Papal Blessing Highlight Mudd-Roman Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Othon Mudd are seen following their wedding on September 2 at St. Mary Immaculate Roman Catholic Church in Richmond Hill. The beautiful bride, Angela Maria, is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen B. Roman of Unionville. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas O. Mudd of Laredo, Texas.

The event was a ceremonially important occasion with a Papal Blessing and a cable from Pope Pius VI. Three bishops officiated assisted by 15 members of the clergy and two choirs — the Slovakian Choir of Detroit and St. Michael's Cathedral Choir.

The groom is a graduate of George Washington University in Washington while the bride attended Loretto Abbey, University of Western Ontario and for the past year studied in Paris. They plan to make their home in Mexico.

Getting The Right Teacher With The Right Student

"It was beautiful in England, France was spectacular and Spain very inexpensive. I am so sorry that the weather here wasn't so pleasant." This is what the returning teachers delight in saying with a self-satisfied smug smile. They add, "Maybe next year, when we're in Hawaii, there'll be nice weather here and we'll get monsoon rains." I give them a gritty grin and agree that, "It couldn't happen to more deserving people."

These are the teachers who breeze into a classroom that first day, casually observe that the schools on the "continent" are much more beautiful and exciting, that the Folies Bergere is over-rated and then ask the students "Now what exciting things did you do this summer? Tell me in 100 words or less — watch your punctuation." How do you write 100 exuberant words about having hamburgers in the back yard? When the pupils have difficulty getting started the teacher concludes that they are verging on being moronic and certainly incapable of any decent lucid written expression.

The truly dramatic teacher claps a hand to his brow, gazes painfully heavenward, and pleads loudly for deliverance. I'd just love to deliver him. Unfortunately there's always the naive student who will ask if he can use 1000 words since it's so difficult to describe one's exploits while on an African safari in so few words. Someone will give this boy a copy of "How to Win Friends". I'd suggest the teacher read it first.

But before the teachers spoil that first day by attempting to inject some education, I think that even Christmas is not more eagerly anticipated. Both sexes get hair cuts, fuss with their clothes, layer on blemish creams, shine their shoes and generally go hyper. There are more hair curlers in use on Labor Day than any other day of the year. Fortunately the weather on Tuesday the 6th this year was clear and dry and the girls' hair retained its kink 'til way past noon. If it had rained I'm sure many girls would have wanted to kill themselves.

School is a social world and the kids show it. I'm not against education. I think there should be a little bit in every school but let's retain a reasonable perspective.

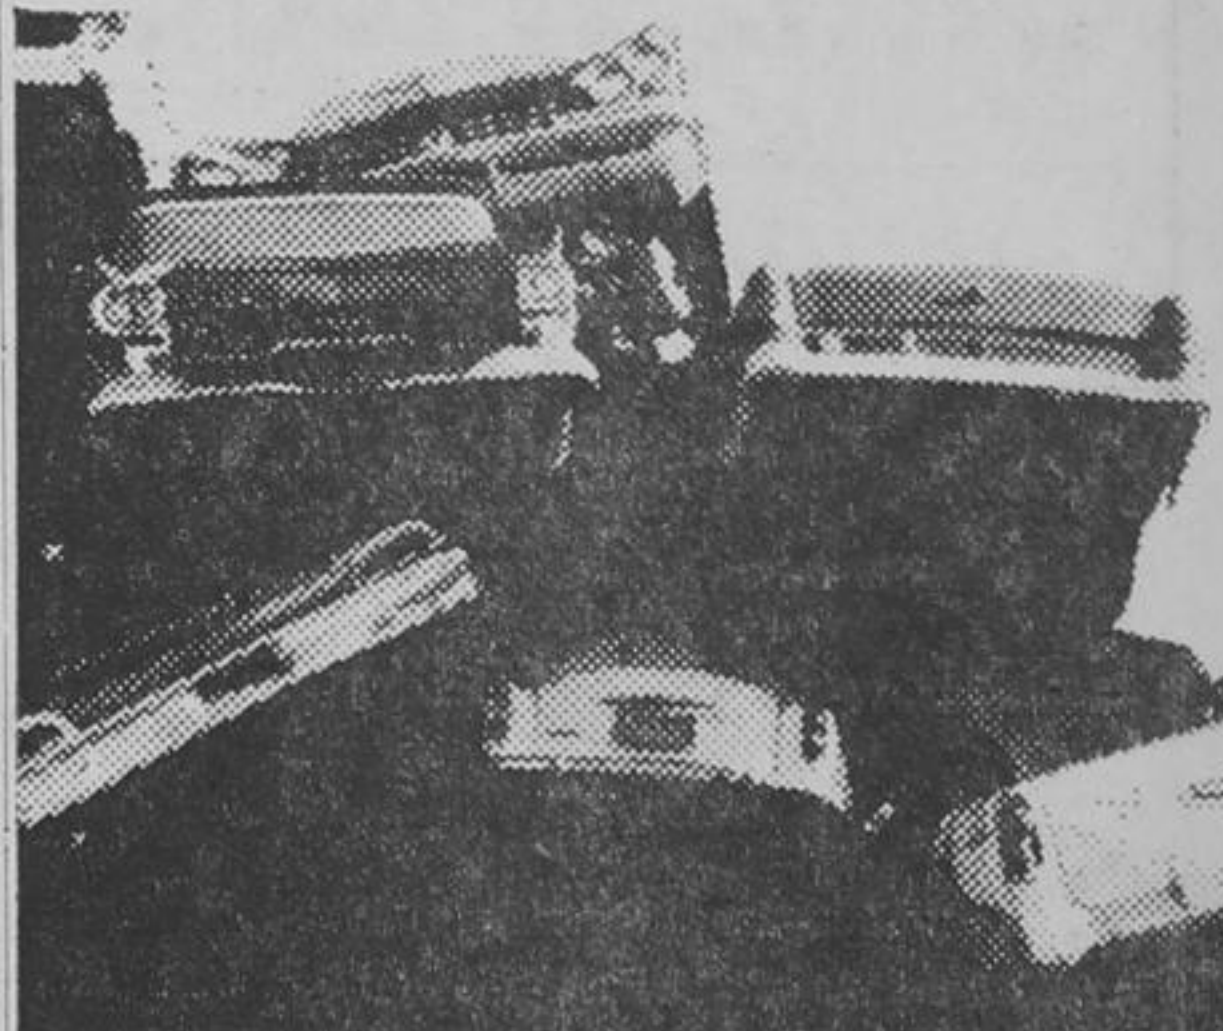

Invariably though, after classes have been assigned, there'll be an improper mix. Responsible principals who know their teachers and their students make an honest effort to place the right student with the right teacher. This is tremendously important in the primary grades. If a child enjoys and benefits from his first two years of school it can carry him right through to university — if he doesn't then he may fight school 'til he can quit. Give your child the month of September but if by then he still isn't comfortable in his class then I urge parents to make an appointment to discuss it with the principal. If any change can be effected it should be done in the interests of the child. At the high school level, students usually have learned to learn despite the teacher but in an intolerable situation, see your guidance counsellor and ask for a different class. I must, in fairness, point out that the classroom mix has two ingredients. A rotten apple, be it teacher or student, will spoil any barrel. I've had students transferred regularly from class to class since I considered it manifestly unfair that any one teacher or class should bear the burden all year.

At the beginning of another series of columns, I'd like to thank "The Liberal" for allowing me to maintain my anonymity. This allows me the essential freedom to detail the foibles of my colleagues and my profession without violent physical reprisal. My experience at all levels from primary to post-secondary I trust has given the column some degree of credibility. Like most teachers, I enjoy expounding and so the writing gives me pleasure. It does distress me that there is so little response. I had hoped that you would write and suggest topics and questions that would launch me into great flights of rhetoric.

Until that happens, I'll continue shouting into the well leaning closer and closer 'til I tumble in — any teacher who has tried to teach a dull concept to disinterested students knows how I feel.

Sign Proclaims Church Week

A new sign at the corner of Yonge and Centre Streets, Richmond Hill, proclaims the approach of "Church Week" in Canada and specifically the preparation for a "people festival" called "Beat '72" which is to take place the weekend of October 21 and 22 at Richmond Hill United Church.

The symbol on this sign is composed of two basic parts. The first is a combination of the triangle, square and circle, symbolizing the many types of people in the world. The second is the arrow which represents these people moving up together in today's world. The combination signifies that in the building of a better world, "People make it happen".

Some of the activities included in this happening are: a special service on Sunday morning when Dr. George Morrison, secretary of the General Council of the United Church in Canada, will preach; displays of work the church is doing locally and around the world and a panel presentation on the church and its role in the development of the third world.
