BOOK TALK

TOWN OF MARKHAM PUBLIC LIBRARIES

Broken Marriage, New Love And Discovery Of Writing Talent

PORTRAIT OF A MARRIAGE — by Nigel Nicholson. Nigel Nicholson, the son of Harold Nicholson and Victoria Sackville West, displays courage and tolerance of a high order in bringing out this book. The presentation is remarkably skilful and one is touched with wonder at the enduring love and respect which each of the Nicholsons had for the other after the tumult had died and the fires were banked. (Non-fiction at Thornhill, Markham and Unionville.)

SAINT JACK — by Paul Theroux. The memoir of Jack Flowers, pimp, is more than a catalogue of his bizarre experiences in Boston and Singapore. Jack's dreams, ambitions, follies, pride and philosophy force the reader to re-evaluate his own outlook on the human experience. "A large, lively, outrageous talent." (Fiction at Markham, Thornhill and Unionville.)

THE GAMBLE, AN AUTOBIOGRAPHY — by Stuart Clotete. Stuart Clotete reveled in the harsh life he encountered when he returned to South Africa, the land of his forebears. A broken marriage, a new love, and the discovery of a talent

ALDOUSE HUXLEY, A BIOGRAPHY: VOLUME I — by Sybille Bedford. The author is well equipped to write the biography of this literary aristocrat because she is a writer of distinction and because she was a part of Huxley's world. This first volume is outstandingly interesting; one waits with eagerness for the second. (Non-fiction at Thornhill and Unionville.)

for writing form the main events in this account of the life of the writer whose first novel TURNING WHEELS was an immense success. (Non-fiction at Markham and Unionville.)

THE SWORD IN THE TREE — by Clyde Bulla. Using a limited vocabulary well within the capabilities of readers in grades two and three, Clyde Bulla has retold the story of King Arthur. This book is exceptionally well written and attractive to the eye. Reluctant readers even in the upper grades of elementary school will be absorbed by the plot and the characters. (Fiction at Markham, Thornhill and Unionville.)

Points To Remember When Buying or Complaining About a Product

Three months ago I received a brand name blender as a gift. Everything worked fine for about eight weeks, then the unit started making funny metallic-sounding noises and finally stopped working. I live in a small town and don't know who to turn to for advice on fixing this machine. I feel I should get a replacement. What should I do? I've complained to some close friends, but they don't know what to do either.

Reputable businessmen and manufacturers welcome complaints. Sometimes it is the first indication that something is wrong with their product. Most will respond immediately because they want to keep you as a customer.

How to Complain Successfully

- It is wise to complain in writing — keeping a copy.
- Write legibly and, if possible, use a typewriter.
- Keep it simple and to the point. Don't make sarcastic remarks.
- If you are dealing with a local merchant, a personal discussion with the manager often clears up the situation. Otherwise, a written letter is better and avoids the telephone brush-off.
- Make sure you have the correct address. You will notice that more and more companies put their mailing address on cartons, literature and warranties.
- Make sure you have a name (sales manager, president) to complain to.
- Start your letter with your return address and telephone number. You would be surprised at the number of complaints received without this information.
- State where you purchased the faulty article, the date of purchase if known, and, don't forget to indicate the model number when writing about appliances.
- Sign the letter clearly.
- Remember, always keep your receipts.

Questions to ask when Buying

1. Do I really need and want this article? Do I need it now?
2. Is it within my budget? Is the price what I thought I would pay, or is it suspiciously low? What are the interest charges?
3. Does the product appear to be good value for my money?
4. Is this a standard item or do I have a choice? Have I made the best choice for my use?
5. Is it the right size for my needs?
6. Can I get good service and replacement parts when necessary?
7. Can the article be used right away? (Are there any additional purchases that must be made?)
8. Can I avoid spending money on a new article by repairing an old article that will do the same job?
