*cna The Liberal

An Independent Weekly: Established 1878

Subscription Rate $6.00 per year; to United States $7.00; 15¢ Single copy Member Audit Bureau of Circulations Member Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association Published by Richmond Hill Liberal Publishing Co.

Division of Burlington Printing Co. Ltd. W. S. COOK, Publisher "Second class mail, registration number 0190"

Centennial Is Yours

Only eight days remain before the start of Richmond Hill's Homecoming Week - June 15 to 24 inclusive. The hard-working members of the town's Centennial Committee have put in countless hours to see that this highlight of Centennial year is a grand success — a credit to the municipality and a source of pleasure to all residents, present and past. They have enlisted the help of many, many more citizens.

The plans are completed and with the co-operation of the weatherman that week will be like no other week in the history of the town.

It will get underway in the afternoon of June 15 when open house will be held at the L. M. McConaghy Public School on Yonge Street South to which all former pupils of that school under its present and past name Richmond Hill Public School are invited. The celebrations will continue in the evening with a dance in the arena for graduates of Richmond Hill High School.

The biggest parade ever in Richmond Hill will start at Industrial Road and Yonge at 1:30 pm and proceed south to Markham Road, east to Pugsley to the central park. Led by the 48th Highlanders bands, it will contain more than 50 floats as well as marching groups, and is expected to last three hours. There will be a program in the central park in the afternoon, an antique display in the chapel of St. Mary's Anglican Church (for the whole week) and a tattoo by the 48th in the evening. and a dance in the evening.

The next day brings the 156th anniversary of the Presbyterian body in the town and their friends Church with a cemetery decora- and relatives who are not fortuntion service and dedication of a ate enough to live here but who plaque in memory of a first min- will be made most welcome as ister, Rev. William Jenkinson, who they join us in our celebrations. came to the settlement in 1817. Concerts will be held in the park, your celebrations! Participate and starting at 2 pm.

Monday evening will see the unveiling of a plaque commemorating the Centennial at the town hall with a special council meeting, and Saturday evening will bring Count Basie and his orchestra to Arena 67.

From June 20 to June 22 the three Lions Clubs in the town will co-operate in providing four hours of varied entertainment and all week long the Richmond Hill Firefighters will have a beer garden in the old arena.

Thursday there will be a rock band dance and Saturday bantam girls' softball and lawn bowling tournaments. The Legion will officially open its new headquarters that same night and a drumhead service will close out the week on Sunday.

To the above list should be added the events of this weekend, which are also noteworthy. The minor ball association's Centennal 100 Tournament will continue both Saturday and Sunday. Friday evening Miss Richmond Hill Centennial will be chosen from the six ward princesses already selected at a dance in the Arena which features Catherine Mc-Kinnon, Billy Meek, Vic Franklin and Peter Appleyard and his orchestra. Saturday an heirloom tea will be held at the Presbyterian Church. The same day will bring the first pipe band competitions to this town. Sponsored by the Legion the Highland festival will feature. besides the pipe bands, sky divers, a Legion tug-of-war, beef barbecue

There is something for every-

This is your town! These are enjoy them to the full!

ning Committee and planning mit, each sale of property, each staff are wrestling with one of new building design and each the most monumental, complicat- zoning decision. ed, long-term and important local Probably even more important

The most important ingredient needed now is grass roots Thornhill participation and support. Perhaps it is unfortunate that for so long the businessmen and property owners along this section of Yonge Street have failed to form an improvement organization. Perhaps what is needed is a board of trade. It may be this lack which is to blame for the neglect this streetscape has suffered until now.

Studies and plans will go largely for naught if the elected representatives don't get citizen support. This is not to say, at this point at least, that the technical planners and council committee chaired by Regional Councillor Robert Adams of Thornhill have found all the right answers. Public hearings and many meetings will be needed even to sort out those matters which are now ripe for decision. And we can safely all of the people all of the time.

a long series of elected councils as well. and committees.

streetscape through our area will street is an extremely high also depend on the hard work of priority item. We commend the planners and councils in other ad- local planners for at last taking joining local towns, as well as the job in hand. We urge taxthose at the regional and provin- payers and residents to give the cial levels. Improvement will planners co-operation and support.

Markham Town Council's Plan- come with each new building per-community planning problems. will be the level of loving care and They are trying to bring order attention each owner lavishes on out of chaos along their side of his Yonge Street property. Just Yonge Street through Thornhill. as important, and something Their's is an heroic effort. A which the town authorities can huge amount of study material most easily do something about has been prepared and guidelines quickly, is the care and attention for improvement have been form- given each foot of publicly owned right-of-way—the street itself.

We agree most heartily with the Markham planners that Yonge Street has developed in a fragmented manner and that it contains a set of mixed uses. We might almost have said a chaotic mixture of uses. Still, the street through Thornhill retains a large amount of natural charm and has a fair degree of human attractiveness. The planners can build on these good attributes. Every improvement can be a stride for-

It is alarming to be told by the planners that the existing Official Plan and zoning controls tend to perpetuate an undesirable land use pattern and the trend toward chaos. The unhappy results of such a state of affairs and such neglect can be seen by us all along stretches of Yonge Street below Steeles Avenue whenever we journey south through Metro.

The attractiveness and charm say those decisions won't please along Yonge Street, the human environment there, is critically im-Further, the nature of the portant for the many thousands of problem is such that it won't be people living nearby. It is the face settled, or even nearly worked out we turn toward the many thousthis year by these planners and ands of passers by. In addition, by this Markham Town Council. the economic health of Yonge The problem is one involving many Street has a heavy and direct properties and many owners over financial impact on municipal many years ahead. It will involve corporations and their taxpayers

Planning the economics, utility Improvement of the Yonge and aesthetics of this key local

Artist-Illustrator Gibson House Show

ink sketches by North York be on view in the lower gal- "Canada North". lery at Willowdale's Gibson July 1.

illustrator of books and Christmas mail.

paintings, watercolors and featured in Pierre Berton's Pioneer and Historical So-"Mysterious North", and he shared with A. Y. Jackson ciety for some years, Par-Artist William Parlane will in illustrating Farley Mowat's lane and his wife are vivid House Museum, beginning TB seals were chosen from 5172 Yonge Street, behind Saturday and continuing to designs from all ten provin- the Willowdale Post Office. etc. It featured Eskimo It is open from 9:30 am to 5 A graduate of Ontario carvings, and ten million pm daily, and noon to 5 pm College of Art, Parlane has were used by Canadians Sundays. Admission cost is

A collection of a crylic magazines. His maps were A member of the York collectors of Canadiana.

His design for Canada's The Gibson House is at worked extensively as an everywhere to brighten their 50c for adults and 25c for

THE PIPES AND DRUMS OF THE 48TH HIGHLANDERS OF CANADA, CWO J. ROSS STI WART, CD. PIPE MAJOR 48th Highlanders Will Lead Big Centennial Parade

The swing of the kilt, the skirl of the pipes, the beat those who enjoy the color and good music of marching bands. of the drums and the stirring music of one of Canada's top The pipe and brass band will be joined by the regiment's military bands, is coming to Richmond Hill June 16, as the Highland dancers and a soloist to present a similar program famous 48th Highlanders Regimental Band, Pipes and Drums to those which on past occasions have packed Maple Leaf will be participating in the monster parade marking the Gardens to the limit, at regular Garden prices. Their appearstart of the town's Centennial Homecoming Week. These ance in Richmond Hill is at a real bargain price of $1. fine bands are being sponsored by the town's banks, Toronto- because they are sponsored. Total ticket sales will go to Dominion, Nova Scotia, Royal, Bank of Montreal, Canadian York Central Hospital. Tickets are available from the banks

Imperial Bank of Commerce and Victoria & Grey Trust Co. and trust company which are sponsoring the bands or from And that's not all - the evening of the same day in members of York Central Hospital Auxiliary. Arena 67, Town Park, will bring a rare treat to all Scots and

Centennial Year

No longer forward nor behind we look in hope and fear.

But grateful take the good we find, The best of now and here.

Our town was just a country village in horse and buggy days, But now it's grown by leaps and bounds in so

We have a fine new hospital and doctors by the | dent of the academy's board

More dentists, schools and churches than we had

We have a shopping plaza, No need to go to town,

We now have many industries located in the

Our "Roses" cultivation has won us much reknown.

So now in this Centennial Year,

We'll raise our glasses high and salute our senior citizens

Who helped to shape our destiny in the days that have gone by.

ALINE BAYLEY, formerly 75 Dufferin Street, Richmond Hill.

Blue Hills Parents

Blue Hills Academy for Emotionally Disturbed Children is having its open house and annual meeting June 13 The informal program will consist of brief remarks by Dr. Douglas Murdoch, presiof directors Executive Director Fred Boden, and George McIntyre, assistant director Education. There will also be a panel discussion with parents of Blue Hills children as pan-McCarthy of Richmond Hill-Thornhill Family Services as for York County Board of moderator. a mile west of Yonge Street north of Oak Ridges. This event it open to the accused.

Panel At Open House In the Spotlight &

By MONA A. ROBERTSON Bravos and Brick Bats

Copied from Sandy Hunter's accolade to the elists and Mrs. Mary Sue ladies of North Vancouver (Pacific 118) Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion, "In this modern age of disturbance by some women who demand, Blue Hills Academy is 10- through the Women's Liberation Movement, to cated on the Bloomington be treated as men, our own ladies set an example Sideroad, formerly the CFRB of feminine service that places them far above Sideroad, three-quarters of men and thus eliminates any organized effort to demote them to the mere level of manpower.

When I gaze upon the smiling faces of our (Continued on Page 16)

Stealing Money From Public

(Ottawa Citizen) Maxwell Henderson's criticism of the federal government for circumventing Parliament's control of the purse should be studied by the Commons Public Accounts Committee, and action taken. The practice may be expedient. But it undermines a basic principle ment. The Auditor-General cites one case in which the government sold a number of air force planes to a foreign country, then used the money to buy other aircraft. That money belonged to the public, and should not have been spent until the public, through Parliament, approved the new expenditure.

of parliamentary govern-

Even more serious is the fact that Ottawa has kept money left over when the departments have done their spending, until by March 31, 1971, a total of almost $300 million had accumulated. This sum was available to the government for the subsequent year, without reference to Parliament.

Such money, too, belongs to the public, not to the government. It should not accumulate from year to year. Either through the main or the supplementary estimates, Parliament should appropriate the money the government needs from year to year. Nest eggs built from the public's taxes have no place in government,

St. John Ambulance Honors Hill Mayor

At a joint meeting and social evening of the executive of the York Central Branch of St. John Ambulance and the St. John Brigade, Mayor William Lazenby of Richmond Hill, was presented with cuff links and tie bar set bearing the St. John Crest. The presentation made by Executive Chairman Harry Sayers was in appreciation of the mayor's efforts in getting the local organization underway and serving as its chairman during the first years of its existence.

Vice-President Art Plummer presented three-year service bars to Brigade Superintendent George Doherty and Brigade members Mrs. Phyllis Walker and Alfred Evans.

Present as guests were Public Relations Director Mrs. Christine Sclanders, who is Divisional Nurse, Ontario Priory of the Order of St. John and Mrs. Jean Colville, also of Toronto.

During the evening it was pointed out that the brigade had been in attendance at the recent Centennial Walkathon, the Richmond Hill Spring Fair and the Unionville Fair and many if not most, particularly during Homecoming Week. During the recent Legion Midget Hockey Tournament, they were also present and were able to render assistance to a woman spectator who was injured by a flying Welcomed to the executive was David George of Markham. The event, on May 31, was held at the home of executive member William Hood and Mrs. Hood, Buttonville. In addition to the members of the brigade and the executive, present were their spouses and friends. NEWMARKET: Cable cast Cable TV, Newmarket, Bradford and Holland Landing's local television channel, has been presented with a programming award by the Canadian Cable Television As-NEWMARKET: Town Engineer Michael Perkins has resigned. Mr. Perkins, who has been with the town for three years, said he is joining a firm of engineering consultants in order to broaden his professional experience.

Lawyers, Judges Condemn Region Courtroom Facilities

The lack of proper court facilities in the Region of York was roundly condemned by judges and lawyers alike in a panel discussion Wednesday of last week.

Most outspoken critic was Provincial Court Judge of the Judicial District of York Clare Morrison of Sutton. "There is nothing resembling proper courtroom facilities in the region and particularly in the criminal division," he said. "They simply do not exist." He referred to that "monstrosity" of a courtroom in Newmarket where you "freeze to death in the winter and sweat to death in the summer." "It is impossible to maintain any semblance of a dignified hearing due to the absolute inadequacy of the facilities there. Every court day at 11 am proceedings are interrupted as the garbage truck hits the building and rattles around with a deafening roar.

"Then the train comes along about noon without fail and proceedings are drowned out again until it passes," he said. He took some slams at the new Provincial Court located at Markham Road and Bayview Avenue in Richmond Hill as well although it was generally agreed that it was the best facility around for criminal proceedings at the moment despite being too cramped for space. The region alone. "It is much smaller than it should be," he said.

He also referred to the cell's which have "been a constant problem. Just a few weeks ago a prisoner literally kicked his way out of the cells and was gone for 14 hours. And this chap was being held under an attempted murder charge at the time."

He added that to his knowledge "the cells have not been fixed yet and they just can't keep prisoners in them until they are. Consequently, there is constant traffic in and out of the courtroom making it almost impossible at times to listen to witneses testifying."

Judge Morrison also criticized the lack of "sufficient staff in the Richmond Hill Court which is the responsibility of the regional police. It's not my responsibility to see that prisoners get to the court on time. My responsibility is to see they get a fair trial."

He said he was "sick and tired" of prisoners being delivered at 11 am when they should be there at 10 am. Even the lawyers, he said, were often not there in time.

"No one is ready to proceed." There was a general agreement that the region required a more centralized Provincial Courthouse which would serve

The region is presently included in the Judicial District of York which includes Metro Toronto where all the Provincial Courts and other legal facilities are located requiring long treks

Judge Morrison agreed that there should be one central courtroom facility in the region with libraries and registry offices located under one roof.

on the part of lawyers and

"No person in the region," he said, "should be required to drive any unreasonable distance. The administration of justice should be available to him within the area he re-

He concluded that the establishment of a Provincial Courtroom would require a lot of work and a lot of patience to convince the Attorney-General who is responsible for designating such facilities.

"It's a political decision," he said. "All you can do is continue to strive to show there is a need for such a facility here."

Judge William Lyon of Willowdale who is chairman of York Regional Police Commission agreed that facilities were inadequate stating that "it is most essential that the proper surroundings be available in order to assure that justice is done. It is very difficult to have a fair hearing in poor surroundings. "It does affect the public's view of the quality of justice being handed out and it goes even deeper than that. It affects the quality of justice it-

He pointed to a division court facility in one area of the region which was held regularly at a legion hall.

"It's not unusual to be subjected to the smell of beer wafting up through the floor during proceedings and you can also hear the rumbling as new supplies are moved in downstairs. The quarters are also too confined.

"It is very difficult to provide a fair hearing in adequate, over - crowded facilities. Of facilities even in Metro Toronto which are not much better." * * * *

Richmond Hill Lawyer Alfred Stong levelled "lack of space" criticisms at both the Newmarket and Richmond Hill Courts. "The Newmarket Courtroom in particular is over-crowded and there is simply no adequate place where a lawyer can consult with his client in privacy."

He also complained about freezing temperatures in the winter as well as paper-thin walls in the barn-like building. "It's of little use removing witnesses from the courtroom sociation.

because the walls are so thin you can hear what's going on from downstairs. There are no offices for the police or the lawyers to consult." The Richmond Hill Court lacks "the proper decorum" although there is an office for lawyers to meet clients. Unfortunately, this office has been taken over by legal aid. "And if you wish to discuss a point with the Crown Attorney in his office you usually have five or six police officers standing around listening to you. There just is no privacy. They do have their own room but they never stay there."

Other panelists included Aurora Lawyer Ross Linton, Garcourse, there are division court field Wright, chairman of York Regional Council and Judge Russell Pearse.

> It was also pointed out that the control and provision of courtrooms in the region are solely the responsibility of the province and not the region.

> The dinner meeting was sponsored by the York North Law Association and held at the Summit View Gardens Restaurant on Yonge Street North in Richmond Hill.