GARY CARR

Another familiar figure in his first year at Michigan State is Goalie Gary Carr who was a standout with the Rams the past two years and considered by many people in the know as a future NHL'er.

Then it's over to the Yale booklet which lists 21-year-old Phil Clark of Richmond Hill as its outstanding player.

Says a profile of Phil: "Started out in blazing fashion last season, but tailed off in the latter part of the campaign. His 24 assists were tops on the team . . . set a modern Yale record with six assists in Yale's 9-7 victory over Penn . . . MINOR MITES also had a hat trick and three game winning goals . . . played Junior "B" with the Richmond Hill Rams. . . ."

PHILOSOPHY-WISE

What do I know about university hockey? Especially as played in the United States? Exactly nothing. Have never seen a game but have heard many glowing reports about how it's going real "big" these days. Sort of a pot of gold at the end of the hockey and/or educational rainbow.

They tell me that's what all the youngsters are excited about these days and you can believe it by the number of university scouts attending Provincial Junior "A" games.

Talk to a junior player and he'll reel off two or three offers from colleges in the United States. If you are a good hockey player and a good scholar you can practically write your own ticket. and Jackie Woods. The only Gautzioulus and Mitchell had W. A. Stephenson & Son 4 ling officials and parents, will leaving for Maple Leaf Gar-That's what they tell me.

There was a time not so long ago that your average hockey player was lucky if he made it to the Major "A" bracket. A lot of them languished at the "B" level, got tired of hockey, and drifted away.

IT'S A PLAGUE

Not so anymore. With the creation of the Provincial Junior "A" tier you have quite a few academically-minded, good hockey players shying away from Major "A" as if it was the plague. Which it is if you hope to excel academically.

Any young hockey player turning Major "A' is automatically barred from United States College hockey and hence the growing popularity of the Provincial Junior "A" Tier 2 (the one the Rams play in) leagues the players of which are eligible for hockey scholarships in the U.S.

I have a feeling that in the very near future most of your future NHL or WHA stars will be coming from U.S. campuses and not from the Major "A" camps. What used to be a phenomena will soon be just one of those things.

SUPERIOR HOCKEY

They also tell me that the brand of hockey by Mark Joslin from Gary is superior to the very same Provincial "A" calibre as a whole (this might draw some dissenting opinion) and that the absence of a centre red-line makes the game much more exciting.

One thing that I tend to look askance at is the rule in American university hockey banning fighting. If a player gets into a fight he's automatically banished from that game and the next

I still feel fighting is a way of letting off frustration (a relatively harmless way) which inevitably builds up in such a high-speed game as hockey. Ban the fighting and you encourage Brockton and Bruce Dot. the hacking with the sticks and that is the dangerous part of hockey. Frustration has got to come out and I'd rather see it with the fists.

So there you have it. Apparently there is gold in them thar university hills. And there are a lot of hockey players out to do some mining. Do wish them well.

Kings Lose 4-3, 4-1 Oshawa, Peterboro

The Oak Ridges Junior "B" Kings went down to two straight defeats in somewhat disappointing fashion losing 4-3 to Oshawa Sunday night and 4-1 to Peterboro Monday night at Bond Lake Arena.

Disappointing because that Monday game saw the Kings hold a 1-0 lead until the roof fell in during the third period which saw the visitors rap home four straight goals and outshoot the Kings 22 to 4.
