Seneca's Third Convocation Saturday

Nearly 360 students will officially graduate from Seneca College in Willowdale at the college's third annual convocation Saturday afternoon. The number of students graduating in the class of 1970 is more than twice as large as those who received certificates and diplomas in the previous convocation held in May, 1969, when 175 students graduated. At Seneca's first convocation in the spring of 1968, there were just one dozen graduates. This fall's convocation will be the first held at Seneca's Finch Avenue Campus, and in its newly completed theatre-auditorium which seats 1,100 persons. Saturday's convocation ceremony begins at 1:30 pm. Some 83 students in the class of 1970 will be the first at Seneca to receive six-semester (three year) diplomas. Of these, 44 are in business, 19 in data processing and 20 in engineering technology. Graduates receiving four-semester (two year) diplomas number 244. Sixty percent of these are receiving diplomas in various applied arts courses. The others will be awarded diplomas in business (38), data processing (16) and engineering technology (42).

Another 32 students will receive recognition in the form of certificates for courses covering two semesters (one year). A highlight of this third annual convocation will be the awarding of the college's first honorary diplomas. Recipients will be former Metro Police Chief James Mackey and James Service, former mayor of the Borough of North York. Mr. Mackey is now chairman of the Ontario Liquor License Board and is a charter member of the college's law enforcement advisory committee. Mr. Service was one of the original charter members of the board of governors of Seneca. The honorary diplomas will be presented by Chairman Norm Garriock, of the board of governors. Among graduating students are 22 who have completed certificate courses through the college's continuing education division. Nineteen of this number are to receive certificates in law enforcement. These are all men who are currently active on a police force. One student, due to receive his four-semester diploma in law enforcement, is Thomas Quigg, who completed his diploma course through the continuing education division of the college. At Saturday's convocation ceremony, the student valedictorian will be Robert Greer, former president of the student administrative council, who is to receive his diploma in marketing administration. New graduates will be welcomed as members of the Seneca Alumni by Howard Binstock, president of the alumni association. Convocation music will be provided by the Northlandia Wind Ensemble under the direction of David Clothier, and by a Seneca singing group recently organized by Seneca's Music Director William McCauley.
