white flowers. The reception was held in a large, well-lit room with a high ceiling and large windows. The food was served on white tablecloths, and the atmosphere was festive and joyful.

The response to our appeal for financial support at the general meeting at the Clubhouse Thursday evening of last week was so great that, much to the delight of the club's executive, the existing courts will be resurfaced and a fourth court constructed. Work is due to start September 1 and will take two weeks with good weather. We know you will all be patient while this most desirable improvement is taking place.

Richmond Hill defeated us 4-2 August 18 so they are now the league champions. This Wednesday we have a sudden death game with North York at North York. A win for us would allow us to take part in the playoffs.

Frank Kenel of Fairview Avenue experienced one of the highlights of his career recently when the Florists Transworld Delivery Association held their convention in Toronto.

Mr. Kenel is head chef at the Tom O'Shanter Golf Club in Scarborough, and it was his responsibility to plan and prepare a buffet for the 2000 members of the association who dined at the club. The menu included whole barbecued hinds of prime beef, Ponderosa smoked seafoods; paté of foie gras in pastry; shrimp and lobster tarts; sucking pigs; a variety of meat, vegetable and green salads; fruit and jellied moulds; and a variety of desserts.

The buffet, which took a week of preparation and planning, was set up on eight tables in the garden. Numerous show pieces decorated the tables, including an ice sculpture of Eskimos and some fat sculptures of bears.

In last week's column I gave the incorrect date for the next meeting of Emmanuel Anglican Church Women. It should have been September 8 at 8 p.m. After a short business meeting, Mrs. Jean Gordon of the Children's Aid Society will speak. All ladies in the area are invited.

Plans are now under way for the local arena which is undergoing extensive renovations.

Socially Speaking In Thornhill

Senior Citizens
Thornhill Senior Citizens will hold their first meeting of the new season next Wednesday (September 2) at 1:30 pm in Holy Trinity Anglican Church Hall, Brooke Street. Members are reminded to note the new meeting place.

The meeting will be a social afternoon and a good attendance is hoped for. New members are especially welcome to come to this first meeting of the season.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. James Dickson, who were married last Saturday at Eglinton United Church by Dr. E. Cragg. The bride is the former Valerie Pauline Lois Humphrey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Humphrey of 24 Riverside Boulevard, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Dickson of Willowdale.

Frank Kenel of 22 Fairview was extremely busy last week preparing dinner for 2,000 guests! Mr. Kenel, who is head chef at the Tam O'Shanter Golf Club, was responsible for organizing and preparing the magnificent buffet dinner served to delegates of the Florists Trans-world Delivery Association Convention held in Toronto recently. The Swiss trained chef worked 15 hours a day to make the affair the tremendous success it proved to be.

Mr. Kenel at one time ran a short course on gourmet cooking in Thornhill, which was very popular. He would be interested in doing so again if enough interest were shown.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Marks, Thornbridge Drive, have returned from a very pleasant vacation at a lodge near Sundridge. Presbyterian Church
Summer is coming to an end, and the final 10 am service will be on September 6. Beginning on September 13 the services of public worship will be held at 9:30 am and 11 am and 7 pm.

Guest preacher on that day will be the Rev. Reynolds Eiler of the First Presbyterian Church, Port Colborne. The 7 pm evening service on the 13th will be youth-oriented and sponsored by the Thornhill Ecumenical Youth Group.

Special guests at the service will be the youth group from Appin, Ontario. Also on the 13th the church school will open once again. The nursery class to grade 2 will meet at 11 am on that day. The following Sunday, grades 3 to 8 will meet once again. September 27 will be Rally Sunday.

Thornhill Hurdler
George Neeland of Franklin Avenue, the young Thornhill hurdler who has been so busy travelling to meet this summer is off again; this time to Turin, Italy, where he will compete in the World University Games for the next two weeks. Prior to his departure George, competed in the Eastern Canadian Championship Games at Dartmouth, NS, where he once again upheld his championship for the fourth year in succession. We wish him luck in Turin.

On his return to Canada he will resume his studies at the University of Waterloo.

Garden Reception, Trip To East Coast Follow Thornhill Wedding

A garden reception followed through in table decorations and wedding cake. On their wedding trip, the newlyweds traveled to the east coast, Boston and Maine. They are living in Montreal where the groom is employed by General Electric Limited.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Flavell of Wolverhampton, England, and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Corkill, 27 Idleswift Drive. Yellow and white flowers and candles formed a background for the late afternoon ceremony. Rev. Alfred McAllister of Thornhill officiated. The bride was given in marriage by Martin Reid of Kitchener. Her daughter, Angela Homer, was maid of honor. William Bell of Toronto was best man, and Brian Cates an usher. Both men attended high school and university with the groom.

About 50 guests were present for the buffet supper and reception that followed, with the yellow and white theme carried
