hope; helping Canadian Champions Dynes Jewellers get to the Philippines where they won the World Championship; introducing them in the House of Commons (even though ruled out of order by the Speaker) and seeing that they met the Prime Minister; fighting in the caucus and the House and seeing your impact on legislation is a satisfaction for a member and makes a political life rewarding.

CANADIAN ECONOMY
Jean-Luc Pepin, Minister of Industry, Trade and Commerce in the Trudeau Government, introduced by Donald Descon, M.L.A. York Centre, as "one of the most effective voices on cooperative Canada," stated he was tired of having people talk about Canadian economies being bad and quoted statistics after statistic to prove that this statement is false.

For instance the industrial increase of 8.8% in the second quarter of this year compares most favorably with that of the USA, favorably with Japan and is considerably better than Sweden, Britain and Belgium where the percentage is decreasing, he noted. Retail sales are up 3%, housing starts 25%, corporate profits 25%, labor income 11%. "We must look closely at what others are doing, before we can get the true picture," he claimed.

Exports are up 12.5% in a period when those of our main clients are going down or leveling off, the speaker said. Imports are up 22% because of very high demand and reflecting a good economic picture. Mr. Pepin happily noted that 39.8% of these exports are in end products, while eight years ago the percentage was only 12. He reported that 47.9% of exports to the USA are in end products, in contradiction to claims that we are sending nothing but raw materials to that market. "I find it very difficult to share the words of gloom uttered by so many people," he declared.

Speaking on his own record in industry, trade and commerce, he stressed the importance given to research and developing a support system; improvement of the industrial sector stratagems on tourism, computers, textiles and shipyards; bilateral and multi-lateral agreements all over the world. "Missions I have led to China, the Soviet, Germany, Israel and Algeria, which have always included a number of businessmen, have enhanced our exports. The Chinese have been buyers of our wheat but already, following the recent trade mission to that country, we are receiving substantial orders for other products — uranium, nickel, sulphur products. I am confident orders for manufactured products will follow soon. The Chinese are showing great interest in our electronic products and planes, particularly those manufactured in this area."

He reported that his department had poured $119 million in assistance into Toronto area businesses in the past four years. "If you are interested the Montreal area received $84 million in the same period."

"Research, new products and new development have resulted from this assistance which I can assure you would not have taken place or would not have taken place in Canada without this support," Mr. Pepin stated. "These are not windfalls, in fact the improvement in technology and equipment in areas of very high risk were financed on a 50/50 basis with the company. Assistance to industry is very necessary since 20% of our gross national product depends on exports. Our people must be internationally competitive so the rate of corporation income tax cannot be higher than it is in other countries. We must consider what the U.S.A., USSR and the Japanese are doing for their industries. If anyone feels that Canada can be totally different, I don't want to be here to see the result of that gamble."

AID FOR SMALL BUSINESS
Mr. Pepin also noted that some people are trying to say assistance is given only to big companies. "This is not true.

"With this record, why do we still have opposition?" he asked and went on to explain that all indexes can not be favorable. "Rising food prices are good for the farmer but not for the housewife. Rising labor income is a good thing for the workers but creates a rise in industrial cost which might price you out of the market. Improvement in technology and innovation is most desirable in international trade, but is bad for employment. We can't win all the way because some indexes are in conflict. One day the opposition will attack the government on the high cost of food, the next day they dwell on the fate of the farmers. One day they criticize the government for the high cost of living and the next denounce the growth of imports (which contribute to the lowering of the cost of living). How you can reconcile this is out of my comprehension."
