

HOT DOGS, COFFEE TIME

You can tell it's tournament time again in Richmond Hill. You see these normally healthy ineaten hot dog in one hand, a dangerously balanced coffee in the other, and sucking away on a Tums.

That's the way it'll be for the remainder of the week at the fifth annual Richmond Hill Tournaments Incorporated Midget hockey tournament.

Things really started happening earlier than assist. usual this year. I was into my fifth coffee by the time I staggered through the hallowed portals of the arena to watch the Richmond Hill Midgets down St. Mike's by a 6-2 score Monday morning at 9:30 am.

It was a super way to get the tournament underway although I must admit it took some adjusting to hockey conditions that early in the morning.

number of bright-eyed and alert fans who turned out to see the Richmond Hill youngsters get off on the Seven games later somewhat weary but happy tournament officials were suppressing cackles as they toted up the first day attendance figures.

It was the best first day in at least the last three years. To wit: 1,315 fans on the first day in 1970, 1,434 in 1971, and 1,726 this year. * * * * *

DON'T SPILL ME

I wandered around fighting off vicious attacks on my cups of coffee and wondering about it all. It certainly didn't seem like five years had whistled by since all the action originally got underway. Yes, do remember it well. Mmmh.

There was a promising hockey player by the name of Gerry Methe cavorting around the ice for a Midget hockey team and he turned out to be the big and David Giles an assist each In the first sem-final game hero that season although the locals just missed out for Ace's win. on a tournament win.

It turned out to be the final year to date that a Hill team ever really threatened but that's the way

This time out I had to blink a little when I came across a chap by the name of Daryl Rice watching the action going on below. Could it be that this was the same Rice that I remember interviewing in the second annual hockey tournament?

Yes indeed. That was the year Daryl was the hoped-for spark that would carry the Midgets to a tournament win. Alas, not to be. He was injured and neither he nor his team ever reallly got going.

Now he's in his final year for the Rams and it's almost all history now. Daryl expects to continue his hockey and education at university but more on this later.

Down below other young hopefuls were busy endeavoring to gladden the hearts of the faithful. Chuck Lunau, and Dennis Acomb.

IT'S ALL THERE

The thing about this annual tournament is something slightly difficult to define. There's an atmosphere of anticipation around even though your drew Myers and David Allen Standings favorite local team isn't playing.

There are 32 teams out there and that means something like 480 youngsters doing their thing. They wander in from places like Levack, Kentville, Nova Scotia, Detroit, and you find yourself rooting by Andrew Don and Steven York Simcoe 29 3 16 1 7 Zenio Ferrone and Ross Simp- Peter Tipold. It's the atmosphere. Like I said earlier, you end up on a diet of hot macy were Norman Murphy Bedford, S&G dogs and coffee and by the end of the week you're from Richard Clendinning and Burnett, BAIF picking out your shade of color for an iron lung. But you wouldn't have missed it for the world.
