Correspondent — MRS. MARY WATTS, 43 Spruce Avenue - 889-5787

November 11 is "Remembrance Day" giving us the opportunity to recall the men and women who gave their lives in two World Wars.

The following poem, so beautifully written by Vicky Bondreau, a grade eight student from Roselawn, describes the anguish of many who awaited news of their loved ones.

"Loves No Joke"
She looked into the sunlight,
She'd look into the dawn,
She looked into the moonlight,
Then prayed he'd soon be home,
Then the early morning came,
As thoughts passed through her head,
I wonder if he's alive and well,
But God, please, not dead!
Well, she looked into the sunlight,
She'd look into the dawn,
She looked into the moonlight,
And hoped he'd soon be home,
Then one day, a note did come,
She found he had been killed,
She knew now he'd not be home,
As her tears began to fall,
She looked into the sunlight,
She'd look into the dawn,
But couldn't face the moonlight,
Her life had now just gone,
Then a foot came on the stepway,
A knock just on the door,
Then a man walked into the room,
"Honey, I'm home!"

gating the possibilities of enrolling in a St. John's Ambulance Course. A large number of the girls have already earned certificates in their Brownie and Guide years, but since then the certificates have expired.

The money from the book sale which took place at the mother's auxiliary meeting on November 1 is going towards the Save Our Souls project.

Books which were not sold at the mother's meeting are available at a very moderate price at the Richvale Public Library on Pearson Ave.

At the last meeting, reports were made by Sarah Newman on the production "Godspell" which the girls saw on October 29, and by Brenda Hills, who is forming a correspondence with a Ranger and her company in Australia. Instructions for communications came from the "Canadian Post Box", who find pen pals for Guides, Brownies and Rangers throughout the world.

November 7 is the date for the Potluck Supper for the mothers of the girls in our area. Ladies will be contacted by telephone about the details.

Another date to keep in mind is February 20, 1973, when the annual mother-daughter banquet is scheduled.

School Bulletin
On Tuesday October 31, the Langstaff football team beat Markham, 44-0 on the home field. So far they have been undefeated, so will compete in the North York Championships.

With the recent acquisition of a ping-pong table for the student's use at activity periods, Langstaff may yet have some table-tennis championships.

Several groups of students from Roselawn Senior Public School have visited the McMichael Conservation Collection of Art in Kleinburg during the past week. Such visits are arranged by art teacher, Barb Rubie as a supplement to the art course in the school. The students visit on a voluntary basis under the supervision of teachers and parents.

The next meeting of the executive of the Roselawn Association is planned for the evening November 22. Topics to be discussed will be the proposed budget for the 72-73 school year for association funds and the schedule of general meetings.

See you at the "Novemberfest" on November 10. I have a few tickets, at 43 Spruce, for your convenience.

The CFM are having their second meeting of the season at the home of the McArthur's, 126 Patricia Drive, King City.

Stan and Mary Watts from 43 Spruce Avenue will be leading the discussion for the evening, the theme, "Teach us to love." So far there are six couples with Rev. Kenneth Pearce, from St. Mary's, as our spiritual advisor.

Senior Citizens
On Saturday, November 4, at the Lion's Hall, the Senior Citizens bazaar was a huge success, despite inclement weather. A vote of thanks is given to all who contributed in any way. There were many tables of interesting articles; knitting, baking, white elephant, novelties, toys and books.

A presentation of one dozen roses was made to Carrie Reid as a thank you for the beautiful quilt she made, and to Fred Silk, who did the fine oil painting, a gift of equal value was given to him. Both of them are Senior Citizens.

The lucky winners of the draws were: First prize quilt to Evely Pedersen, 37 16th Avenue, number 652; 2nd prize, a bottle of imported perfume, went to V. Jardine of the Villa, number 485; 3rd prize, a hand mixer, to A. Kramer, West Mall, Etobicoke, number 71.

Another 1st prize, an oil painting, goes to Peter Karpus, Spruce Avenue; 2nd prize, a hand painted cream and sugar set to A. Drury, winning No. 86; 3rd prize, a hairdo at Richvale Beauty Salon, was won by Rita Alexander, of 71 Edgar Ave., with number 82.

The coin draw winner was Fred Silk, an artist from 19 Denham Drive.

Any girls interested in joining majorettes come with your mother to the Lion's Hall, November 13, 7:15 pm. For further information phone 884-5097 evenings.

Three School Board Seats Open Markham

The necessity for maintaining some continuity in administration of the schools in the region is one of the chief reasons John MacKay, 167 John Street, Thornhill, has given in declaring his intention to seek re-election to York County Board of Education as a trustee for the Town of Markham.

Recent legislation has increased membership of the board from 18 to 20. Due to the phenomenal growth in the Markham-Richmond Hill area, the Town of Markham will be represented by five trustees for the two-year term beginning in January. It now has four.

JOHN MacKAY

There will also be two Roman Catholic representatives instead of one. One will represent of Roman Catholic School supporters in the Richmond Hill - Markham area, and one will be elected to represent the rest of the region.

TWO TRUSTEES LEAVING
Since the county board came into being in 1969 Markham has been well represented by four seasoned trustees. Current incumbents are Mrs. Louise Aimone, Mr. MacKay, and John Honsberger, all of Thornhill, and Mrs. Merna Colbourne who have served for five years on the old Town of Markham Board and is now completing her fourth year as a trustee on the county board.

Mrs. Aimone, who served on the Markham Township Area 1 Board before she was elected to the county board has declared her intention to retire from the board.

Mrs. Colbourne has moved to Mount Albert since her re-election two years ago and says she cannot represent the people of Markham when she no longer lives there. She may, however, stand as a candidate for trustee in her own municipality - East Gwillimbury.

CONTINUITY ESSENTIAL
Mr. MacKay, who was a member of the Markham Township Area 1 board for five years and served as chairman of the county board for two years - 1969 and 1970 - admits he had seriously considered dropping out this year, but this would mean that there could be four new, inexperienced trustees representing Markham in the two year term to begin in January. This, he said, would not be fair to the board.

The fourth incumbent from Markham, John Honsberger, 60 Elgin Street, served as trustee and chairman of the York Central District High School Board for several years before his election in 1968 to the county board.

A report brought in and approved by the board last month seems to provide workable guidelines on community use of schools said MacKay, but it is not enough just to approve a report. The board and the municipalities must have on-going constant communication to make this workable.

AVOID DUPLICATION
Each, said MacKay, must jealously guard its money and it is not right for the board to use money intended for education to subsidize programs not related to education.

On the other hand, it is most important to guard against duplication. It does not make sense, he said, to build a community hall and have it standing idle day after day. "When you build a building you have to heat it whether it is being used or not, and you have to light it."

The same applies to schools which are in use only during regular school hours.

To see that this does not happen, MacKay said, "We must keep each other informed from day to day." If this is not done it is the public who pay in higher taxes for both education and recreation.

CO-OPERATE WITH TOWN
All four Markham trustees have been strong representatives, active on committees and contributing a great deal to the reconstruction of the education system since the 24 area boards and associations were amalgamated to form a county board, serving on and chairing numerous standing and ad hoc committees.

To have four, and possibly five, new trustees from Markham would be too big a change, MacKay told "The Liberal". "It is important that there be some continuity. It is also important to maintain the good relations that have been established between the board and the municipality."

A good part of this co-operation, said MacKay, should be at the political level, it cannot all be done at staff level.

USE OF SCHOOLS
Since its inception, the board has had a standing committee on the use of schools. The objective was to work out a program that would make schools available to the public on a year-round basis through co-operation with recreation committees in the various municipalities.

Many facilities could be shared with school board co-operation, said MacKay, and regional and municipal organizations such as library boards and health unit.

"It will not come easy, we will have to talk together to work it out, there must be constant communication, a lot of patient work."

KEEP PUBLIC INFORMED
Mr. MacKay was chairman of the board committee that worked with the Town of Markham to plan a swimming pool that will be a part of the new wing of Thornlea Secondary School in Thornhill and will be shared by the school and by the municipality — the first of its kind in the region.

Communications with the public are important, said MacKay. "I try to get to the schools as often as I can, to parents' meetings, to get close to the local issues."

Because of this, he said, he feels it is important that as many seasoned trustees as are able attempt to stay with the board, to help new trustees.

MacKay represents York County Board of Education as a director of the Ontario Public School Trustees Association, and has represented the board many times at meetings of town and regional councils. He has also been active on all committees of the board that have in the past four years met with the Ministry of Education on various matters.

In the past year the committee was successful in persuading the province to alter the education grant structure to help compensate for losses of revenue that would have put many boards in serious financial difficulties. Re-assessment of farm lands reduced the overall assessment value of the region by more than $30 million.

HOSPITAL
HOSPITAL
In private life, MacKay is a hospital administrator and is on the session and board of trustees of Thornhill Presbyterian Church. He is active in medical group management and has just served a term as president of the Medical Group Management Association, an international association, and is now first vice-president of the Medical Group Management Association of Canada.

His wife, Mary, is very active in the work of the cancer society. Their daughter, Janet has graduated in arts and science from the University of Western Ontario and is now working toward an honors degree in physical education. Their son, Ian, is also at Western, working toward a degree in business administration. Both Janet and Ian are graduates of Thornhill Secondary School, and for several years Ian played Junior "A" hockey for Thornhill.

Obituary

EDITH KING
This is also the time to acknowledge the services of a local resident, Edith King, of Maryvale Crescent, who passed away in September of this year, yet while fighting a fatal illness, always found time to show love for others in her community.

The church, local hospital auxiliary, Guides and Brownies, a sick neighbor; all received her untiring attention. The neighboring children were always welcome in her home.

She will be long remembered by her many friends and neighbors for the wonderful example of strength, cheerfulness and courage she has given them.

Young Canada Book Week
November 15-22

A PRIVATE VIEW OF STANLEY SPENCER by Louise Collis: This very private posthumous narrative by Stanley Spencer's second wife depicts the sexually tortuous character of this renowned artist. Much that was obscure in his paintings is explained in this painful exposure.

ALAS POOR FATHER by Joan Fleming. Skillfully written ingenious plotting and excellent characterisation are the ingredients which make this another fine mystery from a versatile pen.

CATCH ME A COLOBUS by Gerald Durrell. Further entertaining reading on zoo collecting by this veteran author on the subject, and founder of the famous Jersey Zoo.

TWICE OVER LIGHTLY by Helen Hayes and Anita Loos. These two famous women have compiled a very different book on New York by visiting and presenting the off-beat, lesser known byways and institutions of this fascinating and in their eyes much maligned city.

The verve and sardonic wit we expect from Anita Loos is all here with the gentle perception and persuasion of Helen Hayes as a balancing factor.

NEILL! NEILL! ORANGE PEEL! by G. S. Neill. The controversial school, "Summerhill" is shown in a gradual unfolding of perseverance towards a goal of changing child education and its methods.

YOUNG CANADA WEEK — November 15-22 — As part of the program for Young Canada Book Week, Pat McClellan, author, nature lover, and housewife with a community conscience (she writes also of the area around her, and is active in community affairs) will assume her author's face for the children of Markham, November 15, at 4 pm.

She and her illustrator-artist, Shirley Day, will bring the original books "The Cheeky Chipmunk" and a "Question of Chills" (two of a series of six Indian legends) and will illustrate the book making process from idea to execution. Both parents and children are cordially invited to attend this first hand look at the evolution of a book at the Markham Centennial Library, 199 Main Street North in Markham.

Mrs. McClellan is the author of "Cladnes Please Provide" a charming look of the history of Cedar Grove compiled through conversations with its inhabitants, and two other books for children also illustrated by Shirley Day—a book of poetry "Any Time At All" and "The Birthday Star".

Best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Allan Elliott who were wed 30 years ago on November 14.

Birth day greetings to Glenn Tocholk who will be nine years old on November 14 and Dorothy Gonzales who will be 11 years old on this same date.
