Nine Alternatives For Transit Are To Be Considered

A survey of TTC passengers June 22 revealed many of the peak hours were crowded by maximum loads but that off-peak buses boarded only 22 persons southbound and 20 northbound. The 299 completed questionnaires which were returned revealed that the prime purpose for using the bus was the journey to work — 62%. Eighty per cent of the trips started or ended north of the Elgin, again indicating that this service could be more effective if its terminus were further north. Other findings of the survey were that more than half the riders start or end their trip within three blocks of Yonge Street; 86% of riders had no other mode of transportation; the most common criticism was that it was too infrequent (59%) and unreliable.

The TTC has indicated that the running time is tight. The buses are allowed only 18 minutes from Steeles to Levedale necessitating an average speed of 19 mph with no slack to take care of unexpected delays. Any increase in time would involve increased costs.

However, this service will have to be rescheduled next spring with the opening of the Yonge Subway northern extension.

TOWN BUSES

Travelways operates the town bus service for the municipality. The town pays the operator at an hourly rate and receives all fare revenue. Approximately 500 passengers a day use the hourly service within the limits of the old town (Routes 1 and 2) and about 100 persons a day use the two-hourly services north and south on Yonge (Routes 3 and 4) which were introduced last fall. Three buses are needed for these services, is a Gray Coach bus to Toronto one each for Routes 1 and 2 and one for the combined Routes 3 and 4. Current cash fare is 25c for adults and 15c for children.

GRAY COACH LINES

Gray Coach Lines operates a Yonge Street service from Newmarket to Toronto, which is supported by GO Transit. The buses are diverted from Yonge to Newkirk Road between Elgin Mills and Markham Roads to pass the GO Station and community parking lot. Each week there are 25 trips in each direction, with a basic hourly service in off peak periods and much greater frequency during peak hours. For example, there is a Gray Coach bus to Toronto every 10 minutes from 6:50 am to 7:50 am.

SCHOOL BUSES

Because the direction of pupil movements is quite different from those of other transit passengers, because their hours overlap with the peak for other passengers and because of the efficiency with which the school boards utilize their buses, there is no real opportunity for integration of the school and public transit systems, this first report stated. However, it also noted that there are several students travelling in unusual directions who might be more efficiently carried by the TTC or town bus services if the boards were to purchase passes or tickets for

MARKET FOR TRANSIT

A survey of local residents carried out for CORDC in 1969 indicated 35% of employed Richmond Hill residents worked in the town, 52% worked in Metro and only 13% in other areas.

Another survey undertaken by the consultants this year indicated that 38% of employees in local industries live in the town and 28% live in Metro. Assuming that non-work trips would also follow this pattern, the conclusion is that there are only two worthwhile transit markets — within Richmond Hill and to and from Toronto.

FUTURE DEVELOPMENT

The Yonge Subway northern extension is scheduled to open to York Mills next year and to Finch in 1974. This will reduce considerably the travel time to downtown Toronto and should encourage greater use of the TTC, Gray Coach and Travelways services. The Gray Coach is planned to terminate at Finch when that station is opened but whether they will stop at York Mills in 1973 is still an open question.

SCHOOL BUSES

An experimental commuter rail service for the area north of Toronto has been announced, with one or two trains per day in each direction. Travel time to downtown Toronto would probably be slightly better than on the existing GO bus service. It will probably increase total transit ridership but reduce use of the two GO bus services, the report says.

Infilling between the south limit of the new town and the old town, residential development west of Yonge and industrial development to the east, with a major regional shopping centre at Carville Road will have a great impact on the town to purchase passes or tickets for transit service.

TRANSIT ALTERNATIVES

The first alternative to be studied will be continuation of all present services.

Alternative 2 — The TTC service to Richmond Hill to be diverted into the Langstaff-Richvale area and the town bus Route 4 (Richvale-Langstaff) service eliminated.

Alternative 3 — Drop support of the TTC service which would then be terminated at Steeles Avenue or Highway 7, route GO buses via Yonge - Centre - Newkirk - Markham - Yonge to subway terminus, picking up anywhere within Richmond Hill, retain town Route 4.

Alternative 4 — Increase frequency on town Route 4, re-route service to meet TTC at Highway 7 with co-ordinated meeting times, short turn TTC at Highway 7.

Alternative 5 — Route 4 or some other town service would travel to the end of the subway, drop support of TTC service.

Alternative 6 — TTC extended north to Elgin Mills Road or Gray Coach extended south to Crosby to effect a transfer point, possible co-ordination of schedules.

Alternative 7 — consolidate town Routes 1 and 2 (within the old town) by eliminating some of the loops, provide hourly service with one bus to reduce costs) or one-half hourly services with two buses (increase service by reducing penetration).

Alternative 8 — replace town Routes 1 and 2 with a Dial-a-bus service.

Alternative 9 — eliminate Route 3 (Oak Ridges) of town service and possibly divert the Gray Coach into Temperanceville or Lake Wilcox.

Headford Community Happenings

CORRESPONDENT: FRANK TUCKER - PHONE 889-2000

This past hot humid oppressive week has, shall we say, sweated away. One morning we passed the TTC bus loaded with clammy perspiring humanity. I fancied as I saw those many faces and the strap-hanging bodies that there were quite a number who had tired blood, some with jungle mouth, others with perspiration wetness, etc. How delighted and privileged I felt, when I witnessed this, to have a comfortable home to return to at the "Headford" of the two small creeks, the Beaver and the Rouge.

These two small rivers have flowed for centuries and have supplied the Indian in time past in his loneliness, the animals, the birds, the fishes and the beasts generally, together with others of mankind who have joined their Indian brothers since. What a blessing these tributaries have been in sustaining life generally!

The palmitist likened men's and women's lives to a refreshing stream. He says: "Blessed are they, who while passing through a desert, turn it into an oasis, a spring of water, that fills the pools and streams roundabout and carries the life-giving refreshment to thirsty mankind around". On the other hand, in the New Testament, you will find the story of King Herod and his heirs. This monarch was very powerful and financially very well-to-do. He had every opportunity, the same as his heirs, to dispense blessing on every hand, but you will find that the stream of this life left behind it murder, intrigue, corruption, licentious and adulterous excesses, leaving history to expose the filthy mire and sludge of that polluted stream that runs from one end to the other through the whole of the New Testament.

Their families' feet tainted wherever they trod, they turned moral men into monstrous murderers, wherever their heel touched there was hell. Vice was constantly vomited out. Herod's men were hauled, humble men were humiliated, good men were hated by the scoundrels, that like jackals followed the Herodian pack. Men were firstly paid for crime and then blackmailed before their families and enemies alike. Their own offspring were ashamed and disgusted before in time their own consciousness became tinged and hardened and, like father, like sons, carelessly they lived, unwanted they died.

Ill habits gather by unseen degrees, As brooks make rivers, rivers run to seas. (Pope)
Men, we are on the march! The price of the haircut is $2.50. I personally am feeling like Samson, by George, I am looking like Samson! And I am scratching like Samson. God bless all those with long hair, but as for me, I am not going to Deilla's hair-dressing salon.

Mike Biggs' garden is looking beautiful, complemented with five lovely ducks and numerous species of wild birds. "Axeman, axeman spare that tree, when I was young, it shielded me". So glad to see Jim Curtis making such a good recovery. Always nice to see your lovely garden, Jim.

Harry and Georgie Burton's house has had a facelift. It is looking very nice. Hail Headford!

Harley and Audrey Horner with family went to Kirkfield for a family reunion. A good time was enjoyed.

Mrs. George Barker won high points in the arrangement classes at the July horticultural show at Richmond Hill.

Bob Burns and family (nephew and niece of Mrs. George Barker) called in on their journey from Dundas to Nova Scotia, where they will be visiting Elizabeth (nee Barker). We send them our best wishes to Elizabeth and husband and Heather, Andrea and Edward.

We were sorry to hear of the lightning strike at the McClackery family home at the Acroon stables last week. There was a lot of water damage.

Karl Wallace is busy painting his home. It's lovely to see this Headford pride of possession coming through, why oh why cannot the small man generally be able in these days of high cost houses to purchase his own acre lot and build his own house? Come on you legislators and politicians, let our people go.

We are sorry to hear that Forrest McDonald is having to visit the hospital again in August.

The Tucker family visited the Kitchener and Waterloo area on Sunday to observe the church group Mennonites in their horse-drawn carriages. It was an awe-inspiring sight to see a group tenaciously holding on to the old traditions, but I fear, similarly to the Roman Catholic nuns and monks with their similar black habit (clothes), they have both sadly missed the joyful Hallelujah of the Resurrection.

Friend Mrs. Elizabeth Foster, 24, of Keswick. At home were his wife, Betty, 22, and a two-year-old child. Allegedly there was an argument. A shotgun blast was fired into a living room wall and again outside.

Back in the house the shotgun barrel was rested on Mrs. Foster's shoulder and fired. She ran to a nearby restaurant to call police while the gun was being reloaded, according to YRP.

Total Eclipse Spectacular

Local Sun Followers Have Long Wait Ahead

Canada will see its next total eclipse of the sun in Manitoba in 1979, but for Richmond Hill NB, which also served as a devotee it's going to be a bit longer—360 years to be exact.

That's the word from Dr. Helen Hogg of Richmond Hill. A member of the staff of the Dunlap Observatory, who journeyed to the Bay of Chaleur in New Brunswick earlier this month to view the sun's total eclipse there, a phenomenon she said was "just spectacular."

It was also a phenomenon she had made plans for the past two years. "I was determined not to miss it," said Dr. Hogg, who observed it with five members of her family.

As it turned out, weather conditions weren't perfect, but it was still "a beautiful view," and the entire family was thrilled.

Dr. Hogg and her party watched the eclipse through binoculars, something they were able to do because it was in its totality—"the really important part"—and had the brightness of moonlight.

Totally becomes evident, she said, with the final burst and blackness of the "diamond ring" on the sun's eastern edge, and then the corona—outer atmosphere of the sun—springs out.
