Beat '72

People Make It Happen During Church Week At RH United Church

As part of its Beat '72 celebration this weekend at Richmond Hill United Church the program for 8 p.m. Sunday is entitled "UNCLAD! What in the world is that?"

The program is being arranged by Professor and Mrs. Alex McLeod who have had extensive exposure to the problems of the Middle East, Central America and the Caribbean.

The title, UNCLAD, refers to the United Nations Commission on Trade and Development, and its work is primarily with the "Third World", the so-called developing countries.

The program will begin with the film "Tauw", filmed by African film makers in Senegal in Southeast Africa, and discussion will focus on Canada's involvement in helping to meet the needs of the people portrayed in the film.

Two panelists, Professor Selwyn Ryan of Trinidad and Professor Rudy Grant of Guyana will discuss these same problems with specific application to the Commonwealth Caribbean.

Professor Ryan taught for two years in a university in Uganda before joining the faculty at York University, and is very much in demand for interviews on radio and television.

Professor Grant comes from Guyana on the north coast of South America and is now teaching social sciences at York. Both men are colleagues of Professor McLeod, who is with the department of economics at Atkinson College, York University.

For three years, Professor McLeod was governor of the Central Bank in Trinidad and Tobago, and was for many years with the international monetary fund.

The McLeods lived for some years in Saudi Arabia and in Trinidad. Professor McLeod has also worked in various countries in Central America.

Both Professor and Mrs. McLeod were very much involved in church work in the countries in which they lived, and Mrs. McLeod now runs a bureau for university faculty families at York, assisting new families with housing needs and helping to acquaint them with community services.

All people in the community are invited to spend the evening at the church. There will be displays of work the church is doing locally and around the world.

The 11 a.m. service will be followed by a smorgasbord luncheon for members of the congregation. The speaker at the service will be Dr. George Morrison, secretary of the general council of the United Church in Canada.

At 8 pm Sunday evening, people of all ages are invited to join the young people for a program of folk rock presented by the St. Luke's Group, a group which has entertained widely and is said to have bridged the generation gap with their vibrant message in music.

The original St. Mary's Anglican Church, built in 1872 following (in a small way) the design of St. James Cathedral in Toronto, has been used as a chapel since 1964 when the new church was built. In this its Centennial year, it has been refurbished and redecorated and on September 17 was re-dedicated by Rt. Rev. Lewis Garnsworthy, Bishop of Toronto. The spire was built about a decade after the church and its bell has summoned the faithful to worship, has pealed for the newlyweds and tolled for the dead since that time.

The chapel will continue to serve the community in many ways and its very attractive appearance is seen in the above picture.

Original St. Mary's Is Rededicated

The Centennial Year celebrations of St. Mary's Anglican Church, Richmond Hill, commenced September 17 when a service of Holy Communion and re-dedication was held with Bishop Lewis Garnsworthy as guest preacher.

The procession to the chapel for the service of re-dedication included the Bishop, Rev. Bernard Barrett and Rev. Fred Jackson, Rev. W. F. Wrixon, and in the ecumenical spirit, Father Francis Robinson of Our Lady Queen of the World Roman Catholic Parish, Warden Bob Painter and Jack Walker, Mayor William Lazenby and Richmond Hill Town Councillors Shaun Beggs, Andy Chauvert, Gordon Rowe and Dave Schiller, the "Cornerstones", members of St. Mary's for 25 years or more and the children of the church school.

The service in the chapel was witnessed by the capacity congregation in the church by means of closed circuit TV. Approximately 400 persons adjourned to Wrixon Hall for the luncheon which followed in the hall and in the corridors many photographs, written texts and mementoes were displayed stirring many hidden memories in the viewers. Parishioners who pre-dated 1952 were pleased to renew acquaintance with Mr. Wrixon and to meet Mrs. Wrixon.

Wardens Painter and Walker extended a warm welcome to all and Donald Little, spokesman for the "Cornerstones" recalled many amusing incidents from the early years. Those longtime parishioners who were unable to attend were sent Centennial pins, an order of service and in the case of local residents, flowers from the altar. Roses for Mrs. Garnsworthy were presented to the Bishop, and a pleasant surprise to all, including the recipients, was a presentation to Mr. Jackson and roses to Mrs. Jackson, in a token of gratitude to him for the many months when he cheerfully carried the burden of St. Mary's on his shoulders.

The Centennial Committee of St. Mary's has made a donation to the Chapel Memorial Fund in appreciation of the service of the "Cornerstones" and already many present and former parishioners are making thank-offerings to the fund which the late Rev. David McGuire initiated for the preservation of this historic building. The many members of St. Mary's who gave so freely of their time and effort to make this opening ceremony of the Centennial Celebrations such a success were amply rewarded by the numbers in attendance.

Trying Out For Your Favorite Team

Every morning there are announcements over the PA concerning various athletic activities scheduled for the immediate or near future. A great number of students participate in these events regularly. This is a fact which, considering the number of sports available and the time consumed both in practising and actually playing a game, is undeniably admirable.

All of us cannot engage in these demanding pastimes, but for those who can and do, taking part in a game or meet and belonging to a team, involves something very satisfying and important.

For most team sports, such as volleyball, basketball or soccer, tryouts are necessary. This usually means a series of about ten practices, in which each person's skills are assessed. When the final list of chosen members is posted, there is often disappointment as well as pleasant surprise. But one team member informed me that those who tried and did not make a team, usually attend games faithfully, cheering with the rest of them.

Practices begin immediately, taking place every morning, or at 3:30 pm, for at least two weeks before the first game. The members themselves admit that an authoritative hand is almost always required to attend these meetings, or else the players are apt to "fool around".

I asked a number of people what they felt before, during and after games, and their remarks indicated everything from nervous paralysis to confident nonchalance. Most of them agreed, however, that being on a team involves a good deal of camaraderie: Someone will always console you after a mistake, and team spirit, no matter how numerous the losses, is never absent. Quite a few people mentioned that if anything, losing occasionally is good for a team as it increases the desire to win.

Opinions about the duties of the coach were unanimous. He (or she) builds up morale, points out mistakes, devises strategies, and lessens individual depressions as a result of a bad play. Team sports can be strained, with six other people relying on you, or as one person put it "breathing down your neck".

If there are any complaints concerning officiating, they are almost always rejected, no matter how articulate, although "discussions" may be held after a game, if something really rankles. There is also a rule in some games (soccer for example) that prevents the same referee from officiating more than one game.

And finally, there is the question of to what extent athletics infringe upon academic work. A lot of people restrict themselves to one sport — others don't. But to all those who do take part, that one sport is a necessity. One girl noticed that at a time of full athletic involvement, her marks soared. She could even express herself better.

Therefore, there is a lot of sense in having what psychiatrists would call "an outlet for aggressions," but we'll call it "youthful high spirits."
