The planner explained the size, height and number of towers saying the corridor could be as much as 610 feet wide with three lines of towers. He said there would be a total of 75 towers from Bathurst Street to Highway 404.

A new open hot line program with York Region Police Chief Bruce Crawford as inaugural guest is being tried as a new venture by Richmond Hill Cable Television Channel 10 every Thursday at 9:30 pm starting September 7.

The new program will provide an opportunity for local people to ask the questions that they think of when they read the newspapers, says Program Director Kerry Gilmore who will be host for the first night.

The hot line telephone number for the new Talk On 10 program is 884-8113.

Other anticipated guests and topics include the new international airport, federal election candidates, abortion, regional government and its officials. At a later date hot line programs on health food and diet habits are planned.

Education Board Talks Back

John Roberts, MP York Simcoe, criticized York County Board of Education in a letter to the board, and was in turn criticized himself Monday.

The Roberts letter was received by the school board with copies of resolutions from the Towns of Newmarket, Vaughan and Aurora, all opposing additional charges for use of the schools throughout the region.

Aurora also supported Vaughan's resolution that nothing be done until after a meeting with council representatives.

Mr. Roberts said he was concerned about the board's proposal to charge $11 an hour for recreational and outside facilities at the schools. The board has charged that costs for the 10,000 separate uses of its schools for recreational purposes in 1971, were close to $100,000.

The board doesn't get any grant for recreation, but must cover this under its regular educational expenditures ceiling as set by the provincial government.

Last year it kept under the ceiling; included in this was the $100,000 recreational cost.

To stay under the ceiling, the board would have to transfer this recreation cost to "extraordinary expenditures," which are not covered by grants.

So far, however, the board has met with little sympathy from both the public and municipalities in its proposals to charge a fee.

In his letter, Mr. Roberts said: "If the board maintains this position, it will have a crippling effect on the provision of sporting services to the young people of our area. It seems extremely unfortunate that, as these facilities are available, such high user fees are to be charged."

Mr. Roberts asked the board to reconsider its stand.

Trustee Robert Houghton of Richmond Hill was less diplomatic in his reply to the criticism.

Mr. Houghton said that it was "unbelievable" that Mr. Roberts would write such a letter without checking the data. He obviously thought letters solved all problems.

"I'm glad to receive the letter," said Mr. Houghton. "I know where I'll file it."

Trustee Mrs. Margaret Coburn, King, said the board was concerned with the children's privileges; it was strictly a budget matter.

The letter was referred to the committee on the community use of schools.

NEWMARKET: As a result of investigating a 30-cent candy theft York Regional Police believe they've solved a rash of break-ins involving about $12,000 in damages and $500 in stolen cash and merchandise. Two youths and six juveniles have been charged.

AURORA: Aurora Council will ask York County Board of Education not to charge users or tax municipalities for community use of schools until more discussion on the issue has taken place. Council endorsed a Vaughan Council motion asking that the board take "no action."
