system which is geared to specialists talking to specialists, mandarins talking to mandarins, so that without any conspiracy, most of Ottawa is geared to the needs of the giants, Bulloch says.

Senior civil servants, usually assistant deputy ministers, meet with the high priced lawyers and accountants who represent large corporations.

Since Ottawa has acknowledged this vacuum by recognizing the federation for independent business, it now has s access to federal officials at the highest levels and many of the questions are submitted to members through monthly opinion polls written by assistant deputy ministers. The results are sent to Ottawa. The federation's strength, says Bulloch, is its credibility and broad representation. It is active in every province and will not accept donations of more than $500 from members. It will not accept public companies as members, nor will it accept companies owned by residents of other countries.

"There's no way we can be dominate or controlled," he says, "We're simply the voice of Canadian owned small business, and we bring a perspective to national affairs that is not possible through organizations dominated at the top by multi-nations."

This is no private ego trip, says Bulloch. "It has picked up so much momentum that it does not need me any more. I'm bringing in strong people so the organization is no longer my creature, but it's exciting and challenging and I'll stay with it as long as the challenge

With 200,000 snow vehicles registered in Ontario, each capable of carrying two passengers, the police are understandably concerned and urge operators to exercise the strongest safety measures possible, since more than their lives depend on their commonsense.

In Ontario, legal responsibilities of snowmobilers include:

• Only persons possessing a valid driver's license may operate a snowmobile on public thoroughfares. A driver's license is not required for operation off a public thoroughfare. · The owner of a snowmobile is equally responsible with the driver for infractions of municipal bylaws or of the "Motorized Snow Vedamages caused by the driver.

to any property other than the owner's or the driver's. • It is an offense to operate a snowmobile without due care and attention, or without reasonable consideration for other persons. This applies both on and off public thoroughfares. · The owner of a snowmobile who drives or permits the driving of the vehicle on a highway, must produce evidence upon request of a police officer, that the vehicle or the driver of the vehicle is insured under a motor vehicle liability policy.

 Snowmobiles are motor vehicles within the meaning of the Criminal Code of Canada. The driving provisions of the Criminal Code apply to the use of snowmobiles breathalyzer law, impaired driving, dangerous driving, etc. The court, upon conviction, has authority to prohibit anyone from operating a
