Planners, Developers Part Of TV Planning Series

The York Region — planning and you — what are the real planning issues in York Region, and what body or organization has the decision-making power? These issues are the subject of a series to be aired on TV 10 each Thursday at 7 pm, beginning tonight (October 4). In attempting to answer these questions, staff of TV 10 reports that it has sought and received the co-operation of planners and politicians at the municipal, regional and provincial levels of government. One of the aims of the series is to enlighten the public as to the hierarchy of planning and the resultant problems which arise at the three governmental levels. Planning directors from York Regional office, and from the towns of Vaughan, Markham and Richmond Hill will present particular problems and solutions which affect their municipalities and areas of control. Area developers will provide an insight into their positions as they relate to the various levels of government, local and regional planning bodies, a position which in many cases leads to controversy. Representatives from area ratepayers' associations have been invited to air their opinions on specific planning issues and also to discuss ways in which these same issues and topics of concern can be filtered down in some way to the public. Whether it is the sewer fronting on a resident's own property, or the proposal for a parkway corridor through the region, planning issues affect each and every resident of York.

OCTOBER 12-14 FIRST ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

a year exploring Europe, Dr. Langstaff began practice with his father Rolph at the age of 25 years in 1936 here. At that time his father started taking it easy and Dr. Langstaff practised with his parents for a short while.
MARRIED IN 1938
During World War II there was only one other physician in this area and Dr. Langstaff stayed at home to look after his patients. In 1938 he married Barbara Miller, a nurse from Ashburn. A Queen's University graduate, she has qualifications in hospital administration and the public health.
The family of Dr. Langstaff and Barbara includes two boys and two girls. Son Bruce is married to the former Judy Uren of Richmond Hill. They have one son James and live in Toronto.
The Langstaffs daughter Judith lives in Ontario, while the other son Miles works for a computer firm, is married to the former Pat Lane of Richmond Hill and they live in Toronto. The other daughter Elizabeth also lives in Toronto and works for the Department of Welfare.

MOTHER NOW 90
Dr. Langstaff's mother, Dr. Lillian Langstaff, is now 90 years old and is residing at the Villa Hospital on Bathurst Street, Vaughan Town.

Testimonial speakers included Mrs. Doris Payne of 212 Rosemar Gardens, Richmond Hill, a native of Maple,

RECEPTIONIST 27 YEARS
Miss Vera Brillinger of Gormley, doctor's office receptionist for 27½ years, had her say and presented a scrapbook. This was for memories of past events in the doctor's life, including the newspaper clippings and snapshots on display at the testimonial. Donors to the Langstaff Memorial Fund are also invited to sign the scrapbook.

Dr. Marc Kirby, an associate; hospital surgeon Dr. Arnie Arai; and hospital board President Mrs. Jackson joined together to present the memorial fund certificate. Dr. Arai paid tribute to Dr. Langstaff long time contribution to the doctor's policy advisory committee sessions and expressed the hope his retiring colleague would continue to be available in some degree to those

Dr. Langstaff is a life member of the Richmond Hill Lions, being the club's youngest living charter member. Other living charter members are Robert Little, Dr. Walter Mason, Ted Mansbridge and Dr. Langstaff's oldest patient Paul Angle.
After having been medical staff president at the York County Hospital in Newmarket in 1957, Dr. Langstaff became first chief of medical staff at York Central Hospital in Richmond Hill for three years. He'd been heavily involved in organizing the group which founded and built the hospital.
HIS WELL WISHERS
Chairman of the testimonial dinners was an old friend Dr. Jack Passmore of Yonge Street North, Program chairman was another old friend Dr. Jack Heard of Cachet Country Club, RR 2, Gormley. Secretary of the testimonial committee was Mrs. Elsie MacKay of 111 Arnold Crescent. Treasurer was Dr. Marc Kirby of Hall Street. Along with Chairman Passmore and Dr. Heard, other members were Dr. Arnie Arai, Miss Vera Brillinger, Mrs. Grace Jackson and Dr. Walter Mason of Cachet Country Club, Gormley.

Participation In Planning Topic Of Public Workshop

A workshop on citizen participation in planning and development to take place at 8 pm October 10 at Richmond Hill High School is one of a series of public meetings sponsored by Richmond Hill Social Planning Council.

Last spring a small working committee was appointed by the social planning council to do research and draw up a "Planning Model for Citizen Participation in Planning and Development for Richmond Hill".

It is the feeling of the committee that communication between citizens and politicians must improve so that the position of each group may be more clearly understood and respected.

Within this context the committee has worked out quite specifically the things they feel both citizens and politicians could, or should do in the field of planning.

Some specific members of the town council have met with the committee and helped with the wording and content of the "Tentative Model" and will be mailing copies to all councillors for their information and comment before the public meeting.

The committee is hoping that all neighborhoods and community groups in Richmond Hill will be represented at the meeting October 10, and that through the workshop setting some real dialogue will lead to positive suggestions as to how citizens can better participate in planning.

Format of the evening will be: Introduction to the tentative model; the role of the social planning council in this matter; a presentation from a representative from an area which is practicing citizen participation; group discussion within the content set down in the tentative model, and a decision of "Where we go from here".

Chairman for the evening will be Buster Vermeulan.

who depended on him for so long and so much.

Grace was said at the dinners by Fred Winger of Gormley and Rev. Fred Jackson of All Saints Anglican.

AT HEAD TABLE
At the head table during one or other of the two dinners, or at both, were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Little; Miss Elizabeth Langstaff; Dr. and Mrs. Jack Passmore; Dr. and Mrs. Miles Langstaff; Dr. and Mrs. Langstaff; Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Langstaff; brother-in-law John Miller; Miss Judith Langstaff; brother-in-law and sister-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Fred Durand of Niagara Falls; Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Davis.

On the occasion of his retirement Dr. Langstaff doesn't see any easy or quick solution to the much complained shortage of physicians. He says the large number of doctors imported into Canada from around the world is offset at least to some extent by the export of Canadian doctors to the United States. But he does see it as unfortunate that a technologically advanced nation like Canada should be importing physicians from nations where they are more badly needed.

As far as he's concerned, the answer is less patients and more doctors. And both these answers are possible. "If you looked at my father's records you would see that the average patient had a much more serious complaint than now. It's almost getting to the point where people go to the doctor for a 'Band Aid', he says.

LARGER MEDICAL SCHOOLS
On the other hand, if Canada is going to produce a greater share of the world's doctors, then it is simply a question of more medical school facilities, he says. Every year the student applicants with the lowest marks are turned away from the medical schools. "And it isn't always that the student with the highest marks is going to make the best doctor, either," said the veteran Richmond Hill physician.

He sees the life of a doctor as a hard one. "You can't make a good living on a 40 hour week," he said. Nowadays a doctor has to organize his time to make use of accessory medical people as much as possible so he can see a large enough number of people in a day to make a living, he says.

Reach For The Top
This year's challenging contestants, and who I might add we should be very proud of are, Mary Jane Highm, Shelley Ring, Scott Forsyth and an old favorite Peter Frise. Let's give them the best of luck when they compete against Central Peel.

Our club memberships are being built up in every aspect especially in our ski section, the enthusiasm is overwhelming. Everybody enjoys skiing, but not everybody can master it. If you'd like to learn and participate in our ski events this year, come to the ski club, Day Six at 12:00 run by Mr. Besley. Also remember that extra help is available in almost anything you can't do on Day Six, we're even thinking about you academically.

You can still subscribe to the Gazette which comes out monthly, and only for one dollar out of your wallet, and that takes care for the whole year. The Gazette is yours to enjoy and even contribute too, if you're concerned about your school publicly being known.

The first week of October, and winter is well on its way, which also means our first semester will be soon finished, which also means we have exams to write this year. For the past few years we've had it so we were graded on term tests alone, but now it's different and surprising, but it's possible it's for the best depending on you but it's also a chance to better yourself.

Bang Go The Balloons At St. Gabriel's Centennial Party
