St. Mary's History Is Available Now

The dove of peace hovers over the complex of church, chapel and parish hall which makes up the Anglican Church of St. Mary in Richmond Hill on the cover of an interesting book published in honor of the church's centennial in 1972 and the town's Centennial in 1973. The pen and ink sketch was made by the late Fred Gummersall.
Dedicated to the people of the parish whose faith, vision and work in the past 100 years have built this historic Anglican Church and parish, the booklet is the work of a committee composed of Chairman Dorothy Gummersall, Josephine Agg, Dooyne Ahern, Louise Case, Alice Dewsbury, Rose Hanns, Patricia Hart, Don Hick, Doris Leno and Cherie McGuire. It represents two years of diligent research, and contains many pictures and historic information of interest to the parish and to the townspeople.
The booklet may be obtained at the church office for only $3.

New Ontario Hydro Relay Engineer For Our Central Region

A new resident at 54 Sir Bcdwin Place in the Old Village area of Markham Town is Bill Buchkowski, the new relay engineer for Ontario Hydro's Central Region protection and control department. He comes from Windsor where he was senior protection and control engineer.

Central Region, one of seven such Hydro divisions in the province, stretches from Burlington to Port Hope between Lake Ontario and Sutton. It includes the local southern York Region area.
Buchkowski is a native of Thunder Bay. He attended Fort William Collegiate and Lakehead College. In 1961 he graduated at Toronto University in electrical engineering. Then he joined Hydro as an engineering trainee in his home area. In 1964 he was moved to Windsor.
He and wife Helene have three children. They are 5, and Lisa 3 months.

Region Slow To Take Stand On Airport

York Regional Council has been asked to take a definite stand on the question of putting the proposed new airport in Pickering, but council is still shying away from any commitment.
James Taylor, representing the Town of Markham, which will be right in the flight path of the airport, said the town would like council to go on record as supporting Markham's opposition to the project, and to make the region's technical staff available to the commission hearing the latest submissions on the airport.
Councillor Robert Pollock of Georgina Township said he thought the region had made a submission to the commission and the latter was to hear new evidence only.
Solicitor Edward Oakes said the region hadn't made any new submissions. In its original submission it hadn't taken any stand, but had only asked for more information.
Mayor Robert Forhan of Newmarket moved that council report on the matter at its next meeting.

Increase Of $6,928.19 For Region Conservation Budget

There will be an increase of $6,928.19 in this year's levy from the Metro Conservation Authority against York Region, council was informed at a meeting recently.
Elgin Card, chairman of finance for the authority, told council that this year's levy would amount to $85,832.44 compared with $79,904.25 in 1973.
Total assessment for the Region is $1,744,784, with Richmond Hill's assessment amounting to $337,846, third highest behind Markham — $641,093, and Vaughan, $376,581.
Other assessments in the region are: Aurora, $119,478; Whitechurch-Stouffville, $122,485; and King Township, $147,301.
Mr. Card said that basic economics, social benefits and salary increases were responsible for the increased levy.
A report from the Authority showed that the over-all increase amounted to $59,320, or 3.8 percent over the previous year, "apportioned to all municipalities in the watershed after necessary adjustments have been made for deferred expenditures and revenues carried forward from 1973."
The report also stated that the member municipalities contributed on the basis of the total annual budget estimates of the Authority for general budget requirements, plus additional capital levies in respect of flood control and water conservation and waterfront projects on the basis of a constant amount, which was established in the first year of the project.

On a motion by Councillor Lois Hancey of Richmond Hill, the report was referred to the budget committee.

Conditioner Noise Leads To Conviction

In a test case heard in a Toronto court last week, a loud home air conditioner located on Babcombe Drive, Thornhill, led to Ontario's first conviction under the Environmental Protection Act, 1971, for excessive noise.
Silva Lieberman pleaded guilty to one charge laid by his next-door neighbor, Gloria Johnston and five similar counts were withdrawn.
Mrs. Johnston maintained the central air conditioner in the Lieberman home interfered with her family's recreational use of the backyard—relaxing, reading, gardening and entertaining. She said the vent of the unit was located between the two houses and noise from it reverberated between the walls.
Mrs. Johnston claimed the noise violated Section 14 of the Act, which bars the emission of any "contaminant into the natural environment that causes or is likely to cause impairment of the quality of the natural environment for any use that can be made of it."
The case was remanded to May 29 for sentence. Penalties for a first offence range upward to a fine of $5,000. The judge indicated he is interested in seeing whether the violation continues between now and May.
The Environment Ministry has yet to bring down specific anti-noise regulations under the act. They were expected last year.
