Ken Kinnear, a 12 year old pupil at McConaghy Public School, was a very surprised and proud recipient of a reward last week when making his usual visit to the local branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia.

Ken had found a letter with a cheque enclosed in the vicinity of the school and promptly took it straight into the bank, who called the sender, Mrs. Terry King of Lawrence Avenue, to inform her of its whereabouts.

Unfortunately Ken didn't leave his name, but with staff member Miss Jean Sanderson's co-operation he was finally traced and on his next visit to the bank, was given a reward from Mrs. King, for his most thoughtful and honest gesture.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Kinnear of Centre Street East.

"Consumers Count" as the Consumers Association of Canada works for better products, better packaging and honest advertising by passing on to manufacturers your opinions of goods and services. CAC helps you get your problems to the right people.

Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau endorses the week of March 1-6 as Consumer Week with a message to all consumers—"All of us are consumers—we live in a society in which goods are plentiful and freedom of choice wide-ranging.

As consumers, we must, however, be well informed and vigilant if we are to gain the maximum benefits of this abundance of freedom. We must also be protected by law.

The Consumer Association of Canada has done a great deal to develop amongst us this vigilance and to assist the Department of Consumer and Corporate Affairs in the preparation of protective legislation.

To the members of your association I am very pleased to send my best wishes on the occasion of Consumer Week.

The Gormley Action Committee of the CAC aim to make the citizens of Richmond Hill aware of the objectives of the CAC. Look for the posters which will be found in all area supermarkets this week.

It was a very impressive evening with several color parties participating, and the young visitors and their leaders received a warm welcome from the rector Rev. David McGuire.

Guests were received at the door by Mrs. E. Walker and committee and later welcomed by President Gladys McLatchey, when the Richmond Hill Horticulturists entertained the local Naturalists at their regular meeting in the Lions Hall on February 23.

Program Chairman Dick Edmunds called upon President Russ Tilt of the Naturalists, who spoke a few words in the memory of Jim Baillie, prominent member of the Naturalists, a professional ornithologist and a former member of the Federation of the Ontario Naturalists.

Gordon MacKenzie took his audience right back into the paleontology period, through the medium of colored slides, portraying the fossilized skeleton of the archaeryx, the oldest bird known to man and showed the evolution of the bones of various species, which are now extinct, or changed in great degree, through evolution.

Mr. Tilt through colored photography exhibited many contemporary birds and the less numerous hawks, woodcocks, and humming birds etc. One particularly beautiful slide was that of a cedar waxwing on a high bush cranberry. Mr. Tilt punctuated his entertaining program with bird calls, which were clear and obvious to the layman.

Charles Weir, introduced by Dick Edmunds, exhibited many beautiful slides on Ontario's wild birds and also included a few roses especially for the Horticulturists, and to further the nostalgic feeling of spring—a very cheerful, perky looking robin.

These three Naturalists who were fine exponents of bird life, were duly thanked by Wes Ankenman, for their interesting educational program—"the wonder story" of evolution, the skill in the sound of birds and the humor of the final pictures.

The book "Stalking Birds With Colored Camera" was drawn for and accepted with pleasure by the lucky recipient, Miss McLatchey.

Rotary News

The guest speaker at the February 22 meeting of the Rotary Club was Barbara Fawns, director of the Youth Aid Centre on Markham Road.

Mrs. Fawns, a graduate of Seneca College, described the work that the YAC was doing in Richmond Hill and surrounding areas.

The centre now has a staff of six people who are operating 24 hours a day. They have 127 active cases and have handled 450 cases during the past eight months. Miss Fawns explained that when they started the YAC, it was also used as a residence for a number of cases, but by the intervention of the health department they now only keep a case overnight and then only by making special arrangements.

The staff gets involved in all types of problems, they try to operate on a one to one relationship with each case to solve the social, legal and personal problems, which are often related to the use of drugs. Crisis intervention and making users of the centre aware of the risks and dangers of drugs is helped by the fact that two members of the centre are students from the Addiction Foundation.

YAC now receives financial support from both the Provincial Department of Health and the York County Regional Government.

Miss Fawns answered a number of questions from the Rotarians present and closed by inviting any member to drop in and see for themselves the operation of YAC.

Tables covered with hobby show entries occupied the large school gymnasium, with the Klondike sleds and an ice boat made by the Venturers forming a very noticeable part of the display. Also attracting considerable attention was the long table covered with entries from all age groups in the baking divisions. Most of the entries would have done credit to an experienced master chef.

In the cafeteria 2nd Richmond Hill Scouts were hard at work turning out canoe paddles and snow shoes.

In the competition entries in the gymnasium the boys exhibited great ingenuity as they used fruit, driftwood, marbles, plastic bottles, water colors, charcoal, oils, pencils, nuts, fossils, shells, plasticine, birch bark, wood, popsicle sticks, copper tubing, paper mache, etc.
