

License Sales Drag

Feb. 28 Is Deadline

Sale of the little red stickers which will show that your motor vehicle license has been renewed for 1974 was very slow until the last few days last week, local License Issuer William Neal told "The Liberal". "In other years we were very conscious of the conspicuous piles of license plates still on hand, but these little stickers are not so evident," he said. "It's only natural for people to delay purchasing their licenses, I think. They decide to buy something else out of this pay and wait for another pay to buy their car licenses as close to the deadline as possible."

So that the lineups expected at the end of this month (February 28 is the deadline) the government is making those car insurance forms you're required to fill out available at all liquor stores. You can pick up the form there, have it filled out and take a minimum of time getting your little red stickers. The government has warned that license plates must be clean and dry before the sticker is applied — all traces of oily road film must be removed. If this is done, the sticker should adhere closely and remain forever. But in the event it becomes detached and is lost, you will be able to get a replacement sticker for $2.

Eskimo Art Show At McMichael Gallery

Learn about how our Eskimo cope with their harsh environment in comfort. Two of the 30 galleries at the McMichael Canadian Collection in Kleinburg have been given over to exhibits of carvings from blackstone, soapstone and whalebone, telling of the legends and animals of the Arctic. Sealskin and stone prints provide a glimpse into the Eskimo's mythological and spiritual world, inhabited by demons, spirits and unusual Arctic creatures.

The gallery houses some 900 works, featuring landscape paintings by the Group of Seven and their contemporaries as well as pioneer furniture and artifacts and an increasing number of works produced by the Eskimos and Indians of Canada.

ITEMS FOR SALE
A small selection of fine Eskimo prints and carved pieces are available for sale in the gallery shop, along with reproductions of many paintings in the collection, Canadian books and gift items.

The rambling log and stone complex which houses the galleries is set in a wooded park, and its wood-paneled dining room where lunch and afternoon tea are served overlooks a view of the surrounding countryside.

The gallery is open every day from 12 noon to 5:30 pm and there is no charge for admission or parking.

Metric System On Way York Schools

Canada has given itself until 1980 to adopt the metric system, which puts it just six years behind Aurora Public School, according to some representatives of the school, who attended a meeting of York County Board of Education last week.

Principal J. B. Haskell, Mrs. Barbara Beatty, Mrs. Lynda Shillum and Ahmed Motiar discussed the results of Metric Week, which had been observed in the school last November from the 19 to 23.

The teachers presented charts, plus facts and figures (metric) to show that the method was being taken to without too much trouble by the students.

Did this mean that they weren't teaching the old imperial system in the school? "asked Trustee John MacKay of Markham.

Mr. Motiar said it didn't, but that they were trying to avoid its use.

Mr. MacKay wondered if that wouldn't present problems to the children, who would have to deal with things in the old system outside of school.

Mr. Motiar said the Ministry of Education would like to bring about the metric system as soon as possible. Eventually everything would be going metric, he said.

Trustee Robert Houghton said also that industry was forcing the country to "go metric". With such giants as General Motors expecting to convert by 1978.
