Community Life In King City Area

Equestrian News
Mrs. Ann Wallas, district commissioner for the Toronto and North York Pony Club, tells us that the club held a four-day riding course December 28 to December 30 at Pearson's Barn and the High Ridges Arena on Dufferin Street.

The course was an intensive teaching clinic, teaching how to clip for showing, the breaking of a horse and how to manage their equine. Sessions started each day at 7:30 am and went through until 5 pm with students aged between 10 and 19 years of age.

Dr. Jack Chassels (veterinarian) RR 1, King (performed an operation on December 29).

Those taking the course included Toni-Rita Addison, Patsy Adolph, Kerry Armstrong, Judy Barbour, Morgan Carpenter, Lynda Catto, Irene Guinzel, Toni Henderson, Anne Lawson, Ewen MacPherson, Muffie McLeod, Teresa Sherwood, Vicki Taylor, and Rosemary Verhoog. Three local girls were teachers, Wendy Agnew, Liz Ashton and Evie Kinzler.

Church News
Today (Thursday) is the Feast of Epiphany, the 12th day after Christmas, and often referred to as Little Christmas or the Manifestation of Christ to the Gentiles. The feast is more ancient than Christmas, dating back to the year 813 as a separate festival and commemorates the baptism of Christ (Mark 1), the visit of the Wise Men to Jerusalem (Matthew 2), and the Miracle at Cana (John 2).

At Sacred Heart Church, Holy Masses will be held January 6 at 8:30 and 10:30 am for the Solemnity of the Epiphany of Our Lord.

Centennial Year for King City United is over for another 100 years, and what a busy year it has been for Rev. Norman Gibson and all his parishioners. With special activities taking place during 1971, the church made it a year to remember.

Donna's Bits and Pieces
Happy birthday to John Gilmore who celebrated yesterday, January 5.

King City Secondary will hold its "Snow Carnival - 1972" between January 11 and 15. Highlights will be the choosing of a Snow Queen, and prizes for sculptures, races and snurfball. A dance will be held on the Saturday, finalizing the carnival.

On Monday, December 27, the King Community of Bahai's held a tobogganing party (with toboggans or snow) at the home of Doug and Ann Wilson on Jane Street. The Wilsons were not home for the party, but everyone else had a great time. David Rosanti taught a mind-taxing game and Brian East dished out bowl after bowl of homemade chili con carne. Children seemed to be everywhere and most of them were delighted when "Russell" painted their faces with colorful flowers and patterns.

Congratulations to Lloyd Bird of RR 1, King on being the November winner of the President of the Month Club draw. On ticket No. 1584, purchased at work (Air Terminal Transport), Lloyd won $1,500 in this monthly draw run by the Malton Minor Hockey Association.

The Aurora Drama Workshop will be presenting "Gaslight - Angel Street" tonight (Thursday), January 7 and 8 directed by Gillian Ball, in St. Andrews College Theatre. Persons wanting tickets in King area should call Chrys Ballantyne at 833-6454.

Book Review
"The Edible Wild" by Berndt Berglund and Clare E. Bolsby, published by Paquarian Press Limited, Toronto, 1971, with illustrations by E. B. Saunders. Here we have 188 pages of information and recipes on edible wild plants, trees, and shrubs used originally by pioneers, early settlers and Canadian Indians. The authors claim that wild plants, in most cases, contain more vitamins than regular fruits and vegetables from our gardens. That the dandelion has 25 times more vitamin A than tomato juice, and 50 times more than asparagus. They refer to the source of wild plants as "Mother Nature's Pantry."

Among the many recipes in the book, we find Scaloped Evening Primrose Roots with Cheese, Burdock Casserole, Young Milkweed Stocks Braised With Wild Onions, Parslane in Cream Sauce, Wintergreen Berry Pie, Jerusalem Artichokes Suzette, Stuffed Wild Onions, Hazelnut Cookies, and Elderberry Pie.

The illustrations show each plant and a small paragraph describes each one in detail for easy identification before picking. With ever increasing food prices in our supermarkets, this book could be your answer to economical and tasty eating.

Province Approves New Regional Day Care Site

The Region of York is one step closer to getting a day care centre to serve the northern municipalities.

At its December 29 meeting, regional council received a letter from Minister of Social and Family Services Thomas Wells approving the site at York Manor Farm in Newmarket.

The region proposes to build the centre to accommodate 115 pre-school and retarded children under the provincial plan for 100 percent subsidy of day care centres built under the winter works program which terminates the end of May.

ANXIOUS TO PROCEED
In his letter to the Minister says, "As you know, we are anxious to proceed with this project, and my officials will be in touch with you shortly to assist in the next step towards construction of this nursery."

The region is also applying to the province for support in building a day care centre in Richmond Hill. At that time 35 children were registered. The centre has expanded to accommodate 65 children, and with the advent of regional government in January, 1971, it was brought under the jurisdiction of the region.

RICHMOND HILL REQUEST
In his report to council, Georgina Mayor Dr. George Burrows advised that he had sent a request to the Department of Family and Social Services Day Nurseries Branch, Project Day Care, for a new building to house the Richmond Hill centre. It would also accommodate children from the Hope Haven Nursery for retarded children in Richmond Hill.

Ward 5 Citizens To Get A Grant

Jim Grady of the Community Development Branch of the provincial government met with the executive of the Ward 5 Citizens' Association and other interested citizens on the evening of December 28. The meeting at St. Paul's United was called by Ward 5 Citizens' Association Chairman Ron Johnson to seek financial assistance in the way of a government grant in order to get the association off the ground.

The association recently named a fund-raising action committee, which will eventually support the group's activities. But it needs initial funding to get projects started. Grady discussed with the executive what is required for a citizens' group to qualify for a grant. He also told the executive about other services which his branch of the government provides to assist initial organization of citizens' groups.

The Ward 5 Citizens' Association will now proceed to make an application, confident that a grant will be made before its next public meeting to be held before the end of January.

Watch this page for the date, time, agenda and place of the next public meeting.
