Neighborhood Notes
 The Happy Timers Pancake Supper was a successful venture last week, with more than 150 members of the church and community attending. The pancakes were delicious, the sausages and bacon scrumptious, and the company interesting. Profits were good too.
 The Bill Hoods were happy to have son Jim as a guest from western Canada last week. The Jim Hoods now have two small members in their family a daughter going on two, and a brand new son, Jim, a former pupil, attended Mrs. English's funeral on Friday.
 Miss Mary Rodick will be hostess Friday morning when the Buttonville Branch of York Central Hospital Auxiliary meets at her home, 8 Jonquil Crescent, Markham, for coffee and discussion at 10 am.

Obituary

MRS. HARRIET ENGLISH
 Buttonville lost a dear friend and great lady last week, with the passing of Harriet (Mrs. Sidney John) English.
 Tuesday evening after a quiet dinner at her home with her niece Margaret Gray, she lay down on the couch and slipped peacefully away. She was in her 83rd year and had been in failing health for some time.

It would be difficult to assess the legacy which Mrs. English and her late husband Sidney John have left to this community. Both were ardent music lovers, and after his death in 1947 Mrs. English carried on a work he loved, teaching two generations of children a love of beauty, as expressed in music, poetry and the arts.
 There was no drudgery to music lessons with Harriet English. It was an event for youngsters to be included in her tutelage, and they trekked up the drive to "Braedon to learn Bach, Beethoven and Brahms with cookies and fudge to sweeten the theory lessons at the kitchen table.

They learned to love the beauty of the arts and nature, and Mrs. English was keen to detect budding talent and develop it. The recitals presented by her pupils in June of each year were events prized by parents and community members alike.
 She loved poetry and spent many hours jotting down rhymes of day to day happenings and thoughts serious and funny. Many of these were written for pupils when they were about to be married.

Brown's Corners Church was no less a love of Mrs. English's heart, and the choir was a chief concern. Because of her and her husband there are now several accomplished musicians in the community who are able to carry on the music of the church.
 Her family and friends were very dear to her, and there was a constant stream of visitors to the small house at Braedon. Typical of her was the sheaf of typewritten sheets of names between cardboard covers found on her kitchen table after her death. It was titled "Numbers of Friends from Near and Far," and listed telephone numbers and addresses of more than 200 families, representing hundreds of people she kept in touch with.

A constant stream of friends visited the Ogdan Funeral Home at Unionville last Wednesday and Thursday, and on Friday Brown's Corners United Church was crowded for the funeral service conducted by Rev. Allen Hallett. Two of her former pupils, Mrs. Dorothy Reesor and Mrs. Joy Crawford played the organ and piano. Afterward, on the last ride up Don Mills Road to Buttonville Cemetery the cortege was more than half a mile long.

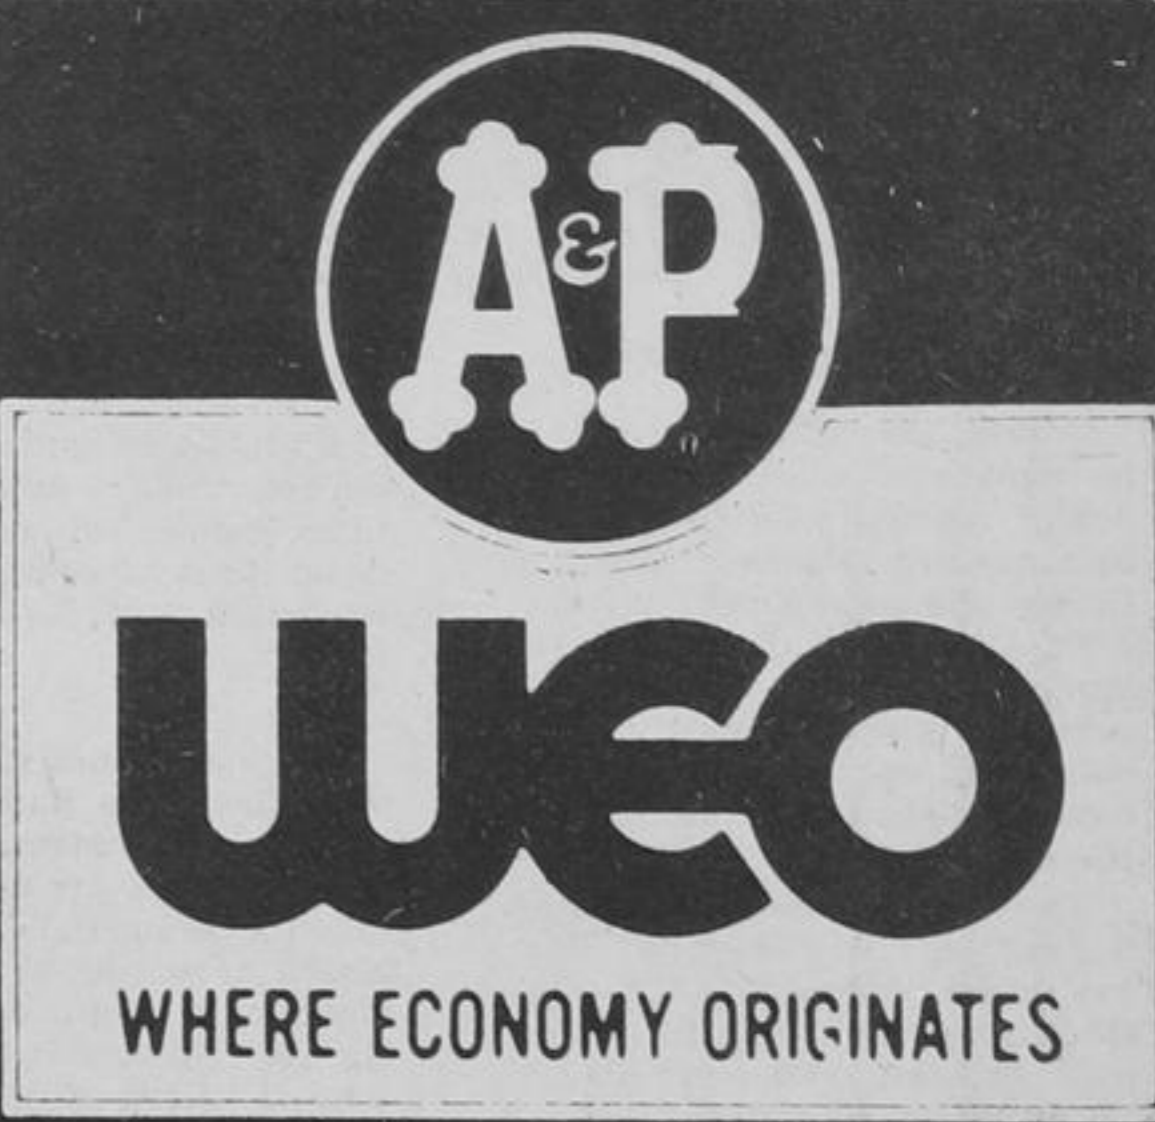

And back at the church where UCW members had prepared refreshments, friends and family gathered after the committal service and exchanged reminiscences of this rare soul.
 Mrs. English is survived by her step-daughter Olive, Mrs. Edward Bartram of London, and four grandsons Bill and Ted Bartram and John and Sidney English; her sister Mrs. Kenneth Gray of Toronto, nieces Johann and Margaret, and nephews Jim Gray and John MacGregor.

Pallbearers were Bill and Ted Bartram, John and Sidney English, Kenneth Russell, Jim Gray, and John MacGregor. Honorary pallbearers included friends and neighbors Edgar Fuller, Aubrey Stephenson, Jack Rodick, Walter Craig, Dr. Ed Bartram, John Donaldson and Norman Reid.

NEWMARKET: A petition signed by 40 Main Street businessmen asked council to remove all parking meters in the downtown core. At the same meeting a letter was received from the Downtown Merchants Association asking that meters be replaced on the west side of Main Street from Timothy Street to Millard Avenue, which had been removed last summer on a trial basis.
